At First Congregational Church After Address by Rev. R. H. Potter and Judge A. L. Coit.

The informal social gathering for men at the First Congregational church Tuesday evening proved a great success. Between 80 and 100 men practically all from the city, were present. Rev. William S. Beard, pastor of the church, greeted the men cordially. He explained the purpose of the meeting and introduced as the speaker of the evening Rev. Rockwell Harmon Potter of the First Church of Christ, Hartford, Conn. The Rev. Mr. Potter delivered an exceptionally fine address, likening the church to a corporation with its many ramifications. His comparisons were well made and many of the men who were privileged to hear him must of necessity have been greatly broadened and clarified. The necessity for such a church was emphasized. He said: "The mission of the church in the world is the protection of Jesus in the world. The church is nothing more or less than a corporation, and the minister is the superintendent. It has its charter, but that is void unless all in the church live up to it. He told of the great work that education of all kinds was doing, but said that the knowledge of whence we came and whither we were going was the most important education of all and that that was the sort of education taught by the church. He said that a teacher could not teach his pupils unless he loved him and told of the success of Jesus, which was directly attributed to the fact that he loved those with whom he walked and talked. He said that the mission of the church is to keep doing good as did Jesus. Three things enter into most of our motives for doing good, and result of which the motive is usually the best of all. The business of the corporation as exemplified in the church is to do good as did Jesus. He said that the best departments of the corporation is the making of boys into men, and this is about the biggest business in the world as there is plenty of work to be done. Judge Coit heard.

Rev. Mr. Beard next introduced Judge A. L. Coit of New London, who is president of the National Congregational Brotherhood. Judge Coit traced the rapid growth of the brotherhood and told of the great work that was being done all over the country. He mentioned the big busy men everywhere who are vitally interested in the grand work of the brotherhood. He said that the movement had been started well its future was assured. He said that the best of all branches might be organized in this city.

Enthusiasm Manifested.

Rev. Mr. Beard then outlined his plan for a local organization, and a provisional committee was called upon those present to signify by arising if they would join such an organization. If one was formed in this city, and practically every man present, which was sufficient proof of the interest manifested in the movement to reduce the church's care. The type of the brotherhood is so broad as to take in any man over 20 years of age who is at all inclined Congregationally.

Officers Chosen.

Various men present responded with a word of encouragement when called upon and great enthusiasm prevailed throughout the evening. This committee was made up of the following: H. R. Chappell, J. P. Bath and Ashton C. Parsons. The list as submitted: President, W. E. Harkness; vice president, H. R. Chappell; secretary, E. L. Smith; treasurer, Herbert D. Pollard, and at one time the various sub-committees were named. The meeting Friday evening at the home of Mr. Beard to arrange for another meeting of the brotherhood organized Tuesday evening.

With the close of December, 1910, the Willimantic Savings Institute closed the most successful year's business in its entire history.

Addressed Junior Brotherhood.

Tuesday evening in the parish house of St. Paul's Episcopal church William R. Harrington, department quartermaster of the United Spanish War Veterans, delivered an address to the Junior Brotherhood of St. Andrew. The speaker took as a theme his personal experiences in Cuba, the Philippines and China during the Philippine and Chinese insurrections incident thereto. The pathetic story of the storming of the village of Manilla by the allied armies of the world, when the American flag was firmly planted on high, was a peculiarly significant object lesson for the boys, but was not one whit less effective than the salient remarks on temperance that Mr. Harrington emphasized as essential in a good soldier, and the close of the talk the boys adjourned to the floor and were shown a few pointed rifles and a manual of arms by Mr. Harrington.

Miss Ruhama Hubbard Burned to Death—Houses Consumed With Contents, Probably Money—Woman Who Claimed $1,000 in Norwich Bank.

Wednesday morning about 10:30 o'clock, as Miss Hubbard was walking to her home in South Killingly, he discovered smoke coming from the house. Hurrying to get assistance from a nearby house, he and Mr. Dutton broke in the door and entered the house. The house was a one-story frame structure, was entirely consumed, there being no visible means of fighting a fire in that village. The theory is advanced that Miss Hubbard, residing alone, was about to start the kitchen fire with kerosene when her clothing became afire and then that the building caught. Evidence at the scene shows that she had managed to drag herself to the door. Miss Hubbard had lived in this house for some fifteen years. She was daughter of Jeremiah Hubbard, who at one time owned a sawmill in this town. She was a widow and had a comfortable bank account. Some time ago a Norwich bank advertised for claimants to a certain account on deposit in the institution amounting to about $1,000 and Miss Hubbard eventually secured possession of this. Several years ago Miss Hubbard suffered from a mental trouble but had fully recovered from the attack. People who are familiar with her habits are led to believe that no doubt some money was in the house at the time of the fire, as she always did her work in the kitchen. The burned body was taken to the undertaking rooms of L. E. Kennedy Wednesday noon.
