ARCADE CLUB SOCIAL DURING

Clambake at Riverview One of the Most Successful Ever Given—Games and Music Round Out a Delightful Afternoon and Evening.

With the Arcade club each outing seems to outdo the previous one and the 1910 event stands at the head of the list. Despite the fact that the morning was unpropitious there were 143 who took in the affair and went to Charles H. Brown's Riverview, below Gales Ferry, a most delightful spot for such a party. During the afternoon the trains stopped there and most of the members went that way, although quite a number went down by auto.

Early in the afternoon the African dodger was the center of attraction and at this Harry Mitchell was a star performer until out of business by L. P. Church. Attention was then directed to the ball field, where the innings of an fine game as one would desire to see were played, there being but three hits and two errors in that time and the score was 2 to 1 in the seventh, however, both teams opened up and team one won out by the score of 11 to 9. A feature of the game was the fearless and honest work of Umpire W. A. Ereed, who demonstrated his careful reading of the latest rules. The pitching by Sherwood Porter and E. R. E. The exceptionally fine. The teams were captained by James Crawford and A. W. Tilly, who were in charge of the members of the club, including some of the charter members, the club having been organized in 1907. The affair was strictly for club members.

Those who had charge of the outing and to whom the credit is due for the success of the affair were: E. R. E. Porter, chairman, Leonard P. Church, Louis R. Porteous and Will L. Stearns, the entertainment committee of the club.

Watermelon Cigars. The watermelon and cigars served and all declared it to have been one of the best bakes they ever had. During the evening an orchestra of seven pieces under the direction of E. R. Perkins gave a pleasing programme of popular numbers and there were several outbursts of song and applause. After the bake the members strolled about the grounds, enjoying the beautiful view and handsome sunset, while the orchestra played in the building until 8:15. There were illuminations, and the affair closed with the return to the city on the 9:05 train of a happy and thoroughly delightful party. The use of the picturesque spot was given by Mr. Brown, whose generosity in providing the grounds for the picnic accommodations was fully appreciated by the members and those in charge. Many of the prominent members of the club, including some of the charter members, the club having been organized in 1907. The affair was strictly for club members.

Those who had charge of the outing and to whom the credit is due for the success of the affair were: E. R. E. Porter, chairman, Leonard P. Church, Louis R. Porteous and Will L. Stearns, the entertainment committee of the club.

STANDING OF DELEGATES TO REPUBLICAN CONVENTION. Hartford Papers Present Widely Varying Claims—Times Prints News Unbiased.

Inasmuch as both the candidates for the republican gubernatorial honors are well known to the city, the city are deep in the contest and their claims as to delegates differ widely. In re- sponse to a public call for information the Times had the following to say Friday evening:

There is a wide difference of opinion in regard to the standing of the delegates to the republican state convention. This is in no way surprising, inasmuch as the city is so large and the delegates are so numerous. One claim is that Goodwin leads, another is that Lake is far ahead of his rival. The Times prints the following: Lake 72, doubtful 12.

It is proper for the Times to state that the figures are based on the city either candidate. Either can be decisively defeated by ex-Chief Justice Simon E. Baldwin, and it is hoped the city will be able to accept the democratic nomination.

The figures published by the Times are as follows: Lake 72, doubtful 12. It is proper for the Times to state that the figures are based on the city either candidate. Either can be decisively defeated by ex-Chief Justice Simon E. Baldwin, and it is hoped the city will be able to accept the democratic nomination.

Montville Delegates for Lake. At 2 o'clock Friday afternoon the republicans in the town hall in Montville for a caucus. The meeting was well attended and the delegates were elected. The delegates are: Dan D. Home; congressional, Fred J. Hope, George N. Wood; senatorial, James H. Tinker, Fred J. Phillips. The state delegates are Lake men.

LAFAYETTE MAIN IN TROUBLE. Accused His Cousin This Time of Assaulting Him With an Axe.

Lafayette Main of North Stonington has been having a little trouble with his cousin Alonzo, who lives in Ledyard. Lafayette says that on Aug. 27, 1909, Alonzo refused to give him a promise. The cattle, which were owned by the latter, had been em- ployed for treating the property of the complainant. When the accused released the cattle, Lafayette remon- strated with him. The latter, however, paid no heed to his words and carried out his intention. In his complaint Lafayette stated that he was as- saulted with an axe by Alonzo.

Alonzo Main was arrested by Deputy Sheriff J. H. Tuttle on Tuesday afternoon. He was brought before Justice of the Peace G. A. Montgomery, who released him on the grounds of insufficient evidence.

A Royal Meal. Distance lends enchantment to the imagination as well as to the actual vision. This is especially true in the case of a royal meal. Some of the heresies of the realist might to a person of today bring disquiet and even disgust. Charles XII, of Sweden may claim the world's admiration as a military genius, but from the published description of the monarch, that gentleman would be anything but an agreeable addition to society. "He wears a black cravat, but the cape of the coat is always buttoned so closely that one cannot see it. He wears no ruffles and gloves and his hands are commonly heavily stained with blood. His shirt and wristbands are always dirty. His hair is long and curly, and he never combed it with his fingers. He begins dinner with a big piece of bread and butter, and then eats a napkin under his chin. Between every two bits of meat he eats bread, which he eats with his thumb. He is never more than a quarter of an hour at his meals, eats like a horse, and never speaks a word but 'single, double, and indeed, savoring of romance and knightly fashion!'"

Warlike Invention and the Cure. No sooner is a new weapon of offense designed than means of defense are organized. To meet dreadnoughts the United States has developed the submarine. To meet the submarine comes from Prussia that the fish guns designed to reach war balloons have been successful. In a recent war the United States developed a swiftly moving balloon. Frequently the gas bags were exploded and burned, and the balloons were destroyed. The invention seems to organize its own cure and the world may live in the hope that every new invention will have its own cure of general peace may be the mutual danger to combatants.—In- dianapolis News.

Incidents in Society.

Recent guests at the Kenyon House, Quonocottage were Mr. and Mrs. John Rock, Bruce Rogers, H. L. Rogers. Miss Emily Beckwith of Chicago, who with her sister Mrs. A. Beckwith during her vacation, returned on Thursday from a stay of several days in Boston.

FUNERALS. Mrs. Joseph Pierce. On Friday morning the funeral of Mrs. Joseph Pierce was held from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Robert Swain on Wauwogus Hill. The services were conducted at the grave in Preston City by Rev. F. A. Holden, pastor of the Preston City Congrega- tional church. Norwich, Preston and Lisbon relatives were in attendance and there was a number of floral forms. Shea & Burke had charge of the ar- rangements and the service resulted from a cerebral hemorrhage.

Mrs. Pierce was born in Lisbon, the daughter of Aaron and Lydia Mosch Stevens, September 26, 1825, being descended on her father's side of Lord Stevens of England, and on her mother's side of the family of the name of colonial history.

Previous to her marriage she resided in Lisbon but the greater part of her life was spent in North Stonington. For the past sixteen months, since the death of her husband, she has lived with her daughter. She was the last of her family. Besides her daughter, she had two sons, Charles P. Culver of Ashville, and two grand- daughters Mrs. Luella L. Eccleston and Mrs. Martin Lattimer of this city.

Her brother, Frank D., pastor here, was a great admirer of John Brown and was with him in the arsenal at Har- pers' ferry at the time of the attack, carrying a flag of truce he was shot and received a broken jaw. Mrs. Pierce's death was a great loss to the community, as she was a woman of noble effort and was greatly missed.

An Indirect Fatality. The bullet that was fired at Mayor Gaynor of New York killed the president of the world, President Montt was one of a party with Mayor Gaynor, both of these executive heads one of a South American republic and the other of the largest city in the western hemisphere on their way to Europe for recreation advised by the doctors. The president had been in poor health for a long time, and it was known that for his heart was in such bad shape that excitement might be fatal. A fatal end was caused by the shooting of the mayor, and death came a few days later after the president of Chili arrived in Europe. These are the only deaths of the consequences of a bullet fired in New York.

QUEEN IN WAR ON PLUMS. English Sovereign Fosters Bill Prohibiting Traffic in Birds.

The next session of parliament is likely to be influenced by an interesting debate on the plumage bill, introduced before the close of the last session. The bill, which is now before the House of Commons, is a measure to prohibit the sale of plumage birds, which are scarce in enormous numbers on the island of Fashion. The report that Queen Mary herself inspired the bill is sufficient to promise an active and successful campaign, since the great military establishments which have formerly opposed such measures are not likely to offer any opposition.

The Servant Girl Problem. Year after year girls from the country enter the cities and take positions in stores as clerks, or in factories as employees, or as "salesladies" or some other title that means nothing else than that they are in the city. As, indeed, we all are. The girl in the factory gets a meagre wage, generally, and has to spend her spare hours on board and lodging, and her economic position is not nearly so good as that of a faithful domestic, which she gets quite as large an actual wage, and in addition secures a good home, good food, and a regular employment. But the trouble is that the latter girl is a servant, and the sting of the name seems to outbalance all the advantages of place.

But if they only knew it, the girls who are seeking employment would, most of them, be much better off in domestic service than elsewhere. The servant's position, too, has greatly improved in recent years. Domestic service is coming to be something of a science. Yet girls will not fit themselves for it, though by so doing they could command higher wages than they get now, and could, by the quality of service they render, dignify it. If domestic servants could be made to realize that we are all servants, from the president of the United States down, that fact would go a long way toward the solution of the problem. But perhaps this is too much to expect. The problem comes about through false notions of dignity through the sense pride, and these are removed by education it seems likely that the servant girl problem will remain unsolved.—Washington Herald.

Greatest Hay Shortage. Bad weather during the hay season in Montana, Idaho and Oregon has resulted in the greatest shortage of hay known in the northwest. Only in the southwestern part of Washington is there a normal crop, and the price is soaring. There will be a crop of from 45,000 to 50,000 tons of timothy and wheat hay produced in Washington and Montana. The price in the "Pac" coast cities for timothy hay is $15 a ton. Immense quantities have been purchased by the government for the army and Alaska and the Philippines and this has delayed the supplies of last year. In Washington and Oregon the hay is being cut and stacked and the supply in this kind will be good. "Over- priced" hay is being sold at $20 a ton, and the coming winter for forage of the cheap- est hay will be almost prohibitive.
