CITY COURT.

Garden Owner, After Trespasser is Fined, Asks That Penalty Be Re-mitted—Non-Support Case Decided. Saturday morning Joseph Haddad had Joseph Messier arrested for damaging his vegetable garden. After Messier had been fined for the offense in court, Haddad asked the judge to permit Messier to go, as he was a poor man, but as the offense had been committed, the fine was asked to stand as imposed. Haddad testified that on Thursday evening he had found Messier in his garden. Messier claimed he was there watching another garden from which vegetables had been stolen. It was dark and Haddad told Messier to remain there until he got a lantern so that he could ascertain what damage had been caused by Messier, but Messier ran away. The next morning Haddad visited his garden and found that some tomato plants had been damaged as well as some Syrian squashes. Messier denied he had caused any damage or had run away. He did not offer any other defense. The court found him guilty and imposed a fine of $3 and costs.

The case of George B. Congdon, charged with the non-support of his wife Lucy and infant son, Earl, from April 15 until August 15, that was continued from Friday morning, was continued to Friday morning, when a plea of guilty was entered by Congdon. His wife said that the child was only five months old and that she had received no money from her husband since the 15th of April. Prosecuting Attorney Bugbee asked that Congdon give his wife $3 a week, Attorney P. J. Danahy, for Congdon, stated that Congdon received only $2 a month, and his board, and out of that he had to clothe himself and pay some bills. Attorney Bugbee said that Congdon could not do as he desired and had a good place to sleep, so that in his opinion $3 a week was little enough for the wife and child. Judge William A. Arnold imposed a sentence of sixty days in the county jail, execution of judgment to be suspended on condition that Congdon pay his wife $3 per week for a period of six months. The bond was fixed at $100.

Watching Troops Go Through. The union station was visited by a large number Sunday afternoon, waiting around for a sight of the return of the soldiers to their homes in this city and en route for their homes in Massachusetts. The troop trains came along late in the day and the local outfit did not get in until a pretty late hour as the troops farthest from home were the first to disembark at points of embarkation. All appeared somewhat weary and well seasoned. The militia from Massachusetts were a fine appearing body of men and in some instances might have easily been mistaken for regulars.

Games in Thread Mill League. Saturday's games in the American Thread Mill league were more largely attended than ever, evidence that interest is being aroused in the various nine. Each nine has its coterie of supporters that rooted lustily for their favorites. The games were all reasonably close and exciting, every instance save one and that was the game between the dyehouse and the office and dressing department, which resulted in a victory for the dyehouse by the score of 11-3, the high total for the day. This still leaves the dyehouse bunch at the top of the ladder as the nine representing that department of the American Thread company has not suffered a single defeat yet and are waxing more confident than ever that they will be able to maintain their fine lead through the season.

Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. In spite of the rain Sunday morning the Tabernacle had a fair sized audience to listen to the woman physician from China, Dr. Li H. Cu, who came first to this country about seven years ago. She spent four years in Fouts' missionary training college, Herkimer, N. Y., learning English. Then she took a medical course in Philadelphia, returning to her country to engage in hospital work. Her father and herself came to America last spring as delegates to the Methodist general conference in Minneapolis.

Chinese Doctor Heard. Mrs. Costello Lippitt, president of the Woman's auxiliary of the Foreign Missionary society, introduced the speaker, after Mrs. J. M. Currier of Chelsea had read the 16th psalm, and District Superintendent Newland had offered prayer. E. M. Wheeler led the preliminary praise service, accompanying upon the piano, A fine bass soloist, Harry Montgomery of New York, was present. It was an interesting talk that Dr. Li gave of her work in China, showing how the Chinese habits are often thrown away to die, or maybe left on the missionary's doorstep. Her own mother was a founding and was glad when she grew up that she had escaped the great suffering Chinese women usually undergo. Touching incidents were given of how men and women were converted. The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society is a body of Christian physicians, since men are not allowed to doctor women there. Much good has thus been accomplished.

He rapidly sketched the work of the Methodist denomination among negroes in Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington in Camden, South Carolina; in Morrisstown and Athens, Tenn.; in Orangeburg, S. C. and Atlanta, Ga. He dwelt especially on the work in Atlanta, the combined forces of Gannett theological seminary, Clark university and the Thayer home for girls. He alluded briefly to schools in Birmingham, Ala., Memphis, Tenn., and Springfield, Miss.; New Orleans; Austin and Marshall, Texas; and Little Rock, Ark. He said that honesty, integrity and charity were the fundamentals of the negro's education in our schools.

Children's Missionary Meeting. At 4 o'clock a number of children with a sprinkling of adults gathered in the Tabernacle and listened to talks adapted to them by both Dr. Yates and Dr. Li. In the evening a joint meeting of the children's societies, in which both speakers again took part.

The Institute Chorus. That E. G. Smith, who led the singing at last week's institute has ability as a chorus director was abundantly manifest at the fine entertainment given by a chorus of 30 voices, drilled by him during the four days of the institute. A large audience was in the Tabernacle and the frequent applause evidenced their appreciation of the efforts of all who took part. There were four selections by the chorus, Miss Edith Tisdale of New London and Mrs. Mary Shippee of Hartford rendering the solo. Your Hands Are Worth $4,000

That is the value given them if you lose the use of them. You, therefore, wish to keep them smooth, soft, white and refined—a Lady's hands.

Some common laundry soaps eat color out of cloth and beauty out of hands. We make a laundry soap which is good for the hands, which outsells all others in New England twice over.

It is also marvelously quick in washing the clothes clean, fresh, like new. It is safe for washing the daintiest fabrics.

One reason for its magic quality is the amount of Borax used in its manufacture—5 times as much as all other laundry soaps made in New England combined. Costs the same as other laundry soaps—5c, at your dealer's. Your grocer will give you money back if you can find a better laundry soap.

The two mallows which bloom in Griswold are the high mallow, Malva sylvestris, and the common mallow, Malva rotundifolia, the latter being the sort known by every schoolboy as "cheeses".

It is used by the country people for various medicinal purposes, and is sometimes cultivated and boiled with meat as a sort of "greens", but as such it is of little value. In the xxx chapter of Job, he pictures himself as being despised by those who had been themselves so destitute as to "cut up mallows by the bushes for their meat."
