SPOR, CHASEVILLE, and returned to Danielson tonight.

The story told by Miss Vinciellette was: "We started from Putnam this forenoon at 11 o'clock, intending to have dinner in Webster. The horse was skittish and several times shied at objects beside the road. Just before we reached Chaseville an automobile passed us and the horse started to run. He became unmanageable and beyond the control of Mr. Cournoyer. One of the wheels caught in a rut in the road and the carriage overturned. It is a miracle that we were not killed."

The automobile turned and followed us and picked up Mr. Cournoyer. I told the man that we were not killed. I don't know who was in the automobile, but they said they were bound for Putnam and did everything that could be done for us. I don't believe that they were at fault in the matter, but I believe that the driver should be blamed for letting such a horse."

The smashed ivory rig and horse were taken to the stable of Fred Benoit and taken care of. The horse was returned to Putnam tonight.

It should always be recollected that it was the Old Testament that Christ looked back to, that the Puritans built upon, and that there is no book in the Bible that the modern church does not read.
