Got Beyond Their Depth at Watch Hill and Were Brought in by Life Savers—Rolled in Blankets and Revived.

There was a large number of people at Watch Hill on Sunday, and as usual the number in bathing was also large, the hot weather driving the people in to the water. While the crowd was having their fun in the water two of the life savers on the beach were attracted to two girls who had gotten beyond their depth near the private raft. As soon as their attention was called to them, there was much excitement along the beach and in the pavilions.

The life savers lost no time in getting to the young women, and proved to be from this city, as they were hurried ashore, where they were rolled in a blanket and worked over for some time before they had fully recovered from the effects of the deep water and the excitement.

The young women gave their names as Miss Rose Mack and Miss Annie Gill. Both girls were unable to swim and had ventured out beyond their depth before they realized their predicament, and they were then unaided until the life savers came to their rescue. They were then unaided until the life savers came to their rescue. They were then unaided until the life savers came to their rescue.

GREENVILLE NEWS.

Rev. C. H. Ricketts Preaches on the Call to Light—Other Local Items.

Rev. C. H. Ricketts preached at the Congregational church Sunday morning on the Call to Light, taking for his text Eph. 5: 14: "Wherefore he saith, Awake, thou that sleepest, arise from thy dead, and Christ shall give thee the light."

He said in part: This chapter makes a distinction between darkness and light as seen in the lives of men; those who live according to the bent of their unregenerate nature are in darkness, and those who live under the impulsion of the Christian spirit are in the light. The line of demarcation is drawn right through the heart of humanity. No class is exempt from darkness, and none excluded from the light.

Paul is here appealing to the universal human experience when he says: "Ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord." Walk as children of the light. We are very apt to forget at the present time that sin is blackness and that no amount of veneering can make it white. It is only the light that will stamp out the blackness of sin. We need this sort of teaching today because the sense of sin seems to be lost. Its blackness does not appall us as it ought. We are so fascinated with glittering things that we do not stop to inquire where it covers up black living.

Here we make a choice between material things and spiritual, or between things that are black and those that are light—no matter which is the more attractive—no matter what the crowd is doing. Paul tells us what to do as Christians: "Five no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them." The meaning is clear. As Christians we must not hobnob with shady persons or think that the delay of the coronation of the King. As Christians we must smite the wrong; we must raise the voice to denounce all treason to the Lord Immanuel; we must let our lives be a media through which the light of Christ shines to others. As Christians we must be more aggressive against everything that belittles righteousness. Our very silence on great moral issues is interpreted by the world as condoning the sin of wickedness that touches the entire moral order.

Now as an antidote to all this Paul urges the text that involves three things: 1—Awakening from a condition. 2—Departing from a place, and 3—Receiving a new element of life.

1—Awakening from a condition. A sleeping institution does nothing whether it is a church or an industrial plant. A sleeping cotton mill makes no money for the owners; a sleeping church wins no souls, makes no characters, and exalts no community. The first thing is to wake up—to see where we are.

2—Departing from a place, and 3—Receiving a new element of life.

11—Arising from the dead or departing from a condition. It is not enough to wake up; we must get up. Our waking up means nothing unless we act upon its suggestion. The man who sleeps on the railroad track gains nothing by waking up unless he gets off the track. Waking up may be a danger signal upon which we should act.

The speaker put emphasis on the Parable of the Prodigal Son who woke up in the swineherd's hut, and then acted. When the film drops from the eyeball of a sleeping church, its new duty is to get away from its darkness. The speaker then showed that when we fulfill this two-fold condition Christ gives us light.

BODY OF MAN NOT YET IDENTIFIED

Coroner Brown Says It Is Not That of Pawcatuck Man or of the Italian, Jim.

On Sunday evening, Coroner Brown stated that he had been investigating the report that the body found at Niantic was that of a Pawcatuck man, who has been missing several months. He went out in a rowboat and has never been seen since. He wore rubber boots and clothing which he compared with that which the dead man had on. Because of that he believed the body was not that of the Pawcatuck man.

It was also thought that the body might be that of an Italian named Jim who disappeared about two months ago, but was acquitted on the charge and it is said it was known he had enemies. The coroner stated that he did not believe the body was that of the Italian.

MATTERS COME UP IN SUPERIOR COURT

Decision for P. E. Hendrick to Recover $3,322.50—Divorce Granted.

Judge Ralph Wheeler of the superior court has given the plaintiff, Philip E. Hendrick, judgment for $3,322.50 in his case against Robert A. Lowe and others. The case was heard recently in the superior court at Norwich.

The court was in here today. The session was held in the nature of a continuance of the last short calendar session. Several minor matters were disposed of by Judge Wheeler.

The case of Robert A. Lowe vs. Comstock vs. the C. M. Robertson Co. was argued and Judge Wheeler took the papers. Mr. Comstock claims that several years ago the defendant company by fraud obtained certain property, owned jointly by Mr. Comstock and the late Alexander C. Robertson, a partner in the company. Major Haddal A. Hull represents the Robertson company, and Attorney Briscoe appeared for Mr. Comstock.

Judge Wheeler has handed down a decision, overruling some demurrers in the Unesco Power company vs. Rockville Electric lighting company, but sustaining the demurrer to the cross complaint.

Ann Elizabeth Chesbro of Stonington was granted a decree of divorce from Gideon P. Chesbro on the grounds of intolerable cruelty and intemperance.

Judge Wheeler also gave Mrs. Chesbro the custody of a minor child, Marjorie, aged 12. Mrs. Chesbro testified that she had intemperance of her husband in his abuse.

The case was partially heard some time ago. The judge wanted more evidence and it was brought in Saturday.

There was a hearing before Judge Wheeler on the remonstrance of the plaintiff in the case of estate vs. et al. concerning the Old Lyme bridge. A demurrer to the remonstrance was filed and this was argued by counsel, and on next Wednesday Judge Wheeler is to inform the attorneys as to the nature of his decision. The court will come in Thursday when more evidence will be heard and the court was adjourned until that time.
