Peter Lisewski and Miss Apolonia Polarkowska Married at St. Joseph's Church—John L. Fininski Ran New Auto Into Occum Sandbank—Other Notes.

At 8 o'clock Monday morning in St. Joseph's church Peter Lisewski and Miss Apolonia Polarkowska were married by Rev. I. Maciejewski. The couple were attended by friends of the bride and groom, and after the ceremony a reception was held and a wedding breakfast was served at the bride's home.
The groom has been living at 275 North Main street and is a Russian Pole. He is employed in one of the local factories and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Adele Lisewski. The bride was employed at the Yantic mills and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Polarkowski.

Lost Control of Machine.
John L. Fininski, who has purchased an automobile, while learning to run the machine, Sunday, landed in a sand bank in Occum, burying the front wheels and puncturing the tires. Mr. Fininski in some manner got a little confused, putting on power when it was unnecessary, thus landing in the sandheap, but no serious damage was done.

Rev. J. A. O'Meara's Preacher at Jubilee Mass.
Monday's New Haven Journal-Courier said:
The Church of the Sacred Heart yesterday celebrated the 25th jubilee of its founding with a solemn jubilee mass, the music for which was composed by the organist of the church, John Lynch, whose mass is a D minor, dedicated to the pastor, Rev. Michael McKeon, received its first hearing from an appreciative congregation in the parish, which was presided over by many music lovers and musicians.

The solemn high mass was celebrated by the permanent rector, Father McKeon, who has the distinction of being the only Catholic priest in the state who has lived a quarter of a century in a church which was consecrated within a year after his assumption of his charge. He was assisted by his nephew, Rev. John McKeon, of the River, and by Rev. Jeremiah Curtin of St. Lawrence church, West Haven, sub-deacon, and Rev. William P. Laffin, Father McKeon's curate, as master of ceremonies.

The sermon was preached by the Rev. James A. O'Meara of South Manchester, who was an altar boy and served during the consecration mass 25 years ago. Father O'Meara briefly sketched the changes which have taken place in the parish, founded a quarter of a century ago by Irish pioneers, poor in the goods of the world, but rich in faith. He contrasted the lot of the parish then, under Father McKeon, with the wealth and opportunity of the church now, its edifice paid for, a handsome convent and school, able testimony to the zeal and effort of its pastor. He assured his hearers the faith as were their fathers, "to realize how fortunate they are, today and thanksgiving should be their lot."

REPORT ON VOCATIONAL SCHOOLS

School Committee Finds Them Inadvisable Now For Norwich—Gives Facts and Figures From Experiences of Other Cities—Suggests Continuation Course and Some Pre-vocational Training.

The town school committee made its report Monday night at the town meeting upon the matter of vocational education. In a general way the substance of their report was that it was not advisable now for Norwich to attempt to institute a vocational school. The report was signed by the full town committee, Shepard B. Palmer, T. J. Kelly, H. M. Lerou, Charles O. Murphy, Dr. P. J. Cassidy and B. P. Bishop, and was as follows:
Report of School Committee on Vocational Education.

At the town meeting held in October, 1912, a resolution was passed empowering the selectmen to appoint a committee of three to investigate the advisability of establishing a technical high school in the town of Norwich. This committee made a careful study of trade and technical schools and at the following annual town meeting in 1913 gave a comprehensive and able report of their findings and then the town meeting turned the matter over to the town school committee for further investigation.
During the past year the town school committee, assisted by the superintendent of schools, have made a careful study of vocational education and training in this state, in Massachusetts, New York, and other places.

Four Connecticut Trade Schools.
There are now four trade schools established and maintained by the state board of education in Connecticut: one at New Britain, one at Bridgeport, one at New Haven and one at Putnam. During the year the school committee or a representative of the same visited all of these schools except the one at Putnam, which has been recently established.
The trade schools at New Britain, New Haven and Bridgeport offer the regular trade school courses. Part time for apprentices employed in the trade is arranged to suit the conditions of employment. The Putnam trade school differs from the others established in that it specializes in the textile industry and in Putnam the textile industry predominates.

In Massachusetts.
In a number of Massachusetts cities various kinds of industrial training are given. One of the most successful attempts to give instruction in trades in the public high schools is that begun at Fitchburg, Mass. Through co-operation of the manufacturers and the school authorities the pupils spend one week in the shops where they get the practical training and the next week in the school where they receive academic work.

The school committee spent a day at New Britain and made a special study of the local conditions. The trade school there has been established for four years. During this time the school committee of New Britain has had an opportunity to watch its progress and growth in the community and the school committee does not feel that it fully supplies the needs of the community.

Opinion of New Britain Superintendent.
Mr. Stanley H. Hojas, superintendent of schools of New Britain, says: "The element of academic instruction furnished by the trade school is exceedingly small. The course is too short for adequate trade instruction. The pupils are taken into the school at too early an age to profit as fully as they should by the training, and they complete the course at too early an age to be able to enter the industries upon an equality with skilled industrial workers of the same age. Furthermore, the trade school as now organized does not seem to make any strong appeal to boys and girls who desire a high school education combined with trade training. Nor does it succeed in attracting in any large numbers boys and girls of grammar school age who desire to complete the work of the elementary grades. The result is a comparatively small attendance at the trade school by both boys and girls of the city. That attendance is also to quite a degree made up of pupils who have failed in the elementary school work and who, as it should be, are the best general abilities, a situation which is undesirable from the standpoint of the community and of the trade school itself."

In view of the foregoing statement, the school committee of New Britain is now perfecting plans to take over the work of the trade school and employ the same in the public school system. Their plan is to establish a pre-vocational school of grammar school grade in this school, and also a continuation school for pupils who wish to take the household arts and practical arts courses.

At the meeting of the National Education Association of Superintendents of Schools held in Richmond last February, Mr. Lewis Gustafson, principal of the Rankin School of Trade at St. Louis, who is considered an authority on vocational work, said: "The best of the strictly trade school is so great and the scope of its activities so limited that it cannot hope to reach more than a small fraction of the skilled workers which are needed yearly to replace vacancies in the industrial ranks. Except where it can be subsidized by a private foundation it is doubtful whether the trade school can succeed as a public institution mingled with prayer for the perpetuation of their good fortune."

Runaways Open Season by Defeating Baltic—New Letter Box Appreciated—Brief Notes Gathered Here and There.
The Runaways opened their football season Saturday by defeating Baltic by the score of 10 to 0. In their initial game the local team showed much speed and cleverness and worked the forward pass for good advantage most of the time. The most shining light on the field was Joubert, who played a great game at halfback, making successive gains through Baltic's line when called on. Baltic made much ground on recovering fumbles they made. The two teams will meet again in Baltic at a later date. Unnecessary roughness prevailed on both sides during the game.
The lineups are as follows:
Runaways—Langlois le, J. Durdie, J. Davis, G. Williams, G. Gaucher, R. Weller, J. Murphy, G. DeMara, G. E. Durdie, H. Joubert, H. Flinders, H. B. Baltic—Mueller le, Headen, T. Couland, G. Lambert, G. Anderson, R. Mousachet, F. Fourrier, G. Carter, G. Jones, H. Taylor, R. Pelouquin, H.

WHAT TO DO FOR ITCHING SKINS
Eczema, ringworm and other itching humors are eruptions are so easily made worse by improper treatment that one has to be very careful. There is one method, however, that you need not hesitate to use, even on a baby's tender skin—that is, the resinol treatment. Resinol is the prescription of a Baltimore doctor, put up in the form of resinol ointment and resinol soap. This proved so remarkably successful that thousands of other physicians have been prescribing it. Resinol ointment and resinol soap can be bought at any druggist's. For free samples write to Resinol, Dept. 44-R, Baltimore, Md.
