OBITUARY

Miss Mary Etta Allen.

Mary Etta Allen aged 17, died at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin L. Allen, No. 475 Main street, on the East Side, at about 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, after a serious illness of only a short time. She had been an invalid for some time.

She was born in Preston Feb. 24, 1895, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Louis Allen. She resided in Preston all her life until about a year ago, when the family came to live on the East Side.

Besides her parents there survive four brothers, John S. Allen of Westport, H. Allen of New York City, Charles and Frank of this city, and one sister, Miss Adelle Allen, who resides with her parents.

An Old Will That Helped Mould English Law.

The recent death in England of Lord Benthams, who explains Lord "Tit Bits," was a grandson of Peter Thellusson, recalls the eccentric will which helped to mould the English law as to testamentary disposition.

Peter Thellusson, who settled in London in the middle of the eighteenth century as a merchant and amassed an enormous fortune, left $500,000 to his family, and directed that the rest of his property should be invested and accumulated during the lives of his three sons, and should then be divided among his eldest lineal male descendants, or, if there were none, then to go to the reduction of the national debt.

As the law then stood there was nothing at all unlawful about this singular will. It was, as a matter of fact, upheld by the house of lords. But a protracted accumulation of so much wealth was plainly against public policy, and it resulted in an act being passed in 1800 confining the power of bequeathing property for the purpose of accumulation to twenty-one years from the testator's date of death.

The act by which the locking up of estates is prohibited is still known to lawyers as "Thellusson's act."

Norwich People Surrender Photographs for Enlargement—Then Gave Up Deposits for Frames—Several Hundred Dollars Probably Secured By Man and Woman Claiming to Represent Boston Firm.

Whether they are the victims of two clever swindlers or whether they are to receive the promised enlargements for which they parted with prized family pictures is a problem that is agitating a goodly number of Norwich families at the present time. From three weeks to a month ago, a man and a woman claiming to represent a studio in Boston canvassed the city, soliciting and securing many orders for photographs to be enlarged, and now the promised time for the arrival of the pictures has started many to inquiring and comparing notes, with the result that nearly all consider they have unearthed something that has all the earmarks of a first class swindle. So far, no complaint has been made to the police.

In one section of Broad street, near McKinley avenue, from fifteen to a score of families are mourning the disappearance of portraits, which in some cases are irreplaceable; around Backus corner at East Great Plain, and in other places on the West Side there are people who are wondering what the outcome will be, and in Thamesville the picture enlargers also secured numerous customers. By the time the pictures were received, the man secured the money that was deposited, ostensibly to go towards the frames for the pictures. In some cases it is the money that the Norwich people would like to get back, but in many it is some prized family portrait which was lured from them by the persuasive tongue of the woman, who first appeared on the scene with the picture offer. As related by a West Side woman who gave an order and made a small deposit, under this was written in small letters the initials U. N.

In the case of one woman who declined to pay any deposit, but assured the agent that he would have cash in hand when the picture was received, the man became abusive to such an extent that the woman considers it a lucky circumstance that she was not alone in the house at the time. In regarding the pictures, the woman gave her order for a picture, the female solicitor used the name of another Norwich woman as an argument, saying that this customer had already received her enlargement. Since then this statement has been proven to be false, and the methods and circumstances under this project have given those interested something to think over.

JOHN M. BREWER DIED AT WATERBURY.

Former Norwich Man Had Been Ill Two Weeks—Left Here Fourteen Years Ago.

After an illness of two weeks, though his health had been failing for several months, the death of John M. Brewer occurred at his home in Waterbury at 8:45 o'clock Friday evening. This will be learned with sincere regret by his many friends in this city, where he made his home for thirty years, and was one of the leading business men and citizens during that time. John M. Brewer was a native of East Hartford, where he was born Oct. 7, 1843. His father was George Brewer, a well known farmer in the Willow Brook district of that town. The deceased was educated at the East Hartford academy and at Lewis academy in Southington. In 1868 he entered the employ of the wholesale and retail druggists, Messrs. Williams & Hall, who were located at the corner of Front and State streets, Hartford. He was removed to Hartford where he enlisted as a private in Company G of the Sixteenth Connecticut, July 27, 1862. He was at the battle of Antietam and he received the first opportunity to be promoted to sergeant. The exposure to the weather at Berlin brought on a sickness that caused him to be sent to a hospital in Alexandria, Va. After recovery he acted as hospital steward until his discharge Jan. 26, 1865, for physical disability. He was engaged in business in Manchester from 1865 to 1868. In 1868 he moved to Norwich, where he was engaged in the drug business, being for thirty years in business on Franklin square, where the fifth pharmacy is now located. In 1866 he married a daughter of Jason Roberts of East Hartford. Mrs. Brewer died Jan. 8, 1905. Mr. Brewer had four children, three boys and one girl. He was a member of the United Workmen, an honorary member of the American Mechanics. He has been president of the National Croquet association and has served in the Norwich city government, both as a republican alderman and councilman. He was chairman of the committee on streets and in that capacity was able to advance many public improvements in the city. He served three terms as commander of Sedgwick post.

He was a member of St. James' lodge, No. 23, F. and A. M., Franklin chapter, No. 8, R. A. M., Franklin council, No. 4, R. and S. M., and Columbia commandery, No. 4, K. T. He was a past department commander of the Connecticut G. A. R.

He is survived by his two daughters, Florence and Nellie R. Brewer of Waterbury, one sister, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Emery of Hartford, and three brothers, August of Hartford, Philo S. and William H. of East Hartford.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock Saturday morning at the residence of Mrs. Brewer, 100 West Main street, and will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Wright.

Interment will be in the West Hill cemetery.

Rev. Father Huntington was the first speaker called upon as toastmaster. He spoke in clear, high and stirring tones, and his address was a physical stimulus towards a common purpose and end in the showing forth of the sterling virtues and the old heroic qualities of our ancestors. What an advantage we have in the pulse of a common ancestry! In our day we must not lose clear-cut convictions. We must have a clear and definite convictions which our ancestors had that we may play well our part in this great American commonwealth as our fathers did.

Rev. Father Huntington's eloquent words, frequently illuminated with witty illustrations, were loudly applauded.

Henry S. Gulliver of Waterbury followed Rev. Father Huntington, saying that he took it that he was to reply for the sons and the grandsons of the Huntington descendants, and contributing a forceful but brief address upon the cultivation of the Huntington ideals. Those who never had any great regard for their ancestors' words certainly never do anything of great value. He emphasized the inspiring nature of the such an inheritance from the Huntington forbears gives. The speaker was generously applauded.

Here at First Reunion.

At this point, Toastmaster Clark addressed those to rise who had been at the reunion 55 years ago. Seven responded and were greeted with a round of applause.

They were Secretaries Thoms Huntington, Arthur H. Gulliver, Fred James Huntington, Mrs. O. S. Smith, George Wilson Huntington, Mrs. Chances, B. Woodworth and George Wilson Huntington.

Mrs. Susan M. Dudman of Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, and her daughter, Mrs. J. R. Reed, of Westfield, Mass., two who were also at the reunion referred to but were not at the banquet although attending the present reunion.

Secretary R. Thomas Huntington of Westfield was the next speaker, making a brief but pleasing response. He was followed by Robert F. Huntington of Hartford, whose witty touch upon the general subject of genealogy and some of his impressions from attending the reunion convinced his hearers of the value of the family association.

Prof. Ellsworth Huntington was the concluding speaker, called upon by Toastmaster Clark. Professor Huntington related interesting incidents in his travels in Asia and went on to speak of the value of having ancestors of good qualities.

Cleaved With Old Hundred.

As a beautiful expression of these Huntington ancestor qualities, Toastmaster Clark called upon the assembly to sing a verse of Old Hundred in adorning and the beauty, which concluded with the voices raised in the impressive hymn.

Registered at Reunion.

Among those registered at the reunion on Friday were: John McKelvey, Sandusky, O.; Mrs. James Huntington, McKelvey, Fall River, Mass.; William Saitonall Chappell, New London; Isabel Norton Chappell, New London; Mrs. Benjamin S. Watching a Mountain Grow.

On August 6, 1910, the accidental discovery was made by scientific observers in Japan that the southeastern coast of Toya lake had risen about a yard. At the end of the month the rise was found to be about four feet. Early in September the elevation must have been far advanced, for on the seventh of that month some houses built on land which previously stood at an angle of five degrees were overthrown in consequence of the increasing inclination.

Two months later the height of the ridge of the new mountain was found by barometric measurements to be 690 feet above the level of the lake. As its height before the eruption began was only 189 feet above the same level, it follows that the total elevation from the end of July to the beginning of November was 501 feet, giving an average rate of upheaval of a little over five feet a day.

Some time before or after this process of elevation must have ceased, and an opposite movement set in, for during April, 1911, the height of the ridge was found to be 129 feet less than in the previous November.
