

POETRY

HUMANITY'S URN

There's a big game on in the world Twist the weak and the strong;
Twist the right and the wrong;
And the power and the might Can scarce be her sine When she severs the locks where its great strength lies.

"This a game of hearts till the life is spent.
And he brings in arms
To the old man's quail;
From south in its bloom To the door of the tomb With loss and disaster in misery bent.

In the drama of life at which we play There's a soul at stake And honor to lose
It is faithful to choose
Twist the right and the wrong
For a moment's peace for the length of a day.

Love, dollars and crime and the people say,
"Play on to your best;
Thought is the General's seat;
And our hearts will bleed At your ceaseless greed,
of a day."
—M. J. Weatherbee Rice

SOME TAPESTRIES AT THE MUSEUM.
Across their tapestried champaign
The Roman warriors take their way With dancing steeds they sweep the plain.
And round the Syrian turrets away;
And who watch them at their strife Forget their triumph and their doom And see, new hidden into life, The worker at the Belgian loom.

The weaver by the narrow pane Who wove his hand from bed to And wove the tapestried champaign With loving thought and tinted thread.
And strange it is, and yet 'tis true, If him I think and not of them Whose easy victory about us flows From out his old Jerusalem.

BREED THEATER.

"The O'Neill," Romantic Irish Drama, the Powerful Feature for Monday and Tuesday.

Along the line of constant improvements in the class and style of the picture-plays at the Breed, Manager McNulty announces for his big feature picture for Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 25 and 26, the powerful romantic Irish drama, entitled "The O'Neill."

This is one of the peerless Kaltem productions, and being made entirely in Ireland, it naturally has a charm peculiarly its own. Every scene was made in Ireland on the identical spots made famous by the incidents represented. The O'Neill, an Irish peasant, secretly returns to his old familiar haunts, from which he was obliged to flee during times of oppression, and found a proclamation offering a reward for his apprehension, and he hastily takes to the country lanes that he might meet his old friends, the peasants, one in particular, a frail, old man, "gleaning" with age, whom O'Neill to his humble cottage and shared his last crust of bread with him.

Touched with the alight poverty of his countrymen, O'Neill determines to aid them, at the price of becoming a highwayman, so, going to a secluded spot, he masked himself, and lay in wait.
Soon a carriage appeared, and O'Neill leaped from his hiding place, and seized the occupants to alight. They were an elderly gentleman and his daughter, El-lenora. O'Neill, in a spirit of mockery, takes a ring from the girl, and forces her to dance a few steps with him.

Later, he learns of her presence at a masked ball, and carefully disguising himself he goes, and meeting her, his identity is discovered by the ring on his finger. O'Neill makes his escape through a window, taking cash and all. The following day the outlaw meets Ellenora and arranges a meeting with her, which is to take place that evening. She agrees, but brings with her a band of men, who surround O'Neill and make him prisoner, carrying him to a nearby house. Ellenora succeeds in making a change of heart, and finding herself in love with the handsome patriot, steals through the window and releases him. Together they speed away, but Ellenora stopping only to bid the poor peasant good-bye.

When the escape was discovered, the men started in pursuit, and arriving at the cross roads inquire of the peasant if he has seen the outlaw, and he replies that he had, but pointed in an opposite direction, enabling the thieves to escape. France, to the good ship that carried them to freedom and happiness.

Mr. Bennett, the great tenor, will sing a beautiful Irish ballad, and Mr.
Calkins will sing the up to date illustrated melodies.

JAMES CLANCY'S POLI THEATER.

"Two Old Pals" is a Great Animal Picture.

Nothing better has ever been seen in this city than "Two Old Pals," a great picture dealing with the intelligence of an elephant, which was projected at Clancy's Poli theater. It is also on today. The interest in this picture centers in the intelligence of the elephant, which is to be put to the test, and they are both in trouble together, one being much in debt and the other having been attacked by the sheriff because of said debt. Big Otto leads his old friend and together they escape.
The elephant enters a freight car and drags his master after him. They arrive in a town where there is a baker shop. After a night's rest the elephant makes a raid on the loaves of bread and then rushes the growler at the town pump. The almost human naturalness of the beast's doings makes them delightfully funny. It is a very good comedy.

"A Safe Proposition" is another film that pleased the audience. The story in this film is told around a business office where the stupidity of a janitor fastens a theft of money upon an innocent man. Ultimately, however, the complication is worked out and the employee's wounded feelings are satisfied with an advance in position and an increase in salary. Perhaps the most interesting feature in the picture is the one which shows how easy it is to fasten a crime upon an innocent person. On the same reel with it is a travesty, "Seeing Spokans," a well photographed picture.

Joseph McGinty, the popular harmonist, is making the biggest kind of a hit singing "The Chicken Rag." Don't miss this song.

AT THE AUDITORIUM.

With one good bill following another the Auditorium is fast establishing the policy of "Always a good show." Today a good "Imp" comedy picture will be shown for the benefit of the children, entitled "Trotter." It is a very funny reel produced by the original Imp stock company, which has a reputation among the best of motion picture stock companies. The feature picture of this evening will be "The Defender of the Name," a civil war drama by the Rex company, introducing Marion Leonard, the old Biograph star, who was just returned from a stay in Europe.

The vaudeville programme will consist of three pleasing novelties, each showing considerable merit in their respective lines, and all have been winning popular favor with the audience.
On Monday, Max Fehrmann will be on the bill in his latest eccentric comedy oddy entitled "Trotter." It is a very funny reel produced by the original Imp stock company, which has a reputation among the best of motion picture stock companies. The feature picture of this evening will be "The Defender of the Name," a civil war drama by
the Rex company, introducing Marion Leonard, the old Biograph star, who
rope.

WHY NOT BOOM ART?

A Would-Be Traveler Would Know Something of Holland.

A Would-Be Traveler writes the Bulletin:
I have seen once or twice a modest advertisement in your paper of two lectures to be given here on Dutch Art by Mr. Caffin. We are not all interested in art, but we have very few opportunities in Norwich to hear much about it and is not this a chance that not only art lovers but those who would like to broaden their interests and talk about something beside Thermos or bridge, for instance, should not neglect?

We are very fortunate in our opportunity to hear the best music. Why should we not seize this chance to know something of an art which, I understand, reflects graphically the strange country, its history, and some life of a very individual little land?

We cannot all travel. A visit to Holland through the work of the artist, with its for the sound trip ticket, means to me worth while for the people of Norwich.
