FIREPROOF, STEEL RAILROAD CARS

Bill to be Introduced in Congress Tomorrow to Compel Their Adoption Within Four Years

MUST INSTALL AT LEAST 25 PER CENT. A YEAR

Provision Also Made For Equipment of Railroad Lines With Automatic Switches, Signals and Other Safety Devices—Officers and Directors of Roads to Share Responsibility For Accidents and be Subject to Fine and Imprisonment

Washington, June 15.—Representative Roberts of Massachusetts announced tonight that as a result of the various fatal accidents which have occurred recently on the New York New Haven and Hartford railroad system he would introduce when the house reconvenes next Tuesday a bill to require all railroads in interstate commerce to use fireproof steel cars and equip their lines with automatic switches, signals and other safety devices as may be approved by the interstate commerce commission. Mr. Roberts said he would attempt to put the measure through congress as soon as possible.

Holds Officers and Directors Responsible

The bill would hold officers, directors and operating officials, as well as the companies, responsible for violations, and would provide for fines from $500 to $10,000 and prison sentences from thirty days to one year.

To Allow Companies Four Years

The companies would be given four years in which to complete themselves with steel cars, at least 25 per cent. of the equipment to be installed in the first year, and to complete safety devices in six months.

WEBER HIDES NAMES OF MEN BACK OF ATTACK.

Reveals Only to His Wife the Identity of the Plotters.

New York, June 15.—Louis Weber, known more familiarly as "Bridgie," has revealed to his wife the names of the men who plotted the attack on him early yesterday while walking in Eighth street, near Third avenue. The names of the men who actually plunged the kitchen knife into his back just below the left shoulder blade, Weber has refused to reveal to his wife the names of the persons who he is positive were involved in the plot to kill him.

Efforts by the police to learn from Mrs. Weber what her husband told her have been unsuccessful as the entrance to the apartment of Robert Rubin and the police to get a reliable statement from the injured man.

Webster, in his original story that his assassin was "some kid who did it simply to become known on the East Side as a 'bad man,'" Weber is of the belief, according to the police, that the East Side gangster do not have the least regard for the lives of having testified for the state in the cases of former Lieutenant Becker and the four gunmen who are in the death house at Sing Sing. He has told the police and the district attorney's representatives that the East Side gangsters are afraid of the summer and autumn prison.

Webster Feared Attack.

Despite the fact, however, it is known that Weber is feared for his life since he testified. This is borne out by the fact that he has had to hide himself and has been out only on rare occasions. When he did appear in his usual haunts he has been guarded by a number of men.

Weber and his wife sought safety in Cuba for a time, sailing under assumed names. She went to Cuba, and after a short stay they returned. Not long after they moved to the lower East Side, and his wife became known. Upon their return they made their home in the vicinity of Manhattan.

Webster and his wife moved to the lower East Side since he got in disfavor with his one time friends. He had gone there on Friday night to pay his respects to an old-time gambling friend, who was to open a cafe known as the Continental at No. 108 Second street.

Weber had scarcely entered the place when his presence became known. He was told to get out, and he fled. He was followed by a man who he believed was a friend, and he fled. He was followed by a man who he believed was a friend, and he fled.

Attacked Near Third Avenue.

The two walked west to Third avenue on the Continental, which is on Second avenue and Sixth street. Near the corner of Third and Sixth streets, a man lurched suddenly from a hiding place and plunged the knife into Weber's back.

It was some minutes before Langer realized that an attack had been made on Weber, and by that time his assassin had fled. Mrs. C. King, who lives at the corner of Third and Sixth streets, saw the man who she believed was the assassin, and she called the police.
