- REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET. Election Tuesday, Nov. 8th. For Governor, CHARLES A. GOODWIN of Hartford.

WHAT CANDIDATE GOODWIN HAS TO SAY. There has been such a drift of slander in the present campaign that Charles A. Goodwin, the republican candidate for governor, determined to talk to his home people at Hartford upon the issue of corruption which was alleged to have taken place in the republican state convention, and to present his version of the meeting.

WHAT CANDIDATE GOODWIN HAS TO SAY. Judge Baldwin, referring to me, after pretending to clear me from any intentional wrongdoing said: "He may be an unscrupulous and night-bawled party politician and political boss, but he has been kept fully ignorant on these points, but fellow citizens, it would seem to me that one heading the state ticket ought to know what every one else knows or, if he believes that cannot know, he is to be pitied for taking steps looking to an investigation into their truth."

MORTALITY AMONG MINERS. During the year 1909 there were 2,012 miners killed in the coal mines and 7,675 injured. In the coal and metal mines it is estimated that 2,000 men were killed and 7,000 were injured in 1909. For every 1,000 men employed, from three to five men are killed each year in the mines of the United States.

A BURNING ERUPTION FROM HEAD TO FEET. "Four years ago I suffered severely with a terrible eruption, being a mass of sores from head to feet and for six weeks confined to my bed. During that time I suffered continual torture from itching and burning. After being given the Cuticura Remedies, after the first bath with Cuticura Soap and application of Cuticura Ointment I enjoyed the first good sleep during my illness. I also used Cuticura Resolvent and the treatment was continued for about three weeks. At the time I was able to be about the house, entirely cured, and have felt no ill effects since. I would advise any person suffering from any form of skin trouble to try the Cuticura Remedies as I know what they did for me. Mrs. Edward Neuning, 1112 Salina St., Watertown, N. Y., Apr. 11, 1909." For remedies, see bottle.

people of Hartford that my work in public life, whether I am elected governor or not, will continue to be in opposition to corrupt methods of every kind. I have had some experience in state matters, but this has been my first state campaign, and the conditions of a century are not changed in a night. If in my work in Hartford there has been an earnest of larger possibilities, at least weigh carefully what I have told you this evening, for this is not campaign talk, but my own personal feeling, expressed to you with all sincerity.

Mr. Goodwin, in his Norwich address declared his faith in the honor and integrity of the republican nominee, and when his audience showed evidence of accepting his statements as truthful, he affirmed in all candor that "Mr. Goodwin, he believed, was too much of a gentleman to countenance the corrupt practices reported to have taken place in the republican convention. In view of this, the later reference to Mr. Goodwin's stupidity with reference to these practices does not increase his opponent's reputation as a gentleman."

NORWICH HEARD FROM. A former Norwich man, who was amused by The Bulletin's reference to the selection of Norwood, Mass., as a trial town for a postal savings bank, calls our attention to the fact that it is a live and progressive place.

EDITORIAL NOTES. The weather as far south as Atlanta has a Christmas twang in it, says The Constitution of that city. A Kansas candidate for office is Dr. O. L. Need. The name may seem like a joke, but the doctor is not. The reason some people die poor is because they lose so much time during their lives in keeping run of their neighbors.

WHAT IS NEEDED AT HARTFORD. The fact that George R. Chandler is arming the truth for the information of the voters in a form which impresses the masses, is the reason he is being assailed by every demagogic speaker in the state. These are the demagogues who made in his address at Danbury: "This switching of the campaign," continued the speaker, "from the public utilities bill and the employers' liability bill—issues—to the ghost of state rights and the scare-crowd 'new nationalism,' will not do. I heard Judge Baldwin speak for nearly an hour in the Foot Guard hall in the city of Hartford the other night, without uttering a word concerning his own party platform or the issue for which the business men and wage earners have been fighting during the past two years. In the city of Norwich, an evening or so afterwards, Judge Baldwin framed a brand-new set of issues, leaving these questions out in the cold. I stick to the big issues and business men of Connecticut. Watch out! Stay to your fight! Remember your old friend! Remember where George Lilley stood on your legislation when you needed friends. Remember where Charles A. Goodwin stood when you needed friends. Remember where his cousin, Senator Walter Goodwin, stood. Remember where some of the rest of us stood. Remember that we republicans did this without having been asked to do it, and that is absolutely the first time in the state of Connecticut that the republican party ever has promised this legislation and remember, too, that the democrats of Connecticut did promise to support it in the 1908 platform and then went back on their promise, as the journals of their last house and senate will show."

There doesn't appear to be anything here but the truth, and considering the character of it, perhaps it is not surprising that it excites the demagogue.

Be Warned in Time. The Thompsonville Press makes the following pertinent inquiry: "Why isn't more being done in the vital matter of instructing the voters in regard to the use of the new form of ballot? Does not the experience at the town elections demand such instruction? Why not, indeed? Here is the Norwich Standard's answer: "There was such an enormous crop of corn this year that it behooved the hog raiser to feed his stock almost exclusively on corn, though in normal years hogs have been largely dependent upon it. As a result of the corn diet, the hogs have grown to unusual sizes. And here is where the question of bacon and the price of bacon comes in. It seems that a hog must not weigh more than 150 to 175 pounds if he is to yield the best grade of bacon. According to the expert whose figures and facts we are taking into consideration, the hog that weighs 200 to 250 pounds, that is to say, the hogs

THE BULLETIN'S DAILY STORY

PERFECT LADY

"I noticed your advertisement for a competent girl for general housework," said the damsel with a large red hat, "and I thought I'd drop in and see if the place suited me." "I do need a girl," said Mrs. Griggs, "and I am willing to pay unusually high wages, but I must have just the right sort of a girl. She must be industrious and polite, and a good cook and willing to do light washing and ironing and take care of the children. I ask a good deal, but I am willing to pay for it."

There were 1,169 voters cast at the city polls. Of these 43 are admitted by both sides the Australian ballot had no mark at the head of the column, as the law plainly requires, and others had no marks anywhere. Of the 1,129 others 84 are in dispute. That disposes of so many. Then there is a bunch where the ends of the crosses which had been marked in the effect of the kind of treatment they showed no more knowledge of it than of Australia itself. Here are some of the "Norwalk developments."

LIFTING THE PRICE OF BACON. And the Reason Given for Doing It. It does not take much to advance a price every little while, and an explanation of the recent increase in the price of bacon illustrates the point surprisingly. The price of bacon, as the public has already discovered, has gone up as much as five cents on the pound, where the best grade is concerned, and almost as much on the lower grades. Here is an explanation that has been offered by a man who has his being in a bacon atmosphere:

THE DEFENSE IN A SUNDAY HUNTING CASE IN MASSACHUSETTS came before the court and pleaded that it was healthier hunting on Sunday than sleeping in church, and the judge gave the hunters as heavy a fine as if the remark had been personal.

which should have weighed but half that much, or thereabouts, for bacon's sake. And so, according to our truthful authority, there is a scarcity in AI bacon, and the price has had to be advanced five cents per pound. Also, according to this bacon expert, this is the time of the year that vegetarians do to bacon. Now that the season of fruits and vegetables has passed, bacon comes in handy.

GOODWIN TO CHASE. Replies to a Recent Attack in New Haven. Charles A. Goodwin has written the following letter to P. W. Chase of New Haven, and it appeared in the Register of Saturday evening: To the Hon. P. W. Chase, New Haven, Conn.: Dear Sir—I have received a copy of the New Haven Register under date of Oct. 29, containing an open letter to me from you. I do not recall even claiming, publicly or privately, that the man named George Lilley has fallen upon me. Had I not agreed with Governor Lilley in substance as to the measures he desired to advocate, I should not have been his executive secretary. J. Pierpont Morgan is my first cousin once removed; he is also probably a friend of Mr. Morgan's, but I do not know him. You say in your letter: "Now, sir, in view of the fact that you are a relative of Mr. Morgan, it is not surprising that you should not make reckless assertions of this kind without giving the source of your information. Nevertheless, I will say that if Mr. Morgan had been in the city of Hartford on the day of the convention, he would have been there for a lawful purpose, absolutely disconnected with my campaign. I am sorry that you who pretend to be a friend of George Lilley and a republican, are lending your assistance to a campaign of misrepresentation which was only surpassed by the campaign against him. I should not have taken the trouble to have answered your letter, except that you made a definite allegation of fact, which I know is untrue. I am always willing to answer representations of fact; I am unwilling to answer such reckless rumors as have been circulated by those opposed to my candidacy. As you chose the medium of a newspaper to communicate with me, I am doing the same. Yours truly, CHARLES A. GOODWIN."

As a Pa He Doesn't Shine. There may be some family reason to explain the attack of George B. Chandler's father, but there is nothing in the letter to justify its publication. It is most driveling. We are not filled with admiration for George B. Chandler's work in this campaign, and are distrustful of his disinterestedness, but he is about the best spellbinder the republicans have and is carrying the burden of the republican battle in a capable way. His prominence in public life during the past two years has been great and creditable enough to deserve the alliance of some of our members of the family who may differ with him. So far as his public career goes, he has done nothing that would merit such humiliation. There are good examples to follow in cases of this kind, where the inferior members of the family have yielded, not their principles, but the aggressive public expression of them in submission to the superior claims of the more active and distinguished member. Mr. Chandler's father's letter ought to win sympathy for him if not for his cause.—Waterbury American.
