HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER Agrees With Inspector Fitts That Hampton Road is Faulty.

Wednesday forenoon State Highway Commissioner James H. Macdonald was in Hampton looking over the two miles of state road from Clark's Corners to Hampton Hill lately finished by Contractor A. Vito. Inspector John H. Fitts, selectman of the town, who was appointed to look after the work by Commissioner Macdonald refused to accept the piece of road as perfect and notified Commissioner Macdonald to that effect. The commissioner Wednesday concurred with Inspector Fitts' opinion that there were some faulty places in the road that will be fixed by Contractor Vito. Mr. Fitts was tendered a compliment, the commissioner declaring that his observations were the best of any of the state inspectors this year.

Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock at St. Mary's church Rev. J. J. Papillon, the pastor, united in marriage George St. Pierre and Cecelia Lisee. Father Papillon was also the celebrant of the nuptial high mass. During the mass D. P. Comptons sang.

Francis St. Pierre of Fall River, Mass., a brother of the groom, and Peter Lisee, father of the bride, were the witnesses to the ceremony.

Following the services at the church a lunch was served at the home of the groom's parents on Main street. In the afternoon a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lisee, 221 Main street. At 5 o'clock dinner was served at the same place. Charles H. Lewis. Charles H. Lewis, aged 82, died on Tuesday evening at his home in South Windham of senility. Mr. Lewis had been in poor health for some time. He was a native of Hartford, the son of George Lewis, but had lived most of his life in South Windham, being employed for two score years by the Smith-Winchester company. For the past eleven years, because of advancing years and failing health, he had retired from active labor. There survive eight children.

Board of Selectmen Organizes. The newly elected board of selectmen met for organization Wednesday forenoon in the board rooms at the town building, after Mr. Larabee had taken the oath of office. The only business of importance done was the appointment of Attorney Thomas J. Kelley town counsel, to succeed Judge A. J. Bowen, who has been serving the town in that capacity for a number of years.

The board discussed the matter of roads, particularly the Windham and South Windham ones, and it is expected that the latter will be given early attention. There are no left-overs of any account from the old administration and the new board will not be hampered with any back work that has been left undone, but free to go right ahead with the current affairs as they come up.

Horses Slipped on Cobble. Wednesday afternoon one of Foley & Hunt's heavy truck wagons was heavily loaded, and as the driver of the pair of grays attached to the wagon tried to make the incline out of the alley between the evening Hardware company's building and the Union block on Main street the animals lost their footing on the cobble and slipped back, letting the forward wheels of the truck turn. This overturned the wagon in its descent and jammed it back into the point shop situated in the basement of the Union block. The point of the truck was given off short. The horses were not injured by their fall.

Business Changes. Watkins Bros. and James Harries, who at present occupy a store in the Kimble block on Main street, have leased the store in the Willimantic Savings Institute building until recently occupied by the local office of the American Express company and have moved to their new quarters about the first of November, or as soon as the store can be fitted up for them.

Gone to California. Charles E. Dungan and James Keating, two well known local young men, left on the 4.07 express Wednesday afternoon en route for Sacramento, Cal., where they contemplate spending the winter. Mr. Dungan served four years in the United States navy.

Briery, to confer with a committee from A. C. Tyler camp, No. 8, U. S. W. V., with reference to the latter sharing G. A. R. hall for a meeting place and to arrange for a night that will not conflict with the post's or Woman's Relief corps' meetings. The meeting of the two committees will depend upon the action of the electors of the town of Windham in town meeting assembled Saturday afternoon, at which time the matter will be voted upon.

When Whistler Was Real Mad. It has been said of Whistler, truly enough, that he was proud of the white plume in his black hair. But with his pride went, naturally, a certain sensitiveness. He wanted his little tuft of white treated with respect as a flag. It was sacred, as the white flag was to the Comte de Chambord. Most people respected Whistler's wish, but not all. I went one day to a lunch given by a lady whom her friends set up as a rival to Mrs. Langtry. It was a large party. When the ladies went upstairs most of them were hidden by their hostess to follow as soon as the first cigarette had been smoked. Whistler was not told; on the contrary, a man was asked to hold him in talk for ten minutes. Once in the drawing room, the hostess produced a number of white feathers, one of which she fastened into each man's hair, in front, where Whistler wore his. Then she marshaled her men in line, facing the door, and sent word to Whistler in the dining room that he was staying a long time and she would like him to come up. He obeyed, and when he opened the door of the drawing room found himself confronted with a line of black-hatted men, each decorated with a white plume in imitation of his own. His face turned red and then pale. He walked slowly past the line to the end where stood his hostess enjoying what she thought an innocent pleasant. But Whistler's expression had in it much more of tragedy than of comedy. "Ah, yes," he said, "very pretty, very pretty, indeed. To not one of you will I ever speak again." With that he turned his back on his hostess and her guests and marched out of the room, and down stairs, and out of the house. But his anger did not last.—George W. Smalley, in New York Tribune.
