Charles H. Davis, Wanted in New Jersey for Non-Support, Arrested Wednesday—Hundreds at Funeral of Sheriff Sibley—"Genial Joe" Smith Dead.

Charles Henry Davis, alias Edwin Philip Davis, was arrested here by Officers Martin and Marlow on a warrant of the state of New Jersey, where the man is wanted at West Orange for non-support and desertion of his wife and family. Davis was arrested on the 27th inst. and taken into custody of a man of his prepossessing appearance attracted more than usual attention. After he had been locked up at the police station he made the comment that it seemed mighty unfortunate that he should be arrested on the 27th inst. and that he might save himself from being killed.

The quest here for Davis commenced Wednesday morning, when Chief William H. Bamford appeared in town from West Orange and sought out Chief George Pilling. The New Jersey town chief had a warrant for Davis' arrest and a photograph of the man—allegedly in a white vest and other sartorial essentials to looking like a real banana. Chief Bamford said that Davis has a habit of representing himself as a wealthy gentleman when he is "away from home." The visiting officer also had a post card mailed from Danielson within a few days of his arrest and it was this missive, giving Davis' box number here, that put the officers on his trail.

A morning's search for the man by the two chiefs failed to locate him, but shortly after Chief Bamford had left here the officers returned to the station house and continued until Judge of Probate J. H. Carter, in a petition for the arrest of Davis, ordered him committed to the state hospital. Constable Thomas Killouray took him to the institution during the day.
