

PHILIP THE RIP GOD TOO HARD
Big Bag Containing 85,000 Feet of Gas Torn Almost from Top to Bottom

FORBES' STORY OF FRIGHTFUL FALL
Occupants of the Big Dirigible Viking Became Numb with Cold at Altitude of 20,600 Feet—Balloon Rapped to Earth Like a Stone—Injured Balloonists, A. J. Forbes and J. C. Yates Will Recover.

Center, Ky., May 11.—Numb by a snow storm encountered at an altitude of 20,600 feet, and dropped rapidly to earth from a considerable height, the cause of injury to the big dirigible balloon, A. J. Forbes of Bridgeport, Conn., vice president of the Aero club of America, and J. C. Yates of New York suffered severe injuries last night after a flight of four hundred miles from Quincy, Mass.

Half Stuffed by Cold. Tuesday morning we encountered intense cold and a severe snow storm at an altitude of 16,000 feet. Tuesday afternoon the altitude of 16,000 feet, we ran into another snow storm. Shortly afterward we shot up to 20,600 feet through the snow. The cold was so intense that we became numb and half stupefied.

Rip Cord Used, Terrific Descent. "Finally I used the rip cord, for fear we might soon lose consciousness. In some manner we controlled the balloon, worked entirely too well and slipped the bag almost from top to bottom. The descent was terrific and I judge that for the last hundred feet there was little gas left in the balloon, so it fell like a stone.
