TROUBLE ON WHALER MARGARETT

Crew Refused to Go on Voyage without Pay and Better Provisions—Judge Erown Goes to Norfolk to Look Up Provisions Sent.

A despatch from Newport News on Thursday indicated that there was trouble on the whaling schooner Margaret, which had put in at that place for supplies, and the trouble among the crew was such that arrests might result. The despatch was as follows: Ten members of the crew of the whaling schooner Margaret of Norwich, Conn., now lying in Hampton Roads, ready to sail on a cruise, refused to go to sea in the vessel until their wage claims, which they have made, are satisfied. Five of them were by the master of the vessel that better food will be furnished.

They declare that they will submit to be put in irons rather than consent unless they are fully paid and better food provided. It is expected that a warrant charging them with mutiny will be secured. C. W. Comstock, who is president of the company operating the whaler, stated on Thursday that provisions had been sent to the schooner a week ago, and he did not understand why they had not been received. The schooner went out last fall to go to the whaling grounds off the African coast, but because of the severe weather and a bad storm which was encountered, did not get beyond the Barbadoes where a stop was made for repairs. Later the vessel put out for whales and came up the coast to Newport News, coming in there to get made, and a cruise of five months on the western whaling grounds. The vessel left here last September under command of Captain Gibbons of this city. On Thursday afternoon Judge Erown left for Norfolk, Va., to look up the provisions which were sent from here and see if they have arrived there. He will also straighten out the tangle with the crew, which trouble Mr. Comstock said he had not been informed of.

WEDDING.

Gen. William A. Aiken and Miss Aiken were in Baltimore on Wednesday, to attend the wedding of Miss Grace Harbottle Ober and Charles Harvey Palmer of Milwaukie. Local society is interested in this marriage, as Mr. Palmer's first wife was Miss Edith Aiken, daughter of General and Mrs. Aiken, and granddaughter of Gov. William A. Buckingham. She died twelve years ago, leaving a daughter, Miss Gertrude Palmer, who was one of the little flower girls in Wednesday's ceremony, of which the Baltimore American says:

One of the most important of the wedding parties took place on Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock at Tens-Kwan-Ta-Waw, the beautiful country residence of Albert G. Ober, and Master Leonard Ober, both relatives of the bride. The ushers, when his daughter, Miss Grace Harbottle Ober, was united in marriage with Charles Harvey Palmer of Milwaukie, Wis., a son of the late Judge Henry L. Palmer, former president of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company of Milwaukee. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Edward Barnes, Niver, rector of Christ Protestant Episcopal church, assisted by Rev. Dr. W. H. H. Powers, rector of Trinity Protestant Episcopal church, Towson. The bride's party stood under a huge bower of palms, ferns and potted plants in the reception hall. The entire lower floor was decorated with lilacs and dogwood blossoms. The bride entered to the music of Lohengrin on the arm of her father, by whom she was given in marriage. The march was played by Professor Steinwald's orchestra. The bride wore a handsome gown of white satin, hand-embroidered, trimmed with duchess lace, and carried a large bouquet of pink roses and white lilies. Albert G. Ober, Jr., a brother, acted as best man. Lila, the Misses Elizabeth Ober, cousin of the bride, and Gertrude Palmer were flower girls and carried picture baskets of lilies of the valley and ferns. They wore frocks of white silk and lace and white slippers. The ribbon bearers were Miss Rebecca Ober, who wore a frock of white silk and lace, and Master Leonard Ober, both relatives of the bride. The ushers, all relatives, were Selden Bacon of Yale university, Douglas Ober, John H. Ober, Beverly Ober, Frank B. Ober, and Robert Ober.

A reception and supper followed the ceremony, from 8 to 10 o'clock, which was attended by a large contingent of society folk from New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Washington, and Baltimore. The guests were seated at several small tables in the hall and reception rooms. Two rooms were reserved for the numerous handsome presents. Mr. and Mrs. Palmer, who left later in the evening for a honeymoon tour, will, after their return, reside in Milwaukee.
