

WESTERLY LICENSE MAJORITY OF 45

Will Put Town in the "Wet" Column for Next Two Years—Republican Candidates Had Large Majorities.—$25,000 Bonds Fixed in Clara Hunter Stanton Estate in Probate Court.

Judge Edward M. Burke held a regular session of the Westery probate court Tuesday. Mrs. Clara Carter Hunter Stanton, who died intestate, was appointed administrator of the estate. Attorney Samuel H. Davis, who represented Mrs. Stanton, stated that he did not know at present the estimated value of the personal estate, except that it included 30 shares of stock of the Carter's Little River Falls company.

As a matter of fact, this method of paying car fare and expenses of political parties and is considered perfectly legitimate. It is done everywhere and at every election, but was featured just at this time in the interests of no-license in view of the fact that the majority for license when last voted upon two years ago was only two votes.

The no-license campaign which has been in active progress for the past month had the effect of creating an interest in Tuesday's election that in the memory of the oldest electors has not been equaled in Westery. The license question was the main issue of the election, and it was the vote for congressman, state officers, state senator and representatives being classed as of secondary importance.

Equire Albert B. Crafts voted in Westery Tuesday for the first time in seven years, or since his removal to Cranston. Mr. Crafts owns real estate and a large cottage at Pleasant View and decided to make Westery his legal residence and to become a real estate voter.

There was just a ripple of political excitement in Westery before the polls opened Tuesday morning, caused by the publication of the fact that a young man of the town whose father is in the liquor business made an effort to get three men to come from Providence, where they are employed, to vote in their home town.

Vote on License First district—Yes 385, no 272; a majority of 48 for license. Second district—Yes 377, no 338; a majority of 39 against license. The result in the town is license by a majority of 45, as against a disputed majority of 2 two years ago. As the law specifies that vote on license shall be taken on state election day, and such election is biennial, Westery will be in the license column for the next two years.

The voting strength of the town is 1656, and 1492 votes were cast, showing that only 227 electors failed to vote. Most of these were not in town Tuesday. It is the largest vote ever polled in any election in the town of Westery. As evidence of the extra effort to get out the vote, three electors who voted in Westery in 1912, voted in the second representative district Tuesday.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If your Back is aching or Bladder bothers, drink lots of water and eat less meat. When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract.

Drinking lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Sighting the Sardines. The schools of sardines appear suddenly along the Breton coast in June. They come by millions, and the water takes on a silty tint from their presence beneath the surface. This phenomenon is awaited intently by thousands of fishermen, and when the cry of "Here they are!" goes up there is as much excitement as is occasioned by the whistle's shout of "Star the blow!"

Cheap Power. Natural steam coming up through the ground is a cheap power for running an engine in the northern Tuscan mountains. Lakes of hot water in the vicinity of the steam holes, contain much boracic acid, and a manufacturer company uses the natural steam to run machinery for extracting the valuable boracic acid from the lake water.

An Eye to the Future. The late Wilson Barrett possessed a valuable old dresser who had the good fortune to be built on the same classic lines as Barrett himself, and accordingly inherited his master's cast-off clothes. One day something had upset Barrett at rehearsal, and he lost his temper. Every one stamped out of his way. He strode into his dressing room with flashing eyes, and so indignantly dashed his hat with great violence into the corner of the apartment. The faithful dresser, who knew every mood of his master, was quite unperturbed. He merely exclaimed, in bland tones, but with a touch of reproach: "Here, steady, gov'nor; I've got to wear that some day!"

Fountain Pens Old. If fountain pens have not attained perfection in the present day it is not because their youth warrants their indiscretions, for, according to a writer in the Pall Mall Gazette (London), this form of combined ink reservoir and pen has been in use for over 300 years. E. S. Bates in his "Touring in 1000" shows, he says, that travelers wrote with them at that time. In the following century they appear to have been in common use, a dictionary published in 1754 defining "fountain pen" as "a pen made of silver, brass, etc., contrived to contain a considerable quantity of ink and let it flow out by degrees. To use the pen the cover must be taken off and the pen a little shaken to make the ink run more freely."

What Saved the Home. In the American Magazine a man who has had twenty-five years' matrimonial experience says that he and his wife were growing farther apart and constantly quarrelling. The family would have been wrecked had it not been for two things, which he describes as follows: "First" was the baby—a healthy, charming child—to whom we were intensely devoted. For months the baby was about the only subject we could agree upon. The other safeguard was our sense of humor. I have since thought that no two persons should marry unless one or the other has a sense of humor. With us the sense of humor usually came to the rescue at the most trying times. One or the other of us would be struck with the ludicrous feature of our quarrel and laugh, and pretty soon we made up."

Testful Dam Builder. In speaking of the river regulations of the ancient Sir William Willocks, the noted English engineer, said: "Cyrrus the Great controlled the Gynides, a tributary of the Tigris, in a truly original manner. Babylonia was already peopled, and lands were needed for his Persian troops. The Gynides discharges 40,000 section feet and runs thirty feet deep in a sandy and mobile bed. He could build no regulator, so he dug thirty canals, divided the waters of the river among them, closed the river by an earthen dam and completely controlled it. As he could never have induced his wild soldiers to dig these canals for any useful purpose, he took advantage of the fact that his favorite horse had been drowned in the flood and urged his soldiers to dig the canals and dissipate the waters of the river in such a fashion that it could never again drown a

Francis Bacon. The death of Francis Bacon was caused by his devotion to the cause of research and scientific investigation. During one of his excursions to the country he conceived the idea that animal substances may be preserved by means of snow. He procured a fowl and conducted the experiment himself. A severe cold was the result, and in his already enfeebled condition he was not able to withstand it and died of what we now know as bronchitis April 9, 1626, aged sixty-five, at the home of Lord Arundel. He was buried in St. Michael's church, St. Albans.

A Mannish Lady. An eccentric lady who was a source of great amusement to the then Prince of Wales in those earlier years was Lady Sophia Macnamara, who is described in "On the Track of the Great." She was the most independent woman I have ever met—robust and breezy, wont to wear a hat of the kind we christened the "hard boiled egg"—an uncompromising looking plain straw hat, such as men wear, without any decoration whatsoever. Of an evening she used to sit next the heir to the British throne, listening to the music, wearing her "hard boiled egg" and smoking a big cigar, and when that was finished she would light and smoke a second. One couldn't help admiring a woman who was so absolutely indifferent to conventionalism.

AMERICA'S CHRISTMAS SHIP, JASON SAILS NOV. 15 WITH GIFTS FOR CHILDREN OF EUROPE RENDERED FATHERLESS BY WAR.

Illustration of Uncle Sam holding a large sack of gifts, with a child and a soldier in the background. Text: UNITED STATES COLLIER JASON, AMERICA'S CHRISTMAS SHIP TO EUROPE. The United States collier Jason has been designated by the navy department as the Christmas ship that will take the gifts of the children of America to the children of Europe, whose fathers have fallen in the war. She will sail Nov. 15 from New York. This movement was started and taken up by many of America's important newspapers, and children all over the war zone, whose Christmas at the best will be sad, sad indeed. The Jason will stop first in England and then go to Havre, France. From there she will visit other countries. She is starting early so as to be sure the presents reach the 1,000,000 fatherless war children of Europe before Christmas. The Jason is 538 feet long and can carry 10,000 tons. She is of steel throughout and cost nearly $1,000,000. Gifts must reach New York by Nov. 3. Many railroads are carrying the gifts free.
