Industrially, Danielson and the whole town of Killingly enjoys a season that has brought more prosperity than has fallen to the lot of most of the towns of Connecticut. A Dirty Street. The condition of Main street was illustrated Thursday noon when a local attorney on a sidewalk was bespattered with mud from his neck to his heels by a passing automobile. There's a fine highway over, Foster was thought. Danielson business men have been called upon to give up liberally, in the aggregate, for the Wednesday stamp tax that became effective this week. The tax has hit the tobacco dealers, drug stores, dry goods stores and others selling articles that must bear the special stamps.

With the near approach of the establishment of the city delivery service of mail, it is becoming evident that many persons are not going to avail themselves of the service, preferring to go to the postoffice for their mail. Want Congressman to Name Dayville Postmaster. It is understood that Congressman E. F. Mahan is to be urged to name one of the democratic candidates for postmaster at Killingly (Dayville), where Postmaster Edwin L. Republican, continues to hold office, though his term expired several months ago. There has been special interest for Danielson business men in the announcement that the business men of Putnam and Windham are making arrangements for special lighting in the commercial centers of those cities during the holiday season. Danielson a borough, adopted the plan several years ago. Passengers on trains and trolleys

With two exceptions, the teachers in the common schools of Killingly have addressed a petition to the town school committee for a two weeks' holiday season instead of one week, as provided for in the calendar prepared for the present school year. An arrangement at present, the Christmas vacation would commence after the close of school on Friday, Dec. 18. Self Evidence of Liquor Law Violation.

All persons who have—or think they have—information relative to illegal selling of liquor have been invited, and before this date, to send such information to the temperance committee. This is the open season for hunting down the violators of the law. The committee wants all the information it can get. It will appreciate the furnishing of it through letters addressed as indicated. No signatures need be appended, though the signing of one's name is an evidence of good faith. Popular Company Comes from Norwich. Jimmy Valentine's Pais was the title of the lively show presented at the Orpheum theatre Thursday evening by the Danville Glee and Musical Comedy company, which came here after a successful half week at the Auditorium theatre in Norwich. Jimmy's Pais were a real frisky group. With the leading role in the hands of Elva Grieves, comedienne, there was action during every minute of the show, which was a great laugh producer and included ten fine musical numbers. The show has fourteen people and is one of the best of the souvenir edition musical shows that have proved so popular with Danville audiences. School Attendance Reduced. General von Mumpia, an old campaigner, is on the job again, attacking the children of school age in Danielson. Suffering with the affliction, a number of them have had to give up their studies for the time being. Attendance in some of the schools of the town is considerably reduced by the number of pupils who have the trouble. Rexall-Baltic Game Given Up. The basketball game scheduled between the Rexall five and Baltic for Dayville Wednesday evening was cancelled. The Rexall team has been disbanded and a new organization formed to be known as the Dayville Athletic Association. William Orman had been selected as manager and Merrill Bennett as treasurer. A captain of the team was elected and this (Friday) evening the team will go to Putnam for a game with the high school team.

TWO DEATHS IN HOUSE. But They Were in Different Families in Lee Street. Two deaths occurred within an hour at a house in Lee street on Thursday morning. The deaths were in different families and those who passed away were Mrs. Onasine Montville, aged 70 years, and Albert Broussseau, aged 44 years. Mrs. Montville has been a resident of Putnam for years. She leaves a daughter, a resident of this city, and a son, who lives in Providence. Mr. Broussseau was very well known in Putnam, where he had lived practically all his life. He has been ill for some time, but the announcement of his death came as a shock to his friends. He was a member of Putnam local, B. I. L. He is survived by his father and mother, a sister and two brothers, Eugene and George, of this city. MODEL PRISONERS. Frank E. Howarth and Lindley Cain Win Commendation at Wethersfield and Cheshire. At the end of their first year of incarceration for having inflicted on Putnam a firebug scare that will long remain in the memory of many citizens reports come from the state prison at Wethersfield and from the state reformatory at Cheshire, where Frank E. Howarth and Lindley Cain are respectively confined that they have been model prisoners, living up to every rule of the institution and earning for themselves that esteem that is conceded by officials in charge only to those who have deserved it by rigid regard of every rule of discipline. Friends of the young men whose only feeling toward them has been one of sympathy find consolation in the reports of their good behavior and strength for their belief that there is a great amount of good in both of them and that they will live down the unfortunate experience that has taken them away from the living world during some of their best years. Both young men have given every confidence during the last year of their intent to deserve the confidence of their fellowmen for the future, which, in view of their youthfulness, may be long and profitable.

C. school on the evening of Thursday, Dec. 17. men, stands a first-class chance to be house chairman of the judiciary committee and majority leader in the next house. Congressman Jeremiah Donovan was in Bridgeport recently and the politicians were excited. The excitement was naturally increased when it was announced that he had called at the court house, talked with Deputy Sheriff John M. Donnelly and then he was in conference with State Attorney Homer S. Cummings. Some of the wise ones jumped at the conclusion that there was to be an announcement regarding the postmasterhip in Bridgeport. An effort was made to reach Congressman Donovan but it was not successful. Quite a few of the political workers are of the opinion that something will break in ten days. Congress comes in again for the short term next Monday and many think the matter will be settled before Congressman Donovan returns to Washington for the winter. Tomorrow the sale closes

But one day left in which to take advantage of what is generally conceded to be the most successful piano sale ever held

Copyright, 1914, Stone & McCasick, Inc.

Tomorrow, it's all over. Tomorrow night at 10 o'clock when the store closes, this sale closes.

Two hundred and fifty pianos and one hundred and fifty player-pianos will have been sold.

And more.

As, for two or three days, we have been taking orders for two or three styles which have been entirely sold.

But that was the understanding. That is what kept this sale open until Saturday night—so that we could appoint a definite time at which to close it and give every person a fair and equal opportunity to take advantage of it.

Had we closed the sale when the assortment of styles became broken, it would have been closed during the middle of the week.

But we arranged with the Autopiano Company to supply us with such additional instruments as we would need to fill all orders taken up to and including Saturday night at the close of business.

Thus, with this concession from the Autopiano Company, you are as well off tomorrow, the last day of the sale, as you were the first day, as far as the completeness of the stock is concerned.

You may have to wait three or four days upon the delivery of your instrument, if you select one of three or four styles—that is all.

But well can you afford to wait, to obtain the advantages of this sale. You could wait indefinitely, for advantages like these.

However, you will not have to wait but three or four days at the outside, and then only in event you select a style which has been entirely sold.

But you can come in here tomorrow and lay down a single dollar, and share in the advantages of this unprecedented sale, just as well as you could on the opening day.

This sale is being conducted simultaneously in 16 of the largest mercantile establishments in the United States.

It was inaugurated by the largest piano industries in the country to counteract a lull in the piano business, due to the war in Europe and unnecessary pessimistic talk at home.

The central idea of the sale, was that pianos could be sold now in just as large numbers as they ever were—

If they were sold for less than they were ever sold before;

If smaller payments were taken than were ever taken before;

If more liberal conditions of sale were given than were ever given before;

And with this as a starting point, the following plan was worked out and became the basis of this sale:

First: $350 pianos would be sold for $266.

Second: $550 player-pianos would be sold for $413.

Third: The first payment would be reduced to one dollar.

Fourth: The first year's payments on pianos would be placed at one dollar a week.

Fifth: The first year's payments on player-pianos would be placed at one dollar and 75 cents a week.

Sixth: You would not have to pay interest on account of the long time you were given in which to make your payments.

Seventh: Your money would be refunded after a thirty days' trial, if the instrument you selected was not satisfactory.

Eighth: You would be permitted to exchange your instrument if it was not satisfactory, at any time within one year, without incurring loss or extra expense.

Ninth: You would be given a five-year unconditional guarantee; the strongest ever placed upon any piano or player-piano.

Tenth: And last, but not least, we would make it a practice to cancel the accounts of those purchasers who should be so unfortunate as to die before their payments had been paid in full, provided their accounts were up to date at the time of death.
