MAYOR FISHER'S OPINION

Mayor Fisher of Middletown, it will be remembered, did not think that the selection of Judge Baldwin for the governorship was a wise one.

"I do not believe that any political observer can yet make an accurate and confident forecast."

"Now and then one may observe here the stirrings of that new progressive spirit which has done so much to tear down and clear ground in other states; but, on the whole, there is no indication that Connecticut is deeply moved. She is likely once more to justify her well established reputation as quite the most conservative of the States, quite the most difficult to move or awaken politically."

From this it is to be seen that Mayor Fisher has not really changed his mind, and is a little more careful about the way he clothes his opinions in the midst of the campaign. It is doing no injustice to him to say that he indicates that he is expecting the republicans to carry the state in the same old way regardless of the disappointments which are too apparent to be denied.

WHY JUDGE BALDWIN VOTED FOR BRYAN

The Hartford Times is authority for the statement that in his Hartford speech Judge Baldwin said that "in the past ten years he had voted for a democratic candidate for president with whom he did not agree on a number of matters, but had voted for him because the candidate stood for the principles of the party."

The Bulletin quotes this as an example of the kind of a partisan Judge Baldwin is, and to show that his rational actions as a democrat is worthy of emulation by republicans. Voters should not let personalities and prejudices prevent them from voting for the candidate with whom they believe in, and which will be overturned if their irrational action is successful. Stated plainly, Judge Baldwin voted for Bryan because he was a democrat and he did not believe in republican policies; and he will not stand for the republican policies now being enforced by Taft and a republican congress.

When it comes to what he would do with reference to corrupt practice laws, it should be remembered that the republicans have been making corrupt practice laws for years, while their opponents have just been talking about them. There is nothing in democratic policies that can make a disgruntled republican feel better. A democratic victory is something no true republican has ever learned to cheer over.

CANDIDATE GOODWIN'S VISIT

Charles A. Goodwin, the republican candidate for governor of Connecticut, is to make his first formal visit to Norwich as a campaigner on Wednesday of this week and the republicans are preparing to give him a right royal reception. Those who are personally acquainted with the candidate speak in the highest terms of his fine personal qualities, and the press, however he has spoken, is giving him the finest thing about his campaigning is the fair way and the frank manner in which he talks up public issues and refrains from unseasonably making personal attacks on those in the field in opposition to him.

Mr. Goodwin does not qualify upon the plank in the republican platform, but stands for every one of them unreservedly; and while Judge Baldwin does not approve a public utilities bill that includes the railroads, Candidate Goodwin says "The people of the state demand adequate supervision of public service corporations along the line laid down in New York and Massachusetts, where the railroads are included, and that they will not be satisfied with any less than a complete test of the public utility involved, and this, of course, is what he stands for."

The republicans will welcome him to the city and give him the hearing and the support which is his due.

JUDGE BALDWIN'S LOCALIZED ADDRESS

Judge Baldwin made a neat address in Town hall on Friday evening, and it was an honor to Norwich that his ancestors were numbered among the farmers of Bean Hill in olden times, and it awakens in our hearts all the more interest in him, which was the purpose of the presentation of this little incident of life. Norwich can point with pride to Judge Baldwin, as it could to Grover Cleveland, and that does not appear to be a good reason why the city should bestow upon him the major vote on November 8th.

The judge is quoted as having said: "With this noble river involved, and from the South, Norwich ought to have ships sailing in every sea. There was a time when here, at the Landing, as it was called in my great-grandfather's day, foreign vessels were begun and ended. It had a foreign trade that was worth something. It could have it now were it not for bad laws made and kept on the statute books by the majority that has long been in power in the nation. Connecticut used to be, before the republican party was put in control, an exporting and importing state, in her own ships."

This sounds good, and we should rejoice to strive for this backward step if the old-time methods did not have to come with it. It is a matter of history that the civil war period resulted in the destruction of our merchant marine, a period produced by democratic misrule, and the modern concentration of business which has resulted in the discontinuance of many custom houses at minor ports, shows that something besides bad law has assisted in the destruction of foreign trade on the Thames river and other rivers of New England. This matter has nothing whatever to do with state issues and the state legislature has nothing to do with attempting to make things different. Grover Cleveland, whose ancestors made clocks at Bean Hill, was twice president of the United States, and neither he nor his party made any attempt to repeal the bad laws or to do anything special for river, which he actually admitted with Judge Baldwin, doubtless, because it was the waterway to the ancient town in which the old "Bevived household" stood. The Bulletin has long stood for a revival of the merchant marine, but it doesn't expect to urge a revival of some obsolete capital sees that it can be made operable. We should all rejoice, of course, to see that day.

Woman in Life and in the Kitchen

LITTLE DETAILS OF DRESS. Pur as a finish to the tops of one's boots is a fad of the hour.

Uncurled ostrich feathers in black, white and colors are modish. Jackets shorter than those of last winter are returning to favor.

Very large buttons are the fastenings on the blanket motor coats. Many of the patent leather belts are narrower than earlier in the season.

Velveted and velvets are seen in a wide variety of checks, plaids and stripes. Handles of wood, with a little silver inlay, are very smart on the new umbrellas.

Large buckles are seen on the wide bands of lace or satin, which "band" in some of the evening gowns.

Many a leather handbag is like its silk or satin sister, furnished with a cord rather than a metal or leather handle.

Wide large and small hats are to be worn, one rule prevails: The hat with a wide brim has a low crown, the larger one-brimmed hat has a high crown.

The rage for net-covered articles of one's wardrobe reaches literally from top to top, for not only are hats veiled, but other accessories are enhanced by net covering.

Lace dyed to match the material of the gown will be much used for trimming this fall.

Slippers braided in souches of self-color are effective when harmonized with one's gown.

A Tasty Vegetable Dish. A tasty vegetable dish may be made from a little left-over cauliflower. Boil a few onions, break up the cauliflower, mix well and serve hot with a cream sauce.

To Restore Black Goods. Sponge black worsted goods on the right side with a strong tea made of the leaves and press on the wrong side. This process will restore crispness.

A Gift for the Baby. A blue silk kimono is a pretty gift for the baby. It has an embroidered edge and tiny embroidered flowers.

Baked Smelts. Put the cleaned smelts into a buttered baking dish, sprinkle with chopped parsley and mushroom and season with salt, pepper and grated nutmeg. Pour over a half cupful of white wine or a half cupful of cream sauce, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and bake. Squeeze lemon juice over the top of the dish before serving.

Orange Fritters. To the beaten yolks of three eggs beat in a cupful of milk, a scant teaspoonful of sugar, a little salt and two small cupfuls of flour sifted twice with a heaping teaspoonful of baking powder. Beat all with an egg-beater, adding last the whites of the three eggs, beaten stiff. Have ready half a dozen oranges, peeled and divided into sections. Dip each section into the batter and fry in olive oil or deep fat. Sprinkle with confectioner's sugar and serve piping hot.

Banana and Orange Dessert. Peel the rich red bananas and slice in six pieces. Cut juicy mellow oranges in layers and alternate the fruit with powdered sugar, placing all in a glass bowl. Dress with a sprinkling of sherry wine.

Fried Salt Pork and Creamed Sweet Potatoes. Fry salt pork and arrange in layers on a large warm plate. Sprinkle with bits of parsley. Take sweet potatoes, baked, and press the sides together a little behind in reaching Norwich may be taken as an omen that he may be the same on the evening of November 8th.

AFTER SUFFERING FOR YEARS Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Park Rapids, Minn.—"I was sick for years while passing through the Change of Life and was hardly able to be around. After taking six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I gained 50 pounds, am now able to do my own work and feel well."

Mrs. R. KINROSS, Brookville, Ohio.—"I was irregular and extremely nervous. A neighbor recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and I have become regular and my nerves are much better."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drug, and it may hold the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass. From women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion, and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you want special advice write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. It is free and always helpful!

efforts at self-control in small expenditures, so that eventually it becomes a habit.

Mustard Pickle. One quart each of small cucumbers and sliced green tomatoes, one pint of small onions, two heads of cauliflower, cut in small pieces, two large peppers chopped fine; let stand in a weak brine 24 hours; drain and cut in thin slices; mix with vinegar, salt and sugar; add a little water until tender, then drain and put into jar. Pour over them a dressing made as follows: One cup each of flour and ground mustard, one and a half cupfuls of sugar, one ounce each of black pepper, mustard seed and turmeric, two and half quarts of vinegar. Cook till flour is well done.

Rice Cream. Put one-half cup of rice over the fire in cold water and let boil five minutes; drain, rinse and drain again, then cook with a quart of milk and three-quarters of a cup of sugar and let cool; beat together the yolks of six eggs and a cup of sugar, dilute with a little hot cream, return to the fire and let thicken a little, stirring constantly; pass through a sieve on to the rice, mix carefully and freeze as ice cream; add a pint or more of preserved peaches or other fruit, and serve in a mold, covered to avoid the entrance of salt water and let stand in brine equal measures of salt and ice about two hours; serve with a cold sauce made of equal parts of peach marmalade syrup and marmalade.

Shoe Bags. A good idea for traveling or when staying at home is to have small bags of different colors or patterns in which to place the evening shoes and stockings which accompany each dress, the bag, of course, being placed in the same box, bureau drawer, tray or compartment as the dress in question.

A Needlework Hint. When drawing threads for drawn work, if the worker will first draw the center thread in the space to be drawn, she will find that the other threads can be drawn in couples, on either side of the space. This method will save both time and labor.

Fried Oysters. Fried oysters will take on quite a different flavor if mayonnaise is substituted for the beaten egg generally used. Drain the oysters and then lay for a cloth, patting out all extra moisture. Dip each oyster in crumbs, then in the mayonnaise, and again in the crumbs. Then fry as ordinarily in deep fat.

few others would be sold. In the saving of time, trouble and labor and in superior cooking ability, no other range can compare with them.

The Single Damper (patented) is the only perfect fire and oven control; one motion—slide the knob to "kindle," "bake" or "check," and the range does the rest.

The Two Hods in the base (patented) is a wonderful trouble-saving feature. One Hod for ashes, instead of the old, clumsy ash pan; the other Hod for coal.
