McManigal Admits Doing It, Receiving $400 From McNamara For That and Milwaukee Job

McMANIGAL BEFORE THE FEDERAL GRAND JURY

James B. McNamara Alleged to Have Boasted That He Had Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars and the American Federation of Labor Behind Him—Detective McLaren Tells of the Trailing of McNamara Prior to His Arrest.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 7.—"I've got hundreds of thousands of dollars and the American Federation of Labor back of me. I took only $50,000 to clear Vincent Altman of Chicago, and if they could not convict him, they can't convict me."

Cause McManigal to Confess. This boast, attributed today by Detective McLaren to James B. McNamara as the latter was being taken on a train from Detroit to Chicago, on the night of April 12 last, caused Orrie E. McManigal, then also under arrest, to become angry with McNamara for his independence of treatment, and was the first circumstance that led McManigal to break from his companion and eventually to confess his connection with the various dynamiting explosions throughout the country.

McManigal Before Federal Grand Jury. McManigal's oral confession had been saved for the trials of James B. and John J. McNamara, now under sentence, after their pleas of life imprisonment and a year in the penitentiary, but this evidence as well as that which was gathered by the state was turned over to the federal grand jury at Springfield, Mass., on the morning of Dec. 7. The federal grand jury heard McManigal's story all day and will hear more of it tomorrow, laying the foundation for the inquiry into the alleged dynamiting conspiracies which has extended from coast to coast in the last three years.

Other Men Implicated. The McNamara case brought before the federal grand jury, and it may be that McManigal's story will be regarded as sufficient and the other two will be taken to San Quentin without further investigation here. Details of what McManigal knows of the alleged conspiracy were given to the grand jury today. That the story implicates other men in the International Association of Bridges and Structural Iron Workers became known from various sources.

Paid for Twenty Jobs. McManigal alleges that persons other than John J. McNamara, the secretary and treasurer, paid him for the twenty "jobs" of dynamiting which he has carried out after 1907. A statement has been raised as to the competency of testimony by convicted felons and that the story implicates other men in the International Association of Bridges and Structural Iron Workers became known from various sources.

McManigal Great Help to Government. The testimony of McManigal, however, who has not yet been brought to trial, will be of great value to the government's investigators. McManigal will not try him on the indictments against him until the federal authorities are through with the trial. McManigal said tonight on good authority, District Attorney Fredericks will recommend his discharge on account of signal service rendered.

McManigal Never Killed Anybody. "McManigal never killed anybody; in fact, he took good care never to endanger human life," said District Attorney Ford said tonight. McManigal, the detective who arrested J. B. McNamara and McManigal, and who was in charge of the investigation with Oscar Lawler, the special agent in charge of the government investigation, stayed outside the grand jury chamber today. McManigal gave a version, now in important details, of the evidence and circumstances which led to the arrest of McManigal and McNamara in Detroit, and of the thoughtlessness of James B. McNamara in the case. McManigal said tonight on good authority, District Attorney Fredericks will recommend his discharge on account of signal service rendered.

Several Heard McNamara. The statements of McNamara were made, according to McLaren, in the presence of Detectives Guy Biddinger and William J. Aspinwall, Raymond Burns, a son of William J. Burns, and McLaren himself. McLaren shadowed McNamara for a long period. When he confronted McNamag with the knowledge he had that McNamara had decided to break from his companions and tell all he knew.

Springfield Job in April. "About the 7th or 8th of April last," McLaren said, "I picked up McManigal in his home in Chicago. He had just arrived from Springfield, Mass., where he said he had blown up the municipal tower. He had stopped in Indianapolis and, he said, obtained $400 from J. J. McNamara for the Springfield job and the one at Milwaukee."

Shadowed in Chicago. "We shadowed him the next day as he went downtown with his wife to the Hibernal bank. Our office happened to be in the same building, and I told Mr. Burns that if he saw McManigal, he should tell me. He saw a good look at McManigal then was his chance. So Burns went out and got a good look at the shoes. He said that he went to the headquarters of the iron workers' union and finally home."

Saw McManigal Buy Pair of Shoes. "We trailed McManigal and his wife the next day again. He was with his children, looking into a shop window. He had been looking in McNamara's neighborhood several days and was afraid his children, who had seen me, might recognize me and call their father's attention to me. I saw McManigal buy a pair of shoes, which he is now wearing and I remember he was talking after it arrested him when I told him the shoe of the shoes and how much he paid for them and who was with him when he bought them."

Met McNamara at Toledo. "McManigal left home carrying a suit case and I took a train with him to Toledo, leaving well away from his sight. When we arrived in Toledo, James B. McNamara was waiting for McManigal at the station and they sat

CHORUS GIRLS' COUNSEL STIRS UP THE EMOTIONS.

Pleads for Innocent Girl Whose Life Was Dominated by One Many Years Her Senior—Defense in Stokes Case.

New York, Dec. 7.—In picturing his client, Lillian Graham, as an innocent young girl whose life early became dominated by a man many years her senior, Clark Gordon brought tears to the eyes of the jurors when he opened the case for the defense today in the trial of Miss Graham and Ethel Conrad, the "show girls" charged with attempting the life of W. E. D. Stokes, the millionaire.

Miss Graham cried throughout the attorney's address and became hysterical when it was finished. The emotion of her sister, Miss Gordon, was so great that she left the courtroom. Mrs. Andrews, another sister, and Miss Conrad were more composed, but both wept softly as Mr. Gordon described vividly how Stokes was Miss Graham to attempt her own life, as she avers.

Girl Will Testify Today.

Tomorrow it is expected that the girl will go on the stand and will tell the story herself. Mr. Jordan began by introducing a letter written by Miss Graham to Miss Gordon in which she told of her intention to end her life because of "this man Stokes."

Lawyer's Version of Shooting.

"He made me suffer," the letter continued, "in a cruel, cold-blooded and heartless, and refused a paltry $500." Taking up the shooting, Mr. Jordan said that Miss Graham was the girl's aunt and that she was the only person who had seen her on the night of the shooting. He tried to choke Miss Graham, he said, and "then shot him."

"She struggled and reached for her revolver," he went on. "She doesn't know whether she had it or she had it found her escape by the stairs and fled. When the first people arrived on the scene they saw Miss Graham's mother screaming 'Police!' Did they want the police to help them shoot Mr. Stokes? No, gentlemen, they wanted protection. We shot today after years of triumph and American sheep raisers garnered most of the blue ribbons.

Sister a Witness.

The defense put on as the first witness Mrs. Andrews, who testified that she heard her sister, Lillian, say on the cross examination the prosecution put in documentary evidence showing that Miss Graham's mother swore in a divorce suit that in 1887 "Lillian was two years old," making her 27 now.

A Denunciation

of McNamaras

BRANDED AS "RECREANT" BY AMERICAN FEDERATION.

AWAIT INVESTIGATION

Statement Declares That Destruction of Life and Property is Foreign to Labor Movement—Burns Denounced

Washington, Dec. 7.—James B. and John J. McNamara are branded as "recreant to the good name and high ideals of labor, and the satisfaction of organized labor that the 'good spirits' have been commensurately punished for their crime" is expressed in a statement issued today by the McNamara ways and means committee of the American Federation of Labor, after a two days' conference. Moreover, the statement strongly condemns the McNamaras for their "inhumanity" and declares that "organized labor would not be held 'either legally or morally' responsible for the crimes of an individual member."

Statement Not Signed by Ryan.

The labor leaders assert that they will welcome any investigation which either federal or state courts may undertake. The statement is signed by every member of the McNamara committee except F. M. Ryan, president of the Structural Iron Workers' union, with which the convicted Los Angeles dynamiters were prominently connected. Mr. Ryan returned to Indianapolis early today.

Gompe's Vouches for Ryan.

"Had he remained, however," said President Gompe, positively, "I am sure that Mr. Ryan would have added his name. He was called back to Indianapolis by pressure of business. He did not see the statement, but I am sure he is in hearty accord with its sentiments."

Had No Knowledge of McNamaras' Guilt.

As to their knowledge of the crime to which the McNamaras confessed, the committee in their statement assert: "We here and now, individually and collectively, declare that the first knowledge of the crime was conveyed by the press in their confessions of guilt."

From the outset we assured all contributors of the public generally that we would publish an accounting of the money received, from whom received and to whom paid. A report will be made to the executive council of the American Federation of Labor at its meeting to be held at Indianapolis on January 5.

McNamaras' Crimes Not Condoned.

"Organized labor of America," the statement continues, "has no desire to condone the crimes of the McNamaras. It joins in the satisfaction of the majority of the labor movement who have maintained and the culprits commensurately punished for their crime."

"And yet it is an awful commentary upon existing conditions when anyone man among all the millions of laborers can bring himself to the frame of mind that the only means to secure justice for labor is in violence, outraging the moral sense of the community."

Organized Labor Not Responsible.

"It is cruelly unjust to hold the men of the labor movement either legally or morally responsible for the crimes of a few individuals. No such moral code or legal responsibility is placed upon any other association of men in our country."

"As we have the right to speak, in the name of organized labor, we welcome any investigation which will determine the truth of the charges against the McNamaras. The sessions of the convention of the American Federation of Labor are held with open doors and are open to any competent person who wishes to make a study or an investigation of them."

The Lesson of the Crime.

"The men of organized labor in common with all progressive people, are grieved beyond expression in words at the loss of life and the destruction of property, not only in the case under discussion but in all cases of this kind which have occurred. We are hurt and humiliated to think any man connected with the labor movement should have been guilty of either. The lesson this grave crime teaches, however, will have its salutary effect. It will increase the sympathy of the labor movement as well as the faculty of resorting to violence in the effort to right wrongs or to attain rights."

Detective Burns Condemned.

The committee criticizes the "kidnapping" of the McNamaras, saying they "were arrested in Russian style, not in American style. In the method of arrest they find 'high handed irregularity and tyrannical lawlessness' and W. J. Burns, the detective in the case, is severely arraigned."

Organized labor properly expressed its condemnation of violence on hearing of the Los Angeles disaster. It is contended.

Violence Foreign to Labor Movement.

"The universal condemnation of a murderous deed in labor circles ought to be a fact so far beyond question, the statement proceeds, 'so easily ascertained from accessible records, that no man with any regard for his reputation for veracity could deny it. Violence, brutality, destruction of life and property are foreign to the aims and methods of organized labor. It is a crime and no interest is more severely injured by the employment of such methods than that of the workers organized in the labor movement."

Union Men Are Loyal Americans.

"Therefore, quite apart from the spirit of humanitarianism and justice which prompts the activities of the labor movement, policy and hope for a success forbid the resort to violence. The American labor movement is a movement for the betterment of our race and the abolition of wrongs and the attainment of their rights within the law."

The statement is signed by Samuel Gompe, president of the federation and chairman of the committee; Frank Ryan, secretary of the federation and the committee, and six of the seven remaining members of the committee.

FIREMAN TELLS OF NEW YORK FIRE HORROR.

SURVIVORS ON STAND

Evidence That Waste and Rags Were on Floor in Quantities—Manslaughter Trial of Messrs. Harris & Blanck

New York, Dec. 7.—Survivors of the Asch building fire at the scene who fought it gave a circumstantial account today of the horrors which attended the conflagration, which placed on the stand at the trial for manslaughter of Isaac Harris and Max Blanck, proprietors of the Triangle Waist company, in whose loft the fire started.

Waste and Rags on Floor. While the prosecution obtained considerable evidence as to quantities of waste and rags on the floor of the cutting room, where many of the girls who lost their lives were at work, the details brought out by cross examination of the firemen that in most instances the dead bodies they found were some distance from the exits, which are alleged to have been insufficient.

Fireman Says Door Was Closed. Fireman Rinehart, the first to reach the ninth floor, on the Washington Place side of the building, said he found a door closed, but that the nearest of nine or ten bodies he saw was about eight or ten feet from the door. Fireman John W. Wall, Jr., testified to finding eleven bodies on the ninth floor, the nearest of which was about ten feet from the door.

Waste Removed Two Months Previous. Louis Levy, a dealer in rags, testified he purchased rags and waste from the defendants at the time of the fire, on the night of April 15, 1911, some time prior to the fire, was the last date upon which he had removed any of the waste from the lofts. At that time he took out 250 pounds, he said, from the eighth floor. He took no sweepings, he said, any rags from under the cutting tables.
