VERDICT TODAY IN DOUGLASS TRIAL

Voluntown Horse Beating Case Will Reach Jury This Morning—Defendant Claims He Was Using Whip No More Than Needed to Get Sick Horse Home—Sentences Given to Four Who Plead Guilty.

When the criminal superior court here adjourned for the day on Thursday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock the arguments had all been concluded in the trial of the case of Voluntary Horse Beating. The defendant, George E. Bailey, on the charge of beating his horse on June 10 so that it died. When court comes in this morning Judge M. A. Shumway will make his charge to the jury, who will then take the case into their hands to decide whether Douglas is guilty or not.

When the criminal superior court here adjourned for the day on Thursday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock the arguments had all been concluded in the trial of the case of Voluntary Horse Beating. The defendant, George E. Bailey, on the charge of beating his horse on June 10 so that it died. When court comes in this morning Judge M. A. Shumway will make his charge to the jury, who will then take the case into their hands to decide whether Douglas is guilty or not.

Both sides rested at about 3:30 o'clock and the arguments were taken up with Attorney Warren B. Burrows, assistant to the state's attorney, making the first argument for the state. He was followed by Attorneys C. V. James and J. J. Desmond for the accused, and State's Attorney Hull made the final argument against the accused, ending at 4:30 o'clock.

Claims Made in Arguments. In the arguments for the state, the point was emphasized that the state did so to prove that the blows struck by Douglas actually killed the horse but that all they needed to prove was the fact of the inhuman beating. For the defendant, his attorneys argued that the horse was sick and that Douglas was doing no more than was needed to get the horse along the road so that he might bring him to a spot where medicine for the animal could be procured.

The case was resumed at 11 o'clock Thursday morning, Major Hill recalling James Dixon to the stand. Mr. Dixon showed two sticks which he had found where the horse was down on the road on the night of the beating. A white birch stick about six feet long that had been cut from a sapling. One of the sticks was bloody and had horse manure on it.

For the defense Nathan Gilbert Gray, veterinarian, testified regarding the injuries to the horse, and Civil Engineer George E. Fitcher explained photographs that he had taken of the location where the horse was in the road and where the horse was buried in the ground. William F. Whipple, a horse trader, testified that the horse was going slowly when it was driven by his sister.

Frances J. Stone gave testimony that she saw Mr. and Mrs. Douglas drive by her home and that they were going carefully. Charles R. Douglas of Voluntown, a brother of the accused, told what he knew about the case and claimed that the horse was sick and that his brother, the accused, was only using the whips on the animal in order to get it home where he could get medicine for it. He got the horse up after it had fallen on Forge Hill and urged it along towards home until it was nearly there, when it went down again. Then the accused went upon the medicine of which he gave the horse two doses, but the horse died that night. They got the ox team and dragged it out to the pasture, where it was buried.

This ended the testimony. Sentences Given in the Morning. Before the Douglas case was taken up in the morning the court was occupied for half an hour in taking pleas and imposing sentences in several cases.

When Byron Fargo pleaded guilty to taking $15 from a foreigner on the promise to get the man a job in the mill at East Greenwich, he was fined $75 and costs, which he paid. Attorneys Barnes and Babcock made a plea for the accused.

George Williams of New London was given eight months in jail when he pleaded guilty to stealing a horse that belonged to Bernard Belgrade. He was leading it to Providence when arrested on June 24th, and the court was informed that the man had some trouble over pay and taking the horse was one way he selected to square matters.

The case against Captain Clayton B. Cartwright and Daniel Sullivan, both bargemen was called up. They were accused of breaking into the store of W. I. Maine at Groton where they secured goods valued at $5 cents. Sullivan pleaded guilty and said that Captain Cartwright had nothing to do with the matter. Three men got drunk he said and one suggested breaking into the store. Attorney Douglas made a plea for Sullivan before sentence was pronounced. The case against Capt. Cartwright was not called up.

Harry Bailey, alias William Bailey, 17, pleaded guilty to stealing a dollar watch from the power boat of Harbormaster Jackson in Norwich harbor on the night of April 14th. The young man promised the court to do right and said that the only time he had been in jail was because he had been for sleeping out at night in the summer time. Attorney Douglas spoke to the court on his behalf. Bailey was sentenced to one year in jail, but execution was suspended and the young man was placed on probation.

Accused of setting fire to woods in Voluntown, Henry Bennett was not put to plea but the case was nolleed and Sheriff Brown gave him his liberty from the jail. The sentence given Telephus Gleason of Sprague in the court on Wednesday was from one to five years in state's prison and not from 5 to 20, as previously stated.

CABLEGRAM FROM MISS DOROTHY JONES.

Sends Word That She is Sailing for home from Marseilles, France.

Mr. and Mrs. Rollin C. Jones of McKinley avenue were greatly relieved on Thursday when they received a telegram from the state department at Washington giving them news of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Jones, who is in Europe. She had been in Rotterdam, where she had been located at Rotterdam, in Holland. The cablegram from Miss Jones to her father in Rotterdam, in Holland, and giving the information that she was safe there but could not get away. Mr. Jones appealed to the state department to release her, and she was released and she would try to locate her through the United States consular at Zurich.

While the reports from the farms of these parts show that it is a bumper crop year and the wheat and corn crop is going to have an exceptional yield, even if a trifle late, there are few fields that will exceed an either size or quality, that of Edward E. Abel. On his farm at East Great Plain he has 20 acres of it in flourishing condition, and for the most part below the ground already hoisted and fifteen feet. Within a short time, Mr. Abel will begin to cut the corn for ensilage purposes as fodder later for his herd of 25 cows, but before the harvest days begin, he will construct another commodious silo in addition to the large one his fine farm below the ground already hoisted and fifteen feet. The foundation of this second structure is already laid, ready for the superstructure and at the same time this farmer contemplates alterations and additions to his stable, which will leave them according to the most approved standards of modern dairy farms.

BRONSON COTTAGE BURNED AT PINE GROVE. Charles Mather's Cottage Also Damaged by Early Morning Fire.

The cottage of Mrs. Annie Bronson of Hartford, wrecked last spring in a fire at Pine Grove, was destroyed by fire at Pine Grove, Niantic, Thursday morning about 2 o'clock and the cottage of Charles Mather of Hartford was damaged to some extent.

The alarm was given at about 2:10 o'clock by Carl Tracy, who saw the blaze from his cottage in High street. He called William Farmer, who resides nearby, and together they alerted the neighbors to assist in handling the blaze. The flames had secured a start by the time of the discovery and there was nothing to be done but contain the efforts of the firefighters to adjoining property.

UP WITH STORMS. Thomas Riley's Leghorns Keeping Pace with Hens in Contest.

The White Leghorns owned and bred by Thomas W. Riley of 69 Boswell avenue, have made a record the last nine months that many poultry men would feel proud of. Mr. Riley thinks there are very few, if any, outside of the birds in the laying contest that have done any better and only a few Storms. From Dec. 1 to July 1, 21 Leghorns in a pen have laid 2,351 eggs; from July 1 to Sept. 1, 12 hens have laid 484 eggs. The pen was reloaded in number through selling about hens, so that there were only 12 to figure on the last two months. The monthly record is as follows: December, 80 eggs; January, 261, February, 330, March, 414, April, 451, May, 431, June, 414, July, 12 (hens), 248 eggs; August, 255. Each hen laid a trifle over 153 eggs in nine months.

Going Against the Strongin Campers. One of the annual events which takes place at the Strongin summer resort at Gardner Lake in the vicinity of the 688 club from Norwich is to be carried out on Sunday when a party of automobiles in automobiles will leave the city for the lake. One of the big features that has been arranged for the day is a game of baseball between the Strongin players, consisting of college men. It took 14 hard fought innings for the 688's to win last year by the score of 6 to 4. Now Manager Siegel has strengthened his 688's by signing Fish, the crack shortstop of the Hartford Independents. The battery for the 688's will be D. Bennett and Anderson for the campers, Gross and Murray.

LOADED TRUCK UPSET IN CLIFF STREET. Furniture Spilled into Street But Not Much Damaged.

While a heavily loaded truck belonging to M. Larsen was being backed up to the curb in front of the Royal Stamp store on Cliff street about 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon, the forward wheels became lodged under the body of the truck and the load was spilled into the street when the truck overturned and the driver and his helper were thrown off the truck and landed on top of the horse. Both luckily escaped injury and were able to look after the horse and the load.

Included in the load were four or five beer barrels and several pieces of furniture. The furniture was considerably damaged but is beyond repair. When the trucks upset the shafts were broken, but little damage was done otherwise. The horse was released from the broken shafts and the truck was soon righted.

Are You Prepared?

If not, WHY? You are losing money by the delay.

This is your opportunity! Why not grasp it and enroll now. Think this over. Why are so many people drawing low salaries with no chance of advancement? It is for lack of preparation. They have failed to pay the price that is demanded for a good position, the price of preparation.

Are you going to stay in the low salaried class forever, or get out of it for a good position?

This is the best time to enroll.
