

PROHIBITION BY ADMINISTRATION

Only Effective Weapon Against the Liquor Evil, Says Presidential Candidate Chafin—Ended State Tour Here Friday Night With Meeting in Town Hall—Eight Speeches in this Section During the Day.

Hon. Eugene W. Chafin of Tucson, Arizona, candidate of the prohibition party for president of the United States, concluded a whirlwind tour of Connecticut with a meeting here on Friday evening in the town hall where he had an audience of about 75, including two women.

Lively Day's Work.
Candidate Chafin's day's work on Friday began at Pawcatuck, where for an outdoor meeting he had an audience of 100, and he spoke a succession before 70 at Myrtle, 200 at New London, 150 at Willimantic, 25 at Baltic, 250 at Torrville, 400 at Greenville, near the engine house, at 7:30 p. m. At a number of the meetings he was accompanied by County Organizer Ernest Allison Smith.

State Chairman Hohenthal.
State Chairman Emil L. G. Hohenthal of South Manchester opened the meeting here with a brief reference to the state tour. Thirty different meetings had been held and in all respect and interested attention had been given the speakers. Chairman Hohenthal devoted a few minutes to a brief mention of the candidates on the state ticket. For the prohibition platform he claimed that this party has blazed the way for numerous measures that now are found in what are called the progressive planks in other platforms, such as parcels post, conservation of natural resources, abolition of child labor, etc. Drink and debauchery and immorality will wreck any nation and these three evils will be extended as long as the liquor traffic is perpetuated and extended.

Captain Stanley a Terror.
Capt. Charles Stanley of California, a charming torrent of song and speech, occupied several minutes with a near-vandeville number, which had his hearers shaking with laughter, especially at his little imitation of the blue bull moose. Captain Stanley is a reformed comic opera comedian. He sat out the time for his topical songs with a foot and a breeze, to the audience to an enthusiastic pitch to greet Candidate Chafin.

Dr. Chipman of New London.
Dr. E. C. Chipman of New London, the candidate for controller on the prohibition state ticket, was introduced after singing Stanley had finished his "turn." The doctor addressed a few earnest words upon the scientific reasonableness of opposition to the liquor traffic.

Address by the Candidate.
Candidate Chafin was given prolonged applause as he rose and began his logical address upon Prohibition by Administration. He won frequent applause as he spoke in part as follows:

Points of Agreement.
We are here tonight to discuss the abolition of the liquor traffic. The world has ever undertaken to solve the liquor problem. Now, there are some things upon which we can agree. One is that the liquor traffic is the greatest curse the world has ever known. Another is that this curse ought to be destroyed. Not and branch in the whole world. And another, upon which I am sorry we must agree, is that after seventy years of the most heroic effort ever made, and at a sacrifice more costly in time, money and effort than for any other cause in the world's history, we find ourselves with the liquor traffic stronger and more thoroughly entrenched in the nation than ever. And more liquor consumed annually than in any previous year in our entire history. That being so, it ought to occur to good people that they may not have been using their time, money and effort in the right direction. They've tried the pledge and they've tried prohibition, and nearly every township or county between the Mississippi river and the Atlantic coast has, at some period, during the last sixty years, been under some kind of a prohibitive law; because 99 per cent. of our people have believed that we can destroy the liquor traffic by a prohibitive law.

Administration the Remedy.
And that is where the people have been wrong for the past sixty years. We never can destroy the liquor traffic by law alone. Law never has destroyed and never will destroy the traffic. (Now, don't have heart failure, my prohibition brothers. Just wait a little while and you will see that I have not been backsliding.) It is not law that destroys the liquor traffic. Law is not government! Administration of the law is government! And all the people who, for the past sixty years, have stood for destroying the traffic by getting a prohibitive law, have been all wrong.

Why have they been wrong? Because they have relied upon the law. The law is one per cent. in the destruction of the liquor traffic and the interpretation of the law and the administration of the government are 99 per cent. What is needed is a party elected to power that will deal with the manufacture and sale of liquor from the standpoint that it is a crime and not a business.

What will we do? Repeat the "infernal" revenue law—sometimes called the internal revenue law. Repeat the section of the statute in such state that permits the granting of a license to our party to carry liquor to power, and we will administer the government from the standpoint that the making and selling of liquor is a crime and not a business, and the thing will be dead. Elect us to power, and we will repeal a few laws and do the rest by interpretation of the constitution and administration of the government.

Ladies and gentlemen, I want you to get hold of this proposition tonight, as you never have before—that we are not a government by law, but by law and interpretation and administration of the law by the political party in power. That is the only way to carry out a great reform and theory of government. No one, except the non-partisan republican and democratic temperance prohibitionists, have ever proposed a great reform or a revolution without trying to get hold of every branch of government.

We think it is imperatively demanded that there should be an entire change of administration this year. Then we will administer the government as the supreme court, interpret the law and constitution, kill the liquor traffic, and after that as a matter of precaution, perhaps, amend the constitution.

We don't propose passing a local option or a prohibitive law or a constitutional amendment and getting a town dry, a county dry, or a state dry by law. There has been a more absurd plan carried on and called a method of dealing with the liquor traffic. It has been tried on any other political issue except the liquor question, people would have said the man proposing it did not have sense enough to ache when they were cold. And it is the same now, how long will it take your republican, democratic-temperance people to destroy the liquor traffic? You won't say it done when Gabriel blows his trumpet. And if we succeed in getting a law, turn the administration of it over to the two grand old liquor parties, they will nullify it; and if they cannot do it in any other way, they will seek to set aside by a decision of the supreme court. That's the non-partisan way, don't you see? That's been a glorious success, hasn't it?

Standpatter and Progressive.
The supreme court is a very important element in this proposition—more important than even prohibitionists have conceived. It was an issue in the last campaign. For fear any of you don't know, I will tell you the difference between a standpatter and a progressive: "A standpatter is a statesman who has stopped and you cannot start him; and a progressive is a statesman who has started and you cannot stop him."

The whole fight in the last campaign was over the question of administration—was it not—interpreting the constitution and the laws? Taft was elected. During the first three years of his presidency there have been five vacancies in the supreme court. He has already appointed a majority of the court. With what result? Every appointment, I believe, has been made with the expectation that whenever a decision on the liquor traffic is asked he will decide from the standpoint of the manufacture and sale of liquor is a legitimate business. Am I justified in making that statement? Let the facts speak.

A Monstrous Decision.
Think of the supreme court, in this age of civilization, calling whiskey that awful stuff—a legitimate article of "interstate commerce!" All you people living in dry towns remember the next time a man reels by you, and says, "He is full of interstate commerce; he has got too much interstate commerce in him, and is drunk!" Think of such a supreme court! Why, ladies and gentlemen, think of a supreme court making that kind of a decision—one without a fundamental principle of morals, law or government to support it, and a thousand to condemn it and give it the lie. In twenty-five years those judges will be classed with those who made the Dred Scott decision on the slavery question. It will be known as another infamous decision to fasten a monstrous wrong upon a nation.

A collection for the prohibition treasury was taken up at the meeting adjourned just before ten o'clock.
