

MACHINE GUN COS. IN MILITIA
One to be Organized for Each Two Regiments of Infantry—
Will Bring Connecticut Regiments to Latest Standard of United States Army—More Study for the Enlisted Men.

From the office of the adjutant general, C. N. G., comes a general order which reflects in some measure the added efficiency which the bureau of militia affairs of the war department is striving to secure in the organized militia of the state—possibly due to the need of increased military preparation due to the European war. From "high private in the rear rank" to the commander of a regiment, the courses which are laid down to be studied during the winter and spring are much more thorough than in preceding years. The immediate organization of a machine gun company for each of the two regiments of infantry is ordered, and the publication of the figure of merit is discontinued.

The work laid out affects the enlisted man more than his superior, whose course, with few exceptions, is about the same as in previous years. The new idea, however, seems to be for the enlisted man to accumulate more knowledge direct from books than through the oral training of his superiors. The Manual for Privates is to be read by the men, who are also to be instructed in minor tactics as laid down by the army school of the line at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. There are 24 specific subjects which are to be taken up in order by the companies at the weekly drills. One-half of the prescribed hour and a half drill period is to be devoted to them. The organization will be commanded by the adjutant general, who will bring the Connecticut regiments to the latest standard of the United States army. These companies will be commanded by the regimental commissary, whose rank on the colonel's staff is that of captain. The regimental adjutant has command of the headquarters company, which is composed of the headquarters detachment, or mounted scouts, and the battalion adjutants and the supply company, in command of the regimental quartermaster, who is assisted by the battalion quartermasters.

As used in the United States army, the machine gun company is almost solely for the purpose of defense, for helping the regiment out of a tight pinch when heavy fire is needed, or for strengthening the line in the last stages of attack. This is because field artillery makes its first target a machine gun in action, and will drop it else until the gun is silenced. In Europe, however, reports would indicate that the Germans are using the machine gun as a primary weapon of offense with great success.

COMMODORE PLANT HAS 100 ENTRIES AT STORRS.
Ten Pens in New Egg Laying Contest
Which Started Monday.

The fourth annual international egg laying contest opened Monday at Storrs. This contest, the bureau of agriculture is conducting by the Connecticut Agricultural College and the Storrs experimental station. One hundred pens of 10 birds each, an even 1,000 hens are starting the race. The first contest at Storrs three years ago comprised 49 hens, the second 60 and the third 82. Thus it will be noticed that the number of birds entered in the current competition eclipses all previous records. The hens in this competition are from 15 different states as follows: Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, Alabama, Florida, Michigan, Missouri, Ohio, California, and England. In the contest just closed there were 15 varieties of hens, whereas in the present competition there are more than 20 breeds, as follows: Barded, Buff and White Plymouth Rock, White Buff, Silver and Columbian Wyandottes, Rhode Island Red, American Dominique, Light Brahma, Black Langshan, White, Brown, Black, Buff, Leghorns, Light Sussex, Salmon Favonelles, and Sielian Buttercups.

Morton F. Plant, owner of Branford Farms, Groton, is the largest single entrant in the contest. He has 20 pens at Storrs in this laying contest five pens of White Rocks and five pens of Leghorns, or a total of 100 birds. Another very interesting entry is the three pens of "Favorite hens" put in by the Rural New Yorker. These three pens, comprising 30 hens, are owned by 20 different women residing in nine different states from Maine to Ohio, and all of whom have selected out of the flock at home their favorite hen and sent her away with them to contribute her share towards the success of the laying competition.

The Storrs agricultural station has made its customary entry for experimental purposes. This entry consisted of two pens each of five different breeds, namely: Barded Rock, White Wyandottes, Rhode Island Red, Light Brahma and White Leghorns. The 10 pens do not, of course, compete for prizes; they have been entered by the experiment station for the purpose of testing on several different breeds the value of sour milk as a feed for laying hens. England is, of course, always to be reckoned with. Her representation this year is stronger than ever before. Barron from Catforth, Cam of Stoughton and Collins from East Angles have sent over five English pens, namely: White Wyandottes, two of White Leghorns and one of Black Leghorns. In earlier competitions that American breeders are foes worthy of their steel. No doubt the one thing that most pleases the management of the contests is the fact that such breeders as Colonial Farm, Temple, N. H.; F. M. Peasley, Cheshire; A. B. Hall, Wallingford; Mrs. R. Woodruff, New Haven; Brasfield, Foulton, New Bedford; Pa.; H. P. Deming, Robertsville; Tom Barron, the Englishman, and others have for the fourth consecutive year been invited to participate in these contests. The trap nest record of a breeding hen must be worth some good, and well informed breeders from all over the country would not continue to patronize the project year in and year out.

Diphtheria Among New London School Children.

WILL BRING VILLARNI
BACK TO MONTVILLE
To be Produced by His Attorney in Newark on Wednesday

State Policeman Theodore Downing returned to New London from Newark, N. J., where he has been for several days in connection with the extradition of Prisco Villarni, charged with adultery and indecent assault on Iva L. Stone of Montville. Although Governor Baldwin issued extradition papers for Villarni and they were honored by Governor Fielder, Villarni refused to go to New Jersey with the state policeman because of the non-appearance of the accused at the hearing, due to an error of the presiding judge. Villarni was arrested in Newark about a month ago by State Policeman Downing and application was immediately made to Governor Baldwin for extradition papers, which were secured. The papers were presented to Governor Fielder and they were honored. In the meantime Villarni should have been held in jail pending the hearing on the extradition papers, but he was released by Magistrate Hahn on bail of $1,500 and placed in the custody of his attorney. When State Policeman Downing demanded Villarni on the extradition papers Wednesday, Attorney McElroy could not produce the accused, saying that he would be turned over to the state policeman Wednesday of this week. Colonel Adam Gifford will be on hand at that time to receive the man. Attorney John J. Lawless is prosecuting the case.

QUAKER HILL BURGLAR WAS SCARED AWAY
Had Broken Two Locks on Doors at John Nelson's Store

The store and waiting room of John Nelson at Quaker Hill was broken into early Sunday morning. For some unexplained reason the thief took nothing. Locks on two doors were broken by the burglar, who had access to the stock of the store. It is presumed that a straw ride party returning to Quaker Hill at 1:15 came along at the time the burglar was at work and the noise of the approaching party frustrated his attempt to lug away valuables.

COUNTY PRESIDENT GAVE
REPORT TO W. C. T. U.
Mrs. H. Addie Randall Told Norwich
Union of National Convention.

The W. C. T. U. held their regular monthly meeting in the Bill block at 8 o'clock Monday afternoon. Large attendance and with the president, Miss Harriet G. Cross, in the chair. Miss Cross read as the Scripture lesson the 3rd Psalm and Mrs. H. Addie Randall, county president, offered prayer. The members then united in the singing of "Blest Be Thou That Bindst, with Mrs. H. F. Palmer at the piano. The secretary, Mrs. J. J. Fields and Mrs. Purvis. The remainder of the appointments will be made later. Miss Cross exhibited the banner awarded the local union at the recent county convention. It is the largest number of members the past year. Mrs. Mead read a communication from Mrs. C. V. Shepherd of New Britain and Mrs. J. J. Shepherd of New London. While here Mrs. Shepherd was secretary of the Norwich union and she is now actively engaged in the W. C. T. U. work in New London.

Miss Cross then introduced Mrs. Randall the county president, who reported on the state convention held recently. Mrs. Randall said the convention was one of the best she has ever attended. It was unique in that instead of lengthy and drawn out reports they were demonstrated. Mrs. Margaret Dye Ellis, National W. C. T. U. superintendent of Legislation, Washington, D. C., who was one of the speakers at the convention paid a tribute to Secretary of the Navy, Joseph Daniels, for his strong advocacy of such a law in other parts of the country. Mrs. Randall said that Connecticut now has 29 unions and $495 members, a gain of 18 members the past year. Mrs. Randall also spoke of Mrs. Pratt, who is the National W. C. T. U. secretary and who also spoke at the convention. Mrs. Pratt urged the county presidents to work for a 20 percent gain and all promised to carry out the plan as far as possible. Mrs. Randall said she was very proud when she learned that New London county gave the largest amount towards the National W. C. T. U. fund. Mrs. Pratt referred to her report as a sheet of tools. The Union Signal and the White Ribbon Banner are the hammers, and the saws are the poeters. They cut away and fit up. We prepare children for the world and why not prepare the world for the children said Mrs. Pratt as quoted by Mrs. Randall. The nails are the least; the most things to the people's minds and hearts. In the evening before the convention open Mrs. Randall, the young people gave a poster parade. Mrs. Randall's annual address was considered among the brightest and wittiest.

Mrs. Randall also spoke of the appointment of the temperance cause this year. Mrs. Buell considers that we have made more progress in the country and even in the world than in any previous year. In referring to the report of Mrs. Scott, the state superintendent of cooperative missionary work, Mrs. Randall said that there are two million women in missionary societies, and spoke of it as a great field to cooperate with. Mrs. Randall also spoke of the forward movement taken by the Presbyterians and Congregationalists in favor of National Constitutional prohibition. Mrs. Randall said the W. C. T. U. workers never sound a note of dissent for they are sure of success in the near future. On the second evening of the convention, Mrs. Randall said, Mrs. Parcell

BUSY FINGERS
KNIT FOR SOLDIERS

American Women Join With Their Sisters in Germany, France and England in Knitting Soft, Warm Comforts for Soldiers on the Battlefield.

The spirit of loyalty to the worthy Red Cross workers has taken root in all grades of society and even schools in the form of knitting bees, where useful articles such as Scarfs, Wristlets, Abdominal Bands (shown in military circles as Cholera Bands), Socks, etc., are made for distribution to the fighting soldiers abroad through the agency of the Red Cross.

Transatlantic steamers have generously offered to transport articles for this purpose free of charge.

A canvass of several hospitals and inquirers as to the most important essentials invariably brought forth a reply that hand-knitted or crocheted articles on the above order were a god-send to the soldiers. A tourist tells of the arrival at hospitals of the wounded covered with blood, their clothing not having been changed during the time they were in the trenches possibly three or more weeks, and those that were badly wounded their clothes had to be cut off.

You will find English, French and German soldiers all being treated alike by our noble Red Cross workers with the greatest consideration.

Just picture to yourself a bleak, cold, stormy winter's night, and in the distance a lone sentry patrolling his post, lacking and sadly in need of a scarf, pair of wristlets or some other article of wearing apparel that would so much lessen the hardships of the winter's campaign, and you will realize the great relief the women of this patriotic nation could extend to those fighting soldiers if every one of them would contribute, just one article for their welfare.

If you could get a glimpse of the pitiful plight of the large proportion of these men it would make you sure with a desire to be a contributor to this most commendable work.

Take advantage of the present opportunity to benefit mankind and contribute by your handiwork to this cause.

was the principal speaker. She commenced her address by quoting temperance over taken at a W. C. T. U. years ago down to the present time. Through the effect of her talk the convention took up the largest contribution ever taken at a W. C. T. U. state gathering. Mrs. Taylor the medical superintendent had the most unique demonstration of the convention. Her demonstration consisted of ladies placarded as diseases. These ladies then told why they did not use alcohol in the treatment of their diseases.

It was announced that the state executive committee are to revise the report blanks. Mrs. Randall also outlined the mothers meetings. Mrs. Grace Curtis Eliot, state I. T. U. secretary, said Mrs. Randall had a very instructive and entertaining demonstration of her department work. Children from various nationalities carried American flags and their native flags while singing temperance songs. The demonstrators were very impressive. Mrs. Hyde, who is in charge of the department, came home very much encouraged. A rising vote of thanks was extended the speakers.

Mrs. S. Howard Mead reported there would be a parlor meeting on November 11 at Mrs. M. A. Ryder's residence at No. 32 Park street.

New London Had Appointment of Twelve and Others Came to Norwich.

Ruth Wyllys chapter, D. A. R. of Hartford, met Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the parish house of the Aylmer Hill Congregational church, with the direction of the superintendent, Miss Hyde, had the weekly services Sunday afternoon at the Sheltering Arms. Philip Luther was in charge. Hymns were sweetly sung, the pledge recited, the Twenty-third Psalm given and nearly every child present recited Bible verses.

Miss Hyde gave a short address describing the successful life as just the life that Jesus Christ asks us to live. He will ask us to be patient, gentle, helpful where He has placed us. Prayer can help so much in living every child. We can ask God to help others where we cannot help them. Most precious blessings come to workers in foreign fields, the result of prayer from the homeland. Twenty-five of the 28 members of the society were present. Miss Helen Avery played the accompaniment for the hymns.

children should be called to fight against their Indian neighbors, nor their transatlantic countrymen." The occasion of writing this story is to make record of one which is likely soon to pass into oblivion. Our colony seems to have been alone in acting officially in reference to these most unhappy people. As it led in a suggestion of republican government in 1839, so later it gave an example of humanity which was the beginning of many such acts in other places—as the world's history had called for them.
