EXCELLENT BILL AT THE AUDITORIUM.

For the first three days of this week the Auditorium offers three acts that would be hard to beat, and all of them performed from the best houses in the country.
There are a great many people who like plays, either comedies or dramas, but who do not care to sit through a whole evening of the same thing, and it is to those people that a good one-act comedy or drama is just what they need.

AT POL'S THEATER.

Salomy Jane.
The first show of the reorganized Pol Players will be tonight and it will be a gala affair. It will be a real "first night" in every way and every indication points toward an overwhelming success from the very start. The play is "Salomy Jane," strong, tense, exciting at times, and full of good comedy. In fact, a careful study of all that goes to make up a successful play.

BREED THEATER.

The Switchman's Tower, one of the most thrilling motion pictures ever produced, will be the great attraction at the Breed today and tomorrow. It is a powerful story of a faithless wife who forsakes her humble, honest husband, whose duty it is to remain in the tower from morning until night, and goes away with a flashy engineer to the railroad picnic. The little child left at home goes to her father's tower for company and while there wanders out on the tracks. The conscience-stricken mother regrets her actions and leaves the picnic train at the first opportunity, walking home. From the moment she comes in sight of the tower, until the closing of the picture there is a wild succession of events. The father discovers the child on the track and switches the oncoming freight on to a siding, saving the child and he discovers the picnic train returning, and it will crash into the freight. He reverses the switch and turns his head to look across the tracks at the picknickers, but the mother dashes out from the edge of the track and grasping the child holds it a moment before the train before the locomotive rushes on.

WOMAN KILLED FOX.

Novel Experience of Mrs. Roderick Canfield of Reynolds Bridge.
Mrs. Roderick Canfield of Reynolds Bridge had a strange experience for a woman last week. She went to the field to see about some cattle and discovered a fox running across the investigation found her surprise a fox was there, and with a stick she gave Reynard a blow across the head which dazed him for a moment and then another blow and Mr. Fox was gone. It might seem that the woman thought of some chickens being missing about this section Allan Canfield took the fox to Thomaston and obtained a bounty of one dollar.

MEMORIAL TO TEACHER.

Plan in Waterbury to Honor Miss Margaret Croft.
That the memory of Miss Margaret Croft may be perpetuated through the coming generations of Waterbury, a proposition has been made that $1,000 be raised from contributions of not over $1 each, the interest of which shall be used as a scholarship in Latin, the subject taught by Miss Croft for many years. The idea originated with Rev. John T. Dyer, and he has secured the signatures of eleven well-known men, who thus signify their approval of the plan.
