Woman Causes Much Excitement in Montville Until She Was Quieted Down.

An exciting time was experienced Monday afternoon by the selectmen of Montville and other townspeople through the actions of a woman, who appeared to be mentally unbalanced. The woman made her appearance at the office of Palmer Bros. Co. about noon and asked to see the bookkeeper, Frank H. Rogers met her and she made a demand that she should see the books and payroll of the company. This being unusual, Mr. Rogers wanted to know why, and was told it was none of his business. She also refused to give her name. Suspecting the woman was "Neranged," Mr. Rogers called Constable Michael J. Hickey, and finally the woman left the mill premises, going towards the C. M. Robertson Co's mill, where she made a similar demand. She was urged from that mill, and again tried to make trouble at Palmer Bros' office. With difficulty she was persuaded to leave. She then proceeded to hold an interview with the board of selectmen, being together on another matter, being notified of the occurrence, and, accompanied by Constable Michael J. Hickey, boarded Selectman Burchard's auto and started in pursuit. The woman was overtaken near the Thomas Doyle place in Pequot. Constable Hickey stepped out and asked for information about her. She stated that she was indignant at being accosted and showed fight. She was overpowered in as gentle a manner as possible and taken in the auto to a doctor's office nearby. He decided that she was mentally unbalanced, at least for the time. The selectmen then took her to another doctor, and by that time she seemed to calm down a little, and the doctor was able to obtain some information about her. She stated that she was related to the Phillips family in Norwich and also to Crouch family in Groton or Ledyard. Her name, which she gave reluctantly, was stated as Lydia Rockwell. She further stated that she had some relationship to John N. Griswold, who lives just beyond the city line in Broad street, New London, and that she had worked there at one time. The selectmen decided to take her to Mr. Griswold's home, and after some delay that family consented to care for her for the present.

FRIENDLY SUIT TO DETERMINE OWNERSHIP.
Several Claimants for Estate of Horace Randall Sistrare.

William B. Coit of New London has brought suit against Mathilde von Ebert Sistrare and others, claiming that the defendants are claimants against the estate of Horace Randall Sistrare, of which the plaintiff is executrix, he required to interplead together concerning their claims to said property. Upon delivering the same to such person as the court shall order the plaintiff be discharged from all liability to any of the defendants in relation thereto. The plaintiff has $4,100 in his possession and the judgment of the court is for $5,995.03 and $177.58 costs to Mathilde von Ebert Sistrare, Julia E. Sistrare and the attorneys also have a claim.

Divorce Suit.
Mrs. Beattie Bolton King of Ocean avenue, New London, has brought suit for divorce from her husband, Joseph King a brakeman in the employ of the New Haven road. Papers have been served. Mrs. King asks for separation on the grounds of desertion. They have one child by their union, a boy 4 years old. King and his wife, Mrs. Beattie Bolton King, were married about five years ago, and since that time Mrs. King claims, her husband has done little towards her support. About a year after their wedding he deserted her.

Surveying New Road.
The Montville board of selectmen, with surveyors from Norwich, went over the proposed layout of the new road from the turnpike to Kitemaug. The selectmen indicated the direction suggested as mutually agreeable to the owners of the land and the board, and left the surveyors to complete the work. This will occupy several days, after which the selectmen will be able to give a report to the town.

A direct through freight service by rail has been inaugurated between Montville on the Pacific Ocean and Ocean on the Black Sea.

APPLICATION FOR CONFIRMATION OF SALE.
Heard Before Judge Platt Concerning Mystic Property.

Some peculiar phases of the manner in which the property of the Gilbert Transportation company of Mystic was sold at public auction, by order of the United States court, which delegates that the sale be made, by Robert Perkins of Norwich, were brought out at a hearing before Judge James P. Platt in the court Monday at Hartford, by L. M. Daggett, counsel for the bondholders' committee. Ex-State Senator Frank S. Butterworth is receiver of the property, and he was represented by J. S. Fullman of Bridgeport, who seemed to be only interested as a passive listener to the details of the auction sale as drawn out by counsel for the bondholders' committee. The hearing was on an application for the confirmation of the sale.

An Active Agent.
In his preliminary statement, Mr. Daggett said he wished to show while Mr. Perkins was an officer of the court deputized to make the sale, he also was interested in buying in the property, and his brother Donald was an active agent in the purchase, as he did the bidding. He said that after Robert had announced the terms of the sale and made it clear that what was to be sold was the equity in the property over and above a mortgage of $30,000 held by the Mariners' Savings bank, the bidding opened in the presence of 50 or more persons, and Donald G. Perkins bid $5,000. Another man bid $10,000, and Donald G. Perkins $10,500, and the other man who was W. L. Main, a grocerman of Mystic, bid $11,000.

Robert Perkins swung his arm twice and had gotten to the third and last call announcement, when the highest bidder, Mr. Main, said: "I bid on here. I want some information. What I want to know is, am I buying this whole property free and clear of all encumbrances?"

brothers had a conference, at the conclusion of which Robert Perkins announced that Mr. Main had made his bid under an advertisement and all bids were called off, and they would start over again. Donald G. Perkins offered $2,000. A man named Bacon said: "Six thousand," Donald said "Seven," Mr. Daggett said "Eight," and Donald followed with a bid of nine thousand. The offer being very low, the property was sold to Donald G. Perkins at that figure. He then announced that the purchase was made for the Winnepaug Co. Mr. Daggett contended that the highest bid was $11,000, and even if that bid were withdrawn, the highest bid was then $10,500. He contended that the court should not approve the sale at $9,000 as the order of the court was to secure the highest bidder, not the lowest.

Judge Platt observed from the bench that in his mind, irrespective of any confusion that might exist in the mind of Mr. Main, Donald G. Perkins knew perfectly well what he was bidding for, and he was inclined to the belief that he should pay this sum, $10,500.

Figures Forced Up.
Mr. Perkins asserted that his figures had been forced up by bids which were made by a rival bidder who was laboring under a misapprehension and who subsequently withdrew his bid. All the authorities sustained the stand taken by him, said Donald G. Perkins, that he could not be legally held as there had been no legal sale.

Judge Platt said he was looking at it from the equity side, rather than the legal technicalities involved. "It is my duty to obtain as much for the property as I can," added the judge, "and I will satisfy myself if $10,000 is a good price for it."

Mr. Daggett said he did not make any protest against the manner in which things were conducted at the auction sale, as he did not wish to scare away any of the bidders. Robert Perkins was placed upon the stand and went over the transaction of the sale in detail. He said he owned one-quarter of a share in the Winnepaug
