

DEATH OF WILLIAM M'KEE
Oldest Mason in the State Passed Away from General
Breaking Down at the Age of 93—Has been Mason
Since 1840.

It will be with sincere regret that the legion of friends of William M'Kee, aged 93, the oldest Mason in the state, passed away from general breaking down at the age of 93—has been Mason since 1840.

WILLIAM M'KEE.

He was born in the town of Killaleigh, Ireland, July 19, 1818, being one of a large family. He came to this country in 1848 as a mule spinner and located in Rhode Island, where he lived four years before coming to this city, where he has since resided.

He was a member of the Second Congregational church and was one of the devoted and regular attendants, taking a deep interest in its welfare until within a few years, when his failing health made it necessary for him to forego his weekly attendance.

When a young man he always attended the communications and was an enthusiastic Mason. He was initiated in 1841 and would have taken the Scottish Rite degrees had there been any, but he knew nothing of them until he came to this country.

Mr. M'Kee was an interesting talker and always retained the many friendships which he made in his long career. He took great comfort in reading the Bible and possessed an excellent memory so that he could relate many of the passages. He retained all his faculties to the end and his end was peaceful. He led an exemplary life and was a worthy citizen in every respect.

He is survived by his son, with whom he lived, a granddaughter, Mrs. E. J. Jones, and two great-grandchildren, James Frederick and Gwendolyn Jones, all of this city.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock Monday morning at the residence of his son, James M'Kee, No. 77 Williams street, at 1143 o'clock Monday night. Mr. M'Kee had been sick for three weeks with bladder trouble and a general breaking down, death being due to his advanced age.

"Protestant Episcopal."

The clumsy method of voting in the general convention of the Episcopal church has again enabled a minority to prevent legislation desired by a majority. In the house of deputies the clergy and laity vote separately, and approval of each. This is all very well, but the delegates in each order from a diocese cast a single vote so that a divided diocese does not count in the result.

Volcanoes would seem to be arranged with more or less symmetry in belts circling the great oceans. A ring of fire surrounds the Pacific. Starting at the South Shetland Islands, several hundred miles south of Cape Horn, a belt of volcanoes extends up the west coast of South America, Central America and North America; from Alaska it crosses the Pacific along the Aleutian Islands to Kamchatka; thence it follows the east edge of the Pacific through the Kurile Islands, Japan, Formosa, the Philippines, the Moluccas, the Solomon Islands, the North Hebrides, New Zealand and finally ends in Mounts Terror and Erebus, on the Antarctic continent.

Mystery of the Sargasso Sea. "No steamship," says Thaddeus S. Dayton in Harper's Weekly, "could ever penetrate the Sargasso sea, that floating continent of yellow weeds, almost as large as the United States, lying in the middle Atlantic. The tangle of weed would choke its propeller and make it useless. The skipper of any sailing craft who runs his prow into this thick web of weed through any of the mischances of navigation is fortunate indeed if he escapes quickly. The Sargasso sea is baffling. It is not solid enough to walk upon nor firm enough to permit the navigation of a boat. Whoever falls into it is drowned forthwith. The clinging weed grasps and holds and makes the stoutest swimmer powerless."

Comes That Way. A young minister who was naturally of a shy disposition was rather embarrassed at his first marriage ceremony and unwittingly reversed the usual order of the service, thus making the bridegroom promise to love and obey his blushing bride. The error passed unnoticed at the time, but shortly afterward it dawned upon the father of the bride that a mistake had occurred, and he said to the minister: "I believe, Mr. —, you have made John promise to love and obey my daughter. Ah, well," he added after a pause and with a sly look at his better half, "I suppose it won't matter much. It generally comes to that anyway."

The superintendent was talking to the little ones about the plagues of Egypt. "Now," said she, "can you tell me what the plagues were?" There were prompt answers, and all but one of the plagues were named. The last one was too much for the school. Thinking to help out the children by suggestion, the superintendent said: "Don't you remember the other? Of course, you know what Job had." A little hand went up. "Well, Tommy, what was it?" "Patience," he was given a "reward of merit."

"How's the baby getting on?" asked a family friend. "Growing bigger and stronger every day, I suppose." "He's growing bigger every day," said the proud father, "and he's plenty strong enough now to suit me. You remember what a tremendous voice he had when you saw him three months ago? Well, it's still more tremendous now, yet he lifts it a dozen times a day."

INDIAN ASSOCIATION MET WITH MISS HUNTINGTON.

Interesting Papers on Different Tribes and the Work Among Them.

An interesting meeting of the Indian association was held on Monday afternoon at the home of Miss Mary L. Huntington of Broadway. Mrs. F. E. Dove presided and the usual reports were given. A letter from Mrs. Kinney outlined the year's work undertaken by the state society among the Onondaga Indians in Wisconsin. Miss Taylor's account of the Indian conference held this summer in California and of conditions and needs of the Californian Indians was read. This told also of plans for a new industrial school. Miss Anderson, the Indian girl whom the association is helping at Hampton, gave a well written account of her summer in New York state, her teacher, Miss Briggs, adding a few words of her work in the marriage of Carlotta, whom the association helped two years ago. An interesting account of the life of the Pueliches by Clifton Johnson gave descriptions of a visit to Acuna in New Mexico, the most interesting of all the Pueblo villages. The village itself and daily life of its 500 people were fully pictured. Brief mention from the Indian friend was made of the enlightened condition of the Indians at an early date, they having made a treaty with King George II of England before our nation was formed, of the Winnebago Indian who was the first Indian to graduate from Yale recently and several other items relating to various Indian tribes.

CASHIER BARKER RESIGNS.

Bad Judgment the Cause for the Board of Directors Acting. Frank E. Barker on Monday tendered his resignation as cashier of the New London City National bank, a position he had held many years. He has been connected with the bank twenty-five years. The resignation was asked for by the board of directors and accepted. Mr. Barker has been the treasurer of the board of school visitors, Monday morning President Stanton appointed Carlos Barry to serve in the position in place of Mr. Barker until a successor is chosen. Mr. Barker was said to be ill, following the action of the board of directors. He is a native of Connecticut, of the notable staff, he left Monday for Williamstown to spend a few days at his cottage there.

Secured Much Game. Peter Selas has returned to his home in this city after a successful hunting trip through the country round about Litchfield. He reports a most enjoyable time and succeeded in bagging fifteen rabbits, twelve squirrels and seven different species of birds. While away he expressed to his partner, Peter Bissenden, a box containing ten partridges, which were received Saturday night.

Feminine Unrest. Some of the various views of the Feminine Unrest are novel. Some of the women who attempt to explain it are sure that the only real unrest is due to the fact that the sex has become enlightened and is eager to obtain "rights." And with all this there remains a perplexing uncertainty as to what the "rights of women" may be. A woman in Danielson, Connecticut, wrote to the New York Tribune the other day in emphatic string of a grievance. She is annoyed because men will not smoke in public places. She was annoyed much on the deck of a steamer returning from Europe, and she added that "it is equally true that we women have no rights in our American hotels. Men are provided with magnificent smoking rooms, but they charge for the use of the whole hotel, even the dining room. It cannot be denied that there is some justice in the complaint, yet it is hard to suggest an equitable remedy. It is difficult to preserve the "rights" of some without interfering with the "rights" of others. The Danielson lady says that it is the fault of women because they do not demand a higher standard in men. She actually saw a number of American girls smoking cigarettes in the palm garden at Tour and at the Carlton hotel in London. "If American smokers do not wish their daughters to smoke, they must wake up and insist that their own sex show some consideration of the rights of women."—Providence Journal.

AT THE AUDITORIUM.

Vaudeville and Motion Pictures.

The Auditorium had its most enthusiastic crowd of the season on Monday, each of the four vaudeville numbers sharing in the applause, but the lion's share going to the musical farce Cafe De L'Bovery. This is the act that came here two weeks ago, walked right in, and turned around in a very short time. The Auditorium management had them back and with them Ren Shields, the author of the farce. Johnny McVeigh, waiter in a restaurant on the Bowery, is the particular spotlight absorber, who supplies a hit in every line, capably aided by the other members of the production. They are all the right people in the right places. Many cheers with his musical dining table is another act on the bill, and makes a hit for its novelty and the clever manipulation of the table fixtures to produce melody. Some of the same crowd in the audience produced by Clayton and Remie, who also win for their vocal numbers and make their turn at favorite time. Benson and Bell, as the dancer and the dupe, have a pretty turn, featuring some graceful toe dancing with beautiful costumes, and a talking imitation of an English street door chaffer. Rounding out the well balanced bill is a pleasing lot of cameragraphs.

Open-air Treatment. Time was when doctors used to bleed and emaciate patients and thus make them weaker and more emaciated. In those same "good old days" consumptives were kept in close unventilated rooms, and slowly pined to death by misdirected kindness. And in that same era schoolchildren who lacked muscle and strength, and were less vigorous and healthy than their fellows were coddled at home, and in school were kept near the hot stoves and away from every draft of wind. The British statesman, in the atmosphere of the ordinary schoolroom which had been breathed over and over again by all the other scholars in the same room. Every evening, however, health was closed against them, and most of them died.

This is Official. It is announced in several New York papers, on reliable authority, that Senator Root is to become a Justice of the supreme court. It is to be hoped that "the reliable authority" quoted is more reliable on other matters, for he is wholly in the wrong in this case. The president is not considering Senator Root for the supreme court, and has never considered him in connection with the two appointments now to be made. The new chief justice will certainly be less than 60 years of age, for President Taft unquestionably plans to appoint someone who can give efficient service to his country for the next decade or more at the latest probable estimate. It may be taken for granted that Senator Root will give his best advice, or that he already has done so, in connection with the supreme court appointments; but he himself is not on the list of possible nominees.—Boston Advertiser.

As a means of identification, should they stray away, the children in a New York institution of deaf mutes are tattooed with their names and addresses on an ink being used that wears off after a year or two.
