After a stay of several weeks in Ireland, Richard W. Tobin and son, Richard W. Tobin, Jr., of Franklin street, have returned home. Mr. Tobin and his son left for Ireland on July 15 and they intended to remain there for a considerable period of time, but the war has interfered with their plans.

Power to Increase Town Committee.
James C. Fitzpatrick presented a resolution which was passed, authorizing the town committee elected to increase its members to sixteen members if it seems wise and expedient so to do.

Town Committee Members.
Chairman Barnes then called for reports from the district caucuses held on Monday evening. The following members of the town committee were elected: A. L. Peale, J. H. Holden, H. Alofin 2nd, and Arthur R. Blackledge. They were nominated respectively by W. E. Canfield, H. H. Pettie, H. W. Tibbitts and W. B. McKnight.

W. W. Ives reported that because of the few attending the second district caucus it had been deemed inadvisable to hold a caucus in the district to the party caucus, but he invited any voters of the district present to attend the party caucus. He proposed the name of Frank H. Woodworth, who he believed would meet with the approval of the district party for a number of years ago. This and Mr. Woodworth was elected.

The name of William S. Murray from the third district was ratified as reported by George E. Adams.

For the fourth district the town committee chairman reported that the number of voters at the district caucus had made it inadvisable to hold a nomination. A. J. Bailey suggested the name of Fred J. Prothro, who was elected by a large majority.

George E. Adams was the name from the fifth district reported by George N. Beardow and ratified by the caucus. The place from the sixth district was filled by the name of Casper K. Bailey, which was presented by James C. Blackburn, who said that the district caucus was too small to choose a name, but they had a good man in Mr. Bailey, who had been before the caucus for a number of years. A statement which was applauded.

After passing a motion that delegates are authorized to furnish their own names to the town committee if they occur in its own ranks, the caucus adjourned after a session of about 20 minutes.

WESLEY FROST.
Accordingly Mr. Tobin made arrangements to sail on the Adriatic of the White Star line. The steamer is to book cabin passage on any of that line's steamers, as the cabins have all been taken until October 15. The majority of the British war vessels have had to book at third class passengers, but after they had embarked they were given many privileges that they would not otherwise have enjoyed. As Mr. Tobin was unable to convince the authorities that his son was American born he had to pay $4 before they would permit the lad to sail with his father. However, at the request of Mr. Tobin sends a copy of the boy's birth certificate back to the authorities the money will be refunded.

The train service in the country was very unreliable, as the railroads have been appropriated by the government for military uses and the accommodations were poor, but Mr. Tobin managed to secure a room for the night of August 20, the night before he sailed. The next morning, August 21, at 7 o'clock, they embarked on a tender which was to convey them to the Adriatic at sea. The driver of the tender were unable to locate the Adriatic, so they put back to land and the passengers were taken to a dismasting. A little later in the day they made a second attempt to locate the Adriatic, but they were again forced to land. In the evening a third attempt was made and the steamer was finally located with the use of searchlights. A considerable distance from land and the passengers were put on board.

Two or three days after embarking on the big liner the steward told the third class or steerage passengers that rates had advanced since they had purchased their passage and they were forced to pay an additional fee. Many protested, but to no avail. A number of the third class passengers were allowed to eat in the dining room on the upper deck.

Just before the ship docked at New York a wireless was received from the American Protective Association offering assistance financially or otherwise to any of the tourists who were in need. The ship docked at New York early Saturday morning, August 23rd and all the passengers, cabin and steerage, were landed at the same wharf. This was much appreciated as it saved the steerage passengers the inconveniences attached to a trip to Ellis Island. All were kindly and generously treated and much interest was shown in the proceedings. The meeting was held for the purpose of making plans for the big labor demonstration in Bridgeport on Labor day and it is expected that there will be a good sized delegation from the Norwich Carpenters union. Another meeting will be held later in the week at which time additional plans will be made.
