EMPLOYEES DISSATISFIED.

Quinnick-Windham Promised Raise in Wages Not What Was Expected.

That there is dissatisfaction among certain of the employees at the Quinnick-Windham Manufacturing company was made known Saturday at 11:30 o'clock when the help received their weekly wage.

About twelve employees of some department quit, because they did not get as large a raise in pay as had been expected from the announcement made about the first of the month.

It is said that a strike may be instituted this (Monday) morning and that a number of the employees of the mill operated by the Quinnick-Windham Manufacturing company in this city will not be at their regular places when the whistle blows.

It is claimed that only about a third of the help received the promised raise, that the other two-thirds did not share in the advance, and those who did did not receive as much as was promised.

Some years ago certain classes of help were cut down a cent a box for work and when the raise was announced they expected to receive the penny back, but instead they got only three-quarters of it.
