AT THE DAVIS.

On the picture side the big attractions are offered for the end of the week at the Davis theater, with the four-part feature in reel entitled The Palace of Flames. It is a dramatic number, finely worked out and has an intensely realistic fire scene that makes one of the best photo-plays ever shown at the Davis. POSTMEN TODAY WILL BE CUPID'S MESSENGERS

Valentine's Day is Here—Bleeding Hearts and Comica Will Circulate As of Yore.

A day for the expression of tender sentiments, a day for the renewal of friendships, a day of making up quarrels, a day of pleasure to the youth and perhaps many another as well who is no longer youthful—St. Valentine's day, has arrived. All the world will have care today about opening its mail before another day to hide perhaps the real feeling with which the lines expressed in the cards are received; perhaps to hide the grinning, hideous picture with the ugly verse, which this small delight in sending to his dear school teacher or some elderly maiden lady who objects to having her grapes stolen or a baseball thrown through her front window.

All sorts of bleeding hearts, creations of lace and celluloid, and post cards will burden down the postman, who must welcome the happy St. Valentine's day with much the same pleasure as that which he feels today before Christmas. The stores were kept busy on Thursday, trying to please the late buyers who have the choicest sentiments or most hideous cartoons, whichever were sought, already gone. That the mail will be observed as religiously as ever is evident from the fact that in all the stores the supply of valentine greetings was sadly depleted on Thursday and all report a brisk sale.

REPELLED BY HER ENGAGEMENT

No Wedding Bells For Philip Buska and Olga Abugal at Fitchville—Engaged Last Monday But Bride-to-Be Soon Changed Her Mind—Prospective Groom Attached Her Bank Account For Breach of Promise.

Last Monday at Fitchville there was an engagement party at which Philip Buska and Olga Abugal, both natives of Russia, were duly betrothed and entered into a contract to marry next Saturday, February 15th. By the next day the young woman had had a change of heart and refused to be married on Saturday. Wednesday she was in this city endeavoring to withdraw her money from the savings bank where she had an account, but she was balked in this endeavor because it happened to be a holiday, Lincoln's birthday, and the bank was closed.

The holiday, however, was no bar to the attachment, which the prospective bridegroom was able to place on the girl's account in the suit for breach of contract which he promptly instituted. The attachment was made later in the day by means of the treasurer of the bank at his home. Thursday afternoon the two who had pledged their troth met here, the man was recompensed by the satisfaction with a money payment, and both parties gave their friends to understand that they were better satisfied with that way out of it than if they had gone ahead with the original hymeneal intentions.

It is understood that this is the second time that the two have been engaged and that the first time the young man came here from Detroit, the wedding was arranged for Saturday at the suggestion of the young woman was deferred. Buska then returned to Detroit, secured a good job there and has been there ever since until a letter from Miss Abugal encouraged him to come back here as she was ready to marry him now. Hopeful of success this time with his thwarted marriage plans, he made the journey east and the engagement party was held last Monday, only to have the prospective wedding upset again by the young woman's change of mind and heart.

It is probable now that Mr. Buska will return to Detroit and make no more trips east to marry Miss Abugal. Thomas M. Shields was attorney for Buska in the settlement of his suit.

SIXTH ANNIVERSARY OF LARCHMONT DISASTER.

More Than 160 Lives Were Lost in Collision Off Quonochontaug Between Steamer and Schooner.

Six years ago Tuesday night the steamer Quonochontaug, which was bound for Providence from New York, when dawn broke the life savers of the schooner Harry Knowlton discovered the schooner Harry Knowlton on the beach and her captain reported that he had been in collision with the steamer on the night of Feb. 8.

This was the first intimation that anyone ashore had of the sea tragedy which cost the lives of more than 160 lives and left 100 bodies never ascertained. Only 19 were saved, two of whom died afterward in the Rhode Island hospital. Only 92 bodies were recovered.

The night of the disaster was clear and cold, the thermometer being at about 16.20 when the schooner Harry Knowlton crashed into the steamer, which was off the regular beach track. In less than 10 minutes the Larchmont had gone to the bottom, 2-1/2 miles off Quonochontaug, and the schooner was in a dozen places ashore in Hibernia, including Captain McVey and some of the other officers and crew, while seven were picked up on a piece of floating deck 13 miles off Block Island by fishermen who braved a storm to make the rescue. Two women, the only ones saved, were taken to the hospital.

In the investigation which followed the fact was brought out that the loss of the schooner was due to the fact that it would have been otherwise because of the fact that there were no emergency signaling apparatus in the pilot house.

STUDIED MORMONISM.

Topic for Home Missionary Society at Trinity M. E. Church.

The Home Missionary society of the Trinity Methodist Episcopal church held its regular meeting on Thursday afternoon in the Sunday school rooms, with a good number present. Extra devotionals on Mormonism were read by the various ladies present. Mrs. Russell Woodward, the president, presided over the meeting. The president, Mrs. W. W. Coleman, a barrel of goods valued at $20 was sent to Rust Hall hospital at Washington, D. C., for the benefit of the sick and convalescing. The program of the trip composed of Misses Maude and Mary Crowe and Samuel Crowe, with Miss Elizabeth Crowe at the piano.

Following the meeting an excellent supper of cold meats and salads was served, since the first statement of Captain Free has been able to learn the name of the man on the Anna R. Henry Bristol is the name of the man who perished. This was learned from the custom house records in New York. At first it was supposed the name was Ericson as this was the way the name was understood at the office of the company employing the man. Captain Free has no way of finding out where the man was who the woman was who was on the barge, although the presumption is that she was his wife.

The statements of Godfrey Lumley and John Silk, other barge masters in the C. M. Fogarty tow, at the time of the Anna R's loss, have been previously taken by the inspectors. They would not say Thursday that information furnished by the barge men warranted them in bringing charges against Free. The inspectors said that they had no information to make public, but added that they had not taken the matter under consideration as a board yet.

Mr. Nolan expressed satisfaction with the progress that the Norwich school children are making with their penmanship, stating that he considered they were doing remarkably well.
