All of the eleven numbers were given with an excellence and spirit which not only showed the proficiency but the enthusiasm of the club. The programme was directed in a masterly manner by Frederick H. Crofton, assisted by the late Eugene Wallner for the orchestra. It having been completed with the exception of a few measures when he retired, the orchestra was composed of numbers of the evening. Several encores were given. There were solo passages Miss Elizabeth Lane, violin, and Wentworth Prentice, cello, which were finely done.

The Girls' Glee club, directed by Miss Ethel Spaulding, in the numbers, received rounds of applause, while the Jibbers gave selection after selection, with special features which made a big hit. The Boys' Glee club, led by Merwyn L. Aullman, gave their two numbers to the great pleasure of the hearers and responded to an encore with one of the school songs. HAILE CLUB RUMMAGE SALE Best Day's Receipts Amounted to $25—Window Display.

Those working actively in the sale are Miss Jennie M. Kimball, Mrs. Anna Bourdeau, Miss Carrie Parsons, Miss Elizabeth Orman, and Miss Ruth Taylor. One of the features causing much popular comment was achieved by Miss Rush in the window arrangement, where she fixed up the window in a rocking chair, a hat where the head ought to be, and a footstool at the feet on which a pair of slippers peep from under the bottom of the dress, making the whole look much like an old lady taking her ease in the rocker.
