VERMONT NOW THE BATTLE-GROUND State Campaign of National Importance Will Be At Its Full Stride This Week GOVERNOR BALDWIN ONE OF THE SPELLBINDERS

Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 18.—The political campaign which is expected to arouse the voters of Vermont to a sense of the national importance of the state election on Sept. 3, the first in the country previous to the presidential election, will swing into its full stride next week. Orators from both within and without the state are expected to visit all the cities and many of the large towns, while campaign committees are already laying plans for getting out the vote.

Five Candidates for Governor. The contest in Vermont is a five-sided affair, at least as far as the gubernatorial struggle is concerned. Republicans, democrats, progressives, prohibitionists, and socialists have each a candidate for the head of the ticket, while in the two congressional districts there are several aspirants for representatives. For many years Vermont, by reason of her early state election, has been looked upon as more or less of a political barometer.

A Loyal Republican State. Although the state has never wavered in its adherence to republican candidates and doctrines, there have been years when the party majorities have fallen greatly below the average. Hence political students have said that if the republican plurality in Vermont in September fell below 19,000 a democratic victory the following November would be assured.

Baldwin to Speak There. It is expected that three governors, Marshall of Indiana, Foss of Massachusetts and Baldwin of Connecticut will speak for the democrats, that Colonel Roosevelt will be heard, and that many republican congressmen will be on the stump.

Supreme Court May Pass on It. When the conference was over the president was still of the opinion that the best way to test the bill's agreement with the treaty was to have the United States supreme court pass upon it. It will only come with the house leaders in the next few days and will devote most of his own time to pondering over this one bill.

BRANDEGEE AGAINST IT. Believes Canal Bill Violates Our Treaty Obligations. (Special to The Bulletin.) Washington, Aug. 18.—Notwithstanding the fight led by Senator Brandegee, the chairman of the senate committee on interoceanic canals, the report of the conferees on the canal bill was adopted by the senate Friday night by a vote of 48 to 13.

Senator Brandegee urged that the bill be defeated, as not sufficient time had been allowed to study the different provisions. He asked that the bill be allowed to go over for the session and that a committee of the senate and house be appointed to inquire into the propriety of the admission of the canal. "The officials of the canal," he said, "asked us for a bill that would simply provide the machinery to open the canal and would not allow ships to be built in the canal."

Senator Brandegee also criticized the provision in the bill excluding railroad-owned ships from the canal. He said that the measure would prevent ships owned by carriers now under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission from using the canal and would allow ships owned by foreign railroads to pass through.

He advocated turning the whole matter over to an expert committee, and said he could get better results than this bill shows.

He said it would be impossible to administer the amendment placed in the bill by Senator Lee of Missouri, which forbids the use of the canal by vessels "owned, controlled or operated by persons or companies doing business in violation of the Sherman act."

The keeper of the canal, he said, "would be forced to hold up every vessel going through the canal to determine that fact."

In conclusion, Senator Brandegee said: "I believe it would be a public calamity to have this bill passed. The country will be better off if these great questions are thrashed out through long study."

ADJOURNMENT THIS WEEK. But Several Important Measures Are Pending in Congress. Washington, Aug. 18.—Important legislation that will be acted on before congress adjourns stands today as follows: The Panama canal bill, before the president.

The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, approved by the house and now before the senate, with provision abolishing the commerce court.

The naval, sundry civil and army appropriation bills, in conference before the two houses.

The general deficiency appropriation bill, before the senate committee on appropriations.

The Indian appropriation bill, conference report pending in the senate. While adjournment is expected this week, the date is generally conceded to depend upon the president's attitude toward the Panama canal bill and the legislative executive, judicial appropriation bill.

The Canal Bill a Big Problem

PRESIDENT MAY REFER IT TO SUPREME COURT. DISCUSSED BY CABINET. Free Tolls Clause May Be Violation of Our Treaty Obligations—Senator Brandegee Cannot Vote For It.

Washington, Aug. 18.—Over the White House coffee cup President Taft and his cabinet today discussed the Panama canal bill and the question of a possible presidential veto of the measure.

Anxious to Approve Bill. Every member of President Taft's official family who was in town was present, and the discussion lasted for an hour after luncheon time, but no decision was reached. The president's inclination, it was said tonight, is to approve the bill, but he is anxious to have provision made for a legal test of the matter of free tolls for American ships. The cabinet was understood to agree with him that there is basis for believing that the bill with the free tolls clause in it is not conformable with the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

When the conference was over the president was still of the opinion that the best way to test the bill's agreement with the treaty was to have the United States supreme court pass upon it. It will only come with the house leaders in the next few days and will devote most of his own time to pondering over this one bill.

There are conflicting stories as to the trouble, but the police believe that Rogers did the shooting, and then accidentally shot himself. The trouble, it is said, arose because Rogers insulted Altma's wife, and when the latter remonstrated, Rogers shot him with a revolver. Rosanna, who came to Altma's assistance, was then shot. Rogers claims that a fourth man did the shooting and escaped in the darkness. This theory, however, is scouted by the police.

This rate is a change from the old charge of the New Haven of 25 cents during the dull season of railway business, and 35 cents a day during the rush season.
