TWENTY TAXPAYERS PROTEST.
 Complain to Board of Relief That Assessment is Excessive.

Taxpayers to the number of twenty told their troubles to the board of relief, who were in session at the town building, Saturday. William A. Buck, chairman, S. A. Peckham and John R. Pickett, secretary, constitute the board. The meeting was of unusual interest because the assessors had adopted a new policy in reassessing the town's taxable property at its full market value while heretofore Windham property has been assessed at one-third to one-half its real value. From the interrogatives of the board of relief it was apparent that their attitude was in harmony with the assessors in securing the facts that should control their decisions, and while of course there will be some changes when the board goes into executive session, it is probable the final findings of the board of relief will show the assessors in the main have erred very little in their judgment. Impartial experts on land values in the town propose that changes there are will in the main affect farm property. The grievances of the property holders were spoken before the board can all be summed up in one complaint of two words, "too high." There were no day flowers of oratory or tempests of words to give excitement to the proceedings. The property holders requested the board of relief to make changes in their lists that would reduce their taxes. Henry Slater, one of the assessors, C. H. Potter, Frank Thornberg, Albert Gurley, Huber Clark as agent for H. L. Scoville, Elizabeth Lynch, William C. Card, Kate F. Shea, M. A. Olmink, A. G. Turner, Frank Rosen, Fred Rothay, George Mianey, Elizabeth McGuff, Thomas Moriarty for the Kirby estate, Oscar Peterson and D. W. C. Hills.

 The right of privileges of a front-door entrance to a house at 28 Carey Hill, occupied by two families, is the foundation of a civil action brought Saturday by Attorney C. H. Curtis for Mrs. Zohos Fontaine against Mrs. Albertina Hebert, $100 damages being claimed for an assault alleged to have been committed Jan. 30 by the defendant upon the plaintiff. The case will be tried Feb. 8 before Justice C. A. Capon, when Zohos and Albertina will give their respective versions of the breach of the peace charge against Mrs. Hebert. Constable George Stanton of Norwich served the papers, attaching $150 of the defendant's deposits in a Norwich savings bank.

CITY COURT.
 Fine for Carrying Loaded Revolver—Discharge in Attachment Case.

In the police court Saturday morning Judge Arnold fined Edward Blyth $25 and costs for illegally carrying a loaded revolver. Judgment on the breach of the peace charge against the prisoner was suspended. Officer Chandler told the court he heard the discharge of a firearm in Young's restaurant about 3 o'clock Saturday morning, and when he arrested Blyth he found a revolver with four rounds in the chamber and one empty shell in the prisoner's possession. John Frost, claiming to be a native of England, was sentenced to 15 days in jail for intoxication Friday night. Assad Haddad, 19 years old, whom Sheriff Killbuck arrested Friday afternoon for breaking the lock and entering David Swyden's store on Church street, that had been attached by Sheriff A. J. Greenalt, was discharged. Swyden stated to the court that Haddad had been accustomed to assist him in selling goods in the store and there was evidently no criminal purpose in his going to the store and gaining an entrance. Judge Arnold told the ground that the attachment proceedings were incomplete because no notice had been placed on the door to show the property was under attachment. Since the police court proceedings Judge Bowen, attorney for the New York firm bringing the suit, ordered Sheriff Greenalt to relinquish the attachment. Later investigation showed that Mrs.

HON. GEORGE B. CHANDLER.
 Speaker at Vesper Service in Congregational Church—Subject Voices of the Hour.

The vesper service at the Congregational church Sunday afternoon was in charge of the Brotherhood. The addresses were by George B. Chandler of Rocky Hill, his theme being "Voices of the Hour." At length and in a scholarly and able manner he spoke of two centuries of history, the constructive life, unconscious of self, but who meets and conquers the problems of the world. The other restless but self-conscious life whose influence is destructive.

In an optimistic spirit he showed that the great institutions of civilization are a center of solidified principle of righteousness. Eloquently and forcibly, Mr. Chandler attempted to steady the wavering spirit of the age by emphasizing the forward march of philanthropy and industrial forces in society. He strikingly contrasted the improvement of present day conditions over the gross evils and injustices of a century ago. This is the age he said when men go about like raging lions seeking what they may devour. He considered the solidified principle of the family idea to be the safety of society and showed the errors and danger of the socialistic trend of thought which has allowed and misled so many. Not the subversion but the sane uses of the institutions of civilization that find their inspiration in the Biblical truths are the foundation of peace and prosperity.

 Mrs. Colvin was taken ill May 22 last, about a week after her return from St. Petersburg, Fla., where she had spent the winter. Her death was expected daily for several weeks, but she rallied from her very dangerous condition and though in a serious state of health and her recovery very doubtful, her condition remained practically unchanged until January 23, when she suffered another relapse.
 Mrs. Colvin was born at East Killingly in 1839, the daughter of James and Almada (Slater) Colvin and the fifth of a family of twelve children. The early years of her life were spent at that village. Afterwards she lived at Attawaugan, joining the Methodist church there. Later she lived at Tilton, N. H., Kennebunk, Me., and at Providence, R. I., where in 1865, she married Raymond M. For thirty years she had been a sufferer from a bronchial trouble.
 After becoming a resident of Danieson Mrs. Colvin visited her Methodist church here, but of late years has been unable to attend services on account of her health. She was a member of her long illness. Mrs. Colvin's trust was fully in the Lord. She leaves two brothers, Henry W. Danieson, and George M. Babson of Milrose, Mass.; Ellsworth O.
