

THIRD OPERATION PREVENTED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill. — "I want to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was so sick that two of the best doctors in Chicago said I would die if I did not have an operation. I had already had two operations, and they wanted me to have a third one. I suffered day and night from inflammation and a small tumor, and never thought of seeing a well day again. A friend told me how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her, and I tried it, and after the third bottle was cured." — Mrs. ALYNA SPRENGER, 1408 Clybourne Ave., Chicago, Ill.

If you are ill do not drag along at home or in your place of employment until an operation is necessary, but build up the feminine system, and remove the cause of those distressing aches and pains by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

THREE GOVERNORS IN CAMPAIGN

Hawley, Lounsbury and Waller Saw Service in the Southern Department—Last Named was Sergeant in Co. E of the Second Connecticut.

The regiments from this state which served in the southern department, comprising the territory of Florida, in 1863 and 1864, were the Seventh, General Hawley's, the Tenth, under Colonel John L. Otis, and the Seventeenth, Colonel William H. Noble. The campaign in Florida was signalized by the engagements at St. Augustine, December 30, 1863; Dunn's lake, February 5, 1864; Olustee, February 20, 1864; and Weleka, May 19 of that year, or 46 years ago this week.

Colonel Otis, after the capture of Fort Wagner, was placed in command of the district of St. Augustine in November, 1863. While in the performance of duty at this point a force of the Tenth was ambushed by the enemy. The losses included William A. Burns of Greenwich, who was killed; John F. Shepard of Branford, who died in the prison at Millen, October 23, 1864; George H. Seward of New Haven, who died June 25, 1864; Henry F. Champlin of Sprague, whose death took place August 11, 1864; James A. Wileley of Darien, who died August 3, and William M. Johnson of Montville, who died August 30. James H. Burns of Greenwich was paroled November 29; Edward H. Risley of Gloucester died at Andersonville July 30, and Thaddeus W. Post of Andover died November 28; William S. Chamberlain of Greenwich died in imprisonment John Hollister of Wethersfield was released from the prison April 28, 1865, seventeen months after he was captured in the St. Augustine ambush. Douglas Owen of Salisbury was paroled November 20, 1864; Morrill B. Chesley of Sprague November 21 and Alexander Bruto of Sprague November 20. The numbers of the occasional serious losses in the Tenth, but in no way prevented the re-enlistment of large numbers for the war.

William H. Noble was placed in charge of the Second brigade. His headquarters were established at St. Augustine. In October, 1863, General Hawley's regiment, after 98 days in the trenches in the neighborhood of Fort Wagner, returned to Hilton Head. The charge of Fort Wagner, July 11, 1863, was led by Lieutenant Daniel C. Rodman. He was desperately wounded in the attack. The Swamp Angel battery, which had the bombardment of Fort Sumter and Charleston in charge for months, was in the hands of the Seventh. It was a 100 pound battery. The regiment re-enlisted 333 members. This force was sent north on a thirty day furlough January 13, 1864. The men who had not re-enlisted were redeployed in Florida and took an active part in the battle of Olustee. In this engagement General Hawley commanded a brigade.

General Hawley at Olustee.
At Olustee General Hawley's brigade consisted of the Seventh New Hampshire, Colonel Joseph C. Abbott, the Eighth United States colored infantry, Colonel Charles W. Fribble, and the Seventh Connecticut battalion, Captain B. F. Skinner in command. Captain Charles G. Mills was at the head of the First company of the battalion, which was deployed by command of General T. Seymour as skirmishers. The Second company, under Lieut. Joseph H. Taylor, was in reserve. The line was strengthened by an additional thirty men under Lieut. Robert Dempsey of Winchester, who was killed in the action.

The Seventh Connecticut battalion comprised ten officers and 265 men. Captain Skinner, who was in command, belonged to Danbury. The officers of the Seventh, who were with General Hawley's staff at Olustee, were First Lieut. E. Lewis Moore of Salisbury, Lieut. W. P. Howard of Guilford and Lieut. John Van Keuren of New Britain.

Losses in the Engagement.
The casualties in the battalion at Olustee were heavy, principally in prisoners of war. The wounded in the stockade at Andersonville and in Millen. Levi L. Smith of Killingly was wounded.

The Seventh was recruited at the north after Olustee, the ranks being filled to a normal state, and resumed service in Virginia. It was assigned to the army of the James, performing miracles of valor at Drury's Bluff. In the capture of Fort Fisher, in September, 1864, Colonel Hawley made a brigadier general and Lieutenant Colonel Rodman took command of the regiment. The wounds of Colonel Rodman compelled his resignation, and Senger S. Atwell of Meriden succeeded him.

The Colored Troops.
The Eighth United States colored infantry, General Hawley's brigade fought with courage and loyalty at Olustee. Col. Charles W. Fribble, shot and died on the field. The captured were confined in Andersonville, many of them dying during the winter of 1864. These negro captives endured the hardships of Andersonville without complaint, and they met as faithful soldiers of the union.

Col. Joseph Finnegan commanded the Confederate forces at Olustee. In August, 1862, the brigade under General Ames was ordered into the southern department. It reached Folly Island Aug. 12 and was soon transferred to Morris Island, where it saw the first gun fired in Gilmore's bombardment. The brigade, which was composed in part of the Seventeenth Connecticut, was ordered to embark for Florida in February, 1864. The Tenth Connecticut was relieved at St. Augustine by the Seventeenth. Several expeditions were participated in by Colonel Noble's command, including Dunn's lake, February, 1864, and Weleka, May 19. Lieut. Col. Albert H. Wilcoxson of Norwich was wounded at Dunn's lake and died March 6. Adjt. H. Whitney Chatfield was killed in the engagement. Henry S. Turrell of New Milford was captured at Weleka May 19 and was paroled Nov. 13. He was made an assistant surgeon, U. S. A., June 25, 1875. The casualties suffered by the Seventeenth at Dunn's lake and Weleka were as follows: Killed, 10; captured, 10; scattered in picket organizations east of St. John's river, the members became an easy prey.

Colonel Noble's Capture.
Colonel Noble, while returning from a court martial held at Jacksonville to the headquarters of the Seventeenth at St. Augustine, was captured Dec. 24, 1864, and was taken at first to Andersonville and afterward in the prison at Macon.

Governors in the Ranks.
The Seventeenth was one of the three Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Connecticut regiments in the ranks of which were men marked for high political honor. Gov. Phineas C. Lounsbury was a corporal in Company C of the Seventh, entering the service from the town of Ridgefield. The Seventh Connecticut, which was also in the Florida campaign, furnished a private in the person of Gen. Joseph R. Hawley. Thomas M. Waller of New London, who became governor in 1882, was a sergeant in Company E of the Second Connecticut. Lieut. Col. Elmer Appleman of Groton, who was wounded at Antietam, while gallantly serving in the Eighth, was a private in Governor Waller's company. He was elected secretary of state in 1871.

AT THE AUDITORIUM.

Vaudeville and Motion Pictures.
The change of vaudeville bill at the Auditorium on Thursday brought three pleasing numbers, while Perkins, Lapan & Co. remain for the rest of the week in their popular satire, in Friendship. Of the new numbers Moran & Moran, a mixed comedy sketch duo, show a lot of clever dancing and get nice hands for their melodious vocal numbers. A turn that is a winner is brought out, worthy of recommendation. One of the many cases coming to our attention, a mechanic earning $22 per week, who had not taken a full pay envelope home for over five years, was induced to try Orrine, a complete cure being the result. The man became worth more to his firm, receiving an advance in pay, and has purchased a home. The house stands there showing the merits of Orrine. We cannot help but feel that we were most fortunate when we secured the agency for this valuable liquor cure.

TWO OLD HORSES.

Named for Scott and Burns—Entered in Hartford Parade.
It is remarkable the number of old horses there are in Hartford, and it seems that all are entered in the work horse parade according to the Courant. This parade is serving the purpose of a census enumeration of the horses. A casual glance over the entries in the "old horse" classes reveals a couple of entries by William Meggart of Wethersfield and the information furnished brings out something remarkable. They are Watty and Bob, named after Sir Walter Scott and Robert Burns. Here is the story as written by Mr. Meggart:—

"Watty and Bob are 33 and 32 years old, respectively, next month. They are a pair of brown geldings, full brothers, bred and raised by Eastman Brothers, Belleville, Jefferson county, New York. Watty was foaled in 1877 and Bob in 1878. The owner first saw them in the summer of 1878. Watty was then a yearling and Bob a sucker, both running with their dam on the Eastman farm. He bought them in February of 1883, paying $500 for the pair and shipped them to Wethersfield where they have remained ever since. The owner says they have never been apart over twenty-four hours at a time in their lives. Their sire was Walkill, 2801, he by Ryedyk's Hambletonian, 2, dam by Seely's American Star, 14. Their dam was a sixteen-hand brown mare weighing 1,200 pounds, said to be by Durie's Consternation. The Eastmans owned both sire and dam.

"In their prime the pair never weighed quite 2,400 pounds, 2,375 pounds being the most in the owner's stable. They were sold to weight between twenty-five and thirty-five pounds more than Bob. They were never sick or lame in their lives and can do anything single or double that farm horses are requested to do. They have been kind and gentle, always in any kind of a hitch. They were fast and hard drivers, single or double, and were fine drivers, single or double and have done a great amount of hard work, and the owner vouches for the claim that they meet the demand for good driver. They have been well cared for, well fed and never abused, and in the opinion of the owner, although never broken, they are the best pair of horses for general purposes that he has ever owned or known of. With their owner, they have grown old together."

The Newport Verdict.

The jury in the case of Walter K. Newport, on trial in New Haven for attempted murder, have rendered the verdict of insanity and the judge has sentenced Newport to the insane asylum at Middletown for five years. "Insane for five years" is rather a strange verdict for a Connecticut court to render and the question at once arises as to whether the insanity plea is not being overworked in murder trials.

It is not understood if the original intent of the insanity clause is to hold blameless a raving maniac or a person entirely demented who should not be held responsible for his actions. It is quite the thing especially in murder trials to offer the plea of insanity as a defense and as soon as the criminal has been judged insane at the time his crime was committed, his torments at once take steps to prove that his insanity was only temporary. This happened in the Newport case, for almost in the same breath in which Newport's attorney expressed his joy at the verdict of insanity, he announced that he would at once bring the attempt to prove the insanity. This makes the insanity plea ridiculous and also makes the mass of testimony by hired medical experts look rather odd when it is used a second time, and when the intent of the attorneys is to prove the criminal just the opposite from the first time. We wonder if the same expert medical advice will be employed to prove Newport sane that has just aided in proving him insane.—Bristol Press.

Loose Trousers in the Navy.

Naval officers are laughing at the ignorance displayed by the lawmakers in congress in other days when someone sought to learn the reason why the bottoms of the trousers of enlisted men in the navy are loose. Representative Hobson, who was educated in a navy academy and ought to know, gave the following explanation: "I am inclined to think that the trousers of a sailor were evolved in the days of Noah, and that when the first sailor began to swim he found it better to have the trousers loose at the bottom to get his stroke more effectively."

When Mr. Cooper of Wisconsin, with an air of incredulity, asked if he really thought the trousers of men were made in Noah's ark, Mr. Hobson replied: "My statement is based on the assumption that the world is a water planet, and that, very beginning, naval affairs have been of the first importance. Noah and his family survived because they recognized this inherent pre-eminence of the question of adequate naval preparation. The human race was once saved by a ship, and is going to be saved again by the navy. The sailor could not make himself web-footed, so from the earliest times he spread his trousers out at the bottom. His trousers flared out in the infancy of man and they will still probably be flaring out when the last trumpet sounds."

Naval officers declare that the reason why enlisted men wear flaring trouser bottoms is so they may be rolled up to permit wading to and from the beach, if necessary, and to get them out of the way when the barefooted men are swabbing down the deck.—Washington Letter to the Brooklyn Eagle.

Orrine Cured Him of DRUNKENNESS

Her Husband Now Spends His Evenings at Home.

She bought Orrine from the druggist in her home town—she bought it after reading the Orrine Free Booklet. In the Booklet she read of the wonderful cures of drunkenness which were accomplished by the aid of Orrine. On page ten of the Booklet she read the liberal guarantee to refund all money paid for Orrine if it failed to effect a cure. After reading the Booklet, she became convinced that Orrine was a remedy of unusual merit. She decided to purchase and cure her husband of drunkenness. Orrine cured him. Now her husband is a happy man. Orrine helped to purchase the home. Read the following letter from Walter F. Schmidt Co., 3 Canal St., Grand Rapids, Mich.: "For a number of years we have been agents for Orrine during that time we have had occasion to be convinced, beyond a doubt, that Orrine is a reliable remedy, worthy of recommendation. One of the many cases coming to our attention, a mechanic earning $22 per week, who had not taken a full pay envelope home for over five years, was induced to try Orrine, a complete cure being the result. The man became worth more to his firm, receiving an advance in pay, and has purchased a home. The house stands there showing the merits of Orrine. We cannot help but feel that we were most fortunate when we secured the agency for this valuable liquor cure."

Orrine is prepared in two forms. No. 1, a powder, absolutely tasteless and odorless, given secretly in food or drink. Orrine No. 2, in pill form, is for those who wish to cure themselves. Orrine costs only $1 a box. The guarantee is in each box.
