PUBLIC SENTIMENT

Needs Uplifting, Rev. Hugh Treanor Tells His Congregation—Parish to Organize a Big Holy Name Society—May Rebuke Indecency in Public Places.

At the suggestion of the pastor, Rev. Hugh Treanor, St. Patrick's parish is to organize a Holy Name society, which promises to be one of the largest in the state. In connection with his references Sunday to Bishop Nolan's request that every parish form such a society, Rev. Father Treanor called on all the good men of the church, to enroll themselves in such an organization on Sunday next, when slips to be filled in with names are to be distributed at the three masses.

He felt certain, he said, that the example of such men must have a good influence upon others who rarely invoke the name of God except to profane it; and that gradually the anti-profanity movement would extend, until it brought even the most careless to a realization of the fact that cursing and swearing are offensive to all persons of decency, and to sensitive ears are most horrible.

Nor should the habit of using blasphemous and indecent language be advanced as an excuse, he said. The gospel of the day happened to be Matt. 23:13-15. Christ's answer to the Pharisees who sought to ensnare the Saviour by the question, "Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesar or not?" "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's," proving to His hypocritical questioners that He was more loyal to Caesar than they were to God.

This gospel Rev. Father Treanor used to emphasize the fact that it was not rendering to God what was His by every right when His creatures, dependent upon Him for the very air they breathe, for strength to labor, for the faculties through which they enjoy existence, pronounce His name only to profane it.

Incidentally, Father Treanor referred to other ways in which God is not receiving His due, when men and women are more concerned for that which pampers and clothes the body than for those virtues which adorn the soul. The modern world, he declared, grows more and more pagan in this regard; and while suitable, neat, becoming clothing is proper for every woman, too many young women, in particular, are led by vanity to dishonesty and even to destruction.

He made the statement that he hoped the little badge or button which will designate the members of the Holy Name society might not only act as a check on profanity on the part of the person wearing it, but serve as a warning to others that cursing and improper language would not be tolerated.

He believed, he stated, that all such agencies must result in improvement of public sentiment, which, he declared with emphasis, needed improvement here, since much was tolerated in parks and public places for which in some cities men and women would be arrested. He thought that laying stress on veneration of God's holy name must serve to make the thoughtless more thoughtful, most result in nobler, higher ideals, reminding men of their true, certain, inevitable destiny, their final end, rest in God.

CORONER BROWN WILL MAKE INVESTIGATION

Medical Examiner Lee Finds Circumstances Needing Attention.

The body of the woman found in New London harbor remained unidentified until Monday forenoon, when a description of the woman's clothing became known to Mrs. Mary C. Rose, who identified her as Mrs. Frances I. Montgomery. Mrs. Rose made known the fact that Lou, as Mrs. Montgomery was known, was dressed as the body was taken from the river was clothing which she left her house about two weeks ago to leave the city and to find an existence elsewhere. Lou has a husband whose name is Lee and he has been or is now at work on the Central Vermont railroad.

Medical Examiner Dr. H. M. Lee stated Monday night that there had been developments during the day that had caused him to ask Coroner F. H. Brown of this city to hold an inquest. It is stated that the woman's name is not Montgomery and it is further stated that ten days ago she went on a trip on a barge which went out from New London. The authorities are looking for the man with whom it is alleged she went.

Some New Buildings.

Estimates are being made for seven houses to be built at Maple Court by the Plainfield Land and Building company. Most of the houses will be of the bungalow type of frame construction, containing seven rooms, provided with furnace heat.
