UNCLE JED'S TALK TO WIDE-AWAKES - Uncle Jed wishes every Wide-Awake a Merry Christmas, and he hopes every one will sense the joy of giving as well as receiving.

It is a real pleasure to be remembered; but there are little boys and girls who are looked by Santa Claus every year because we do not look sharp enough after them to get them on the list of Santa Claus.

Children who think only of what they want for Christmas only find half the happiness there is in it. We all belong to the Saviour's family and when good things are being distributed He feels sorry for the little lamb who doesn't get into the manger.

Nelly's Three Friends. The nursery was very pleasant with its open fire. Before the fire was a strong ladder to keep Nelly from going too near.

She had three dear friends who were almost always to be found in the nursery—Julia, the doll; Tabby, the cat, and Hannah, the nurse.

All round the fire were tiles with pictures on them and near the fire was a picture of Nelly. Hannah knew all the stories and used to tell them to Nelly. Tabby was black with white paws, and a little white bell collar.

At first Julia, the doll, had beautiful curly hair but she was so ragged now, as if a mouse had gnawed it. Still, Nelly loved the poor doll just as well as for that.

Every day she washed Julia's face, and brushed her hair, and taught her the letters. I would take off this torn dress, dear, and give you a nice new one, said Nelly, but I can't get it off. Hannah sewed it on too tight.

One day Julia, the dear doll, was naughty, and would not say "round O" and "crooked S," so she had to stand in the corner, with her face to the wall, while Nelly played with her Noah's ark.

She set Mr. Noah and his wife and horses and cows and dogs and cats and birds all in a long row, and she stood up on the carpets, so they were put on the roof of the ark, with one leg on each side.

Just as Nelly was trying to make the last bird stand on its feet in came the cat. Tabby ran with one bound from behind the ark and knocked them all over with her paw.

"Naughty, naughty Tabby!" said Nelly. "You know I never let you play with my Noah's ark." "I must scold you," said Tabby with a roll of her tongue.

But Tabby was rolling Mr. Noah over and over, first with one paw and then with the other, and she had caught him in her mouth and ran away with him.

LOUISE M. DEMUTH, Age 10. Jack's Swim. Jack's swim was a forest in the forest about ten miles from shore is a camp known as Mountain camp. Today being rainy, was a miserable one.

This river which is bordered on both sides by a dike to prevent the water from overflowing the land. As it was put there about three days ago and it had not rained since it had been put there, people were not sure whether it would ever overflow.

Tom Mason, one of the members of a patrol camp, had been sent to gather driftwood down by the dike. He noticed as he arrived at the dike a small stream of water coming in spurts from the bank of moss, etc., which formed the dike. He quickly ran and got a stick with which he stopped up the hole.

He then hailed for Jack to come to the city for help. Jack obeyed quickly and like a horse plunged into the river and swam to the other side and he soon came back with help. How he saved the land was never forgotten.

RAYMOND CHESTER WELDEN, Age 11. Son Saved His Father. A youngster, aged 11 years, recently saved his father's life by his ability to put into practice a lesson which he had learned at school.

His father, recovering from an illness, and being able to walk about the room, struck a match one evening to light a pipe. He had just lit it when he noticed that the head of the match fell inside his dressing gown. The inflammable material was ignited in a moment.

He saw the smoke and he cried out: "Father! You are on fire! Lie down, quick!" The man was by this time enveloped in flames, but he obeyed his son's advice, and he was too weak to do anything for himself. The boy seized a rug and placing it over his father smothered the fire.

When asked afterwards why he thought of this way of putting out a fire, the boy said he learned it in school. FRANK PARDY, Age 13. A Selfish Dog. A hungry dog once found a large piece of meat. He was very glad to get it, and he was sure he had had nothing to eat for a long time.

A Christmas Story. About nineteen hundred and four, the people of the world were ruled by a great king named Caesar Augustus. He was so great and powerful and thought he ruled the whole world, but to see how many countries he did rule, and to find out how much land he owned, he caused a census to be taken, and each man enrolled must pay him a quarter of a dollar for being such a great king.

It was a great bother to be enrolled, for instead of sending a census, he had to go to the place where he was born, and almost everybody had to either travel or a donkey's back. In Palestine there was a town called Nazareth and in this town a man called Joseph had his wife Mary.

He was poor, but when he heard his king's orders he hastened to the town of Bethlehem, seventy-five miles away from Nazareth. He and his wife Mary, and the child who was to be born, were on their way to Bethlehem. At first they enjoyed it, but the way grew tiresome and worst of all when they reached the inn there was no room.

"Wasn't there room for Mary?" Joseph asked, and the donkey could not answer, but there was no room even for Mary. Finally the landlord shouted, "You may go to the stable and sleep, and the donkey and the ox and the ass."

In a far country there were shepherds watching their sheep and toward midnight they were startled by beautiful music and heavenly light, and the angels came near them and said: "Fear not for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be born in the city of David a Savior which is Christ the Lord."

Then the music burst forth and the angels began to sing and to praise the Highest, on Earth Peace, Good Will to Man. Then the shepherds hastened to the manger and there they found the baby wrapped in poor clothes, and kneeling beside him was Joseph and Mary. He was the King of Kings and the Savior of all men until the end of the world.

MICHAEL BURNS, Age 13. Girls Who Never Heard of Christmas. I was walking along a country road one day and there were some girls behind a fence laughing and talking and one of them said, "Did it come to you on Christmas?"

The girl stared at me and never said a word. She didn't know what Christmas meant. "Don't you know Christmas," I asked. The little girl shook her head.

Then another girl with bright black eyes began to sing the singing of bells. "You know Christmas, don't you," I asked. "Yes," she said, "we don't get our dolls on Christmas. We get them on New Year's day."

All the other girls smiled and nodded and said: "My dolls get our dolls on New Year's day." "What is your doll's name?" I asked. "Rosalia," the little girl said.

Then she said, "I have a French girl's away off across the water and they celebrate New Year's instead of Christmas. They have lots of girls and boys over there never hear anything about Noel, which is their word for Christmas. But they get some nice presents on New Year's day."

They were so excited they forgot to thank Santa Claus, who was off before they knew it. "Santa Claus remembered us, after all," said Charlie. The dear, dear Santa Claus, they never thought it was Mrs. Whitney's idea. John had had dressed as Santa Claus and came to visit them.

MARY RYBIC. A Wagon Action. "Lie still, little brother, I won't hurt you," said Mildred Mason, a bright little girl just seven years old; and she pulled her baby brother down on a rug close to the grate and caught his hands in her arms.

This happened before the two children were dressed. The little boy had his hands close to the grate and caught his hands in her arms. The brave sister knew how to help him. She smothered the flames and so saved her brother's life. GRACE MAHONEY, Age 10. Colchester. Two Foolish Goats. One day a goat went to take a walk. He walked along very quietly until he came to a very narrow bridge. In the middle of this bridge he met another goat. Then the trouble began.

Both goats were very angry and silly. Neither one would give in to the other. They butted each other and locked horns. Then both fell in the river and were drowned. DONA HOWARD, Age 10. Westerly, R. I. Likes to Go to School. Dear Uncle Jed: I am six years old. I am in the first grade. My teacher is very kind to me. I like to go to school. THOMAS SHEA, Age 6. Versailles. LETTERS TO UNCLE JED. The Goose and a Little Pig. Dear Uncle Jed: On a farm near where I live are many pigs, geese, horses, cows and sheep. They are very good friends, as animals almost always are except when they need each other for dinner.

A deer cannot be expected to feel very friendly towards a tiger waiting for him to spring upon him. A fish cannot be expected to receive with friendliness a crane which darts down from the air in order to snap him up in its beak; but pigs do not eat geese, and cows do not feed upon horses, so they can afford to live together in peace. Upon this farm there lived a goose that was so full of her own importance she walked about as if she were queen of the place. She was being fed by the Christmas market and her fate was to be stuffed with sage and onions; but she did not know this and she stuffed herself with pride, instead of with food.

If she had been content with gazing at the sky and talking to herself it would not have mattered much; but she refused to stand in a gap through which the animals had to get from one field to another, and she refused to let them pass. One of the dwellers on this farm was a little black pig and he wanted to go through this gap, so he walked right through it, but soon came running back to his mother, for he had had a bite. Still, he would not give up, but thought of a plan to work later on. He dropped a few blades of grass, then rushed for the gap and bit the goose, which went flying to the barnyard. After he had done this he ran back to his mother to carry the news. LILLIAN BREHAUT, East Norwich, N. Y. A Helping Hand. Dear Uncle Jed: Long years ago there lived a daughter and her grandfather. They lived by the sea in Holland. One day the daughter was crying and the child said that she wanted to go fishing. The grandfather began to put on his raincoat and his hat. The mother was afraid she would be in danger if she did so. She put a scarf around her neck to help her keep warm. She was dressed up like the children of Holland. They lived mainly by fishing. Her grandfather was not poor or rich. He was the best fisherman in the town. He had shown his little granddaughter how to row. They went out a whole day and had a happy time. LENA LA CASSE, Age 12. Uncasville. His Big Cat. Dear Uncle Jed: I want to tell you about our big cat. He can sit up when he is hungry. His name is Jumbo. He came to us two years ago. We named him Jumbo. He is the color of a tiger. STANLEY SMITH, Age 9. South Windham. Methen Leve. Dear Uncle Jed: One fine summer day in the country, as I passed a thick bush, I heard the twitter of birds. Looking over the bush I saw a pretty girl with a bun, waiting for me. There were four young birds and the mother bird. The young ones were hopping about, their wings moving. I went to the playground and play with my friends and have hammocks and swings and seesaws and lots of other amusements. We enjoy ourselves very much. I pick up apples from the ground. ANNE HOFFMAN, Age 7. Norwich. She Has a Good Time. Dear Uncle Jed: My garden is beautiful. I go out to the playground and play with my friends and have hammocks and swings and seesaws and lots of other amusements. We enjoy ourselves very much. I pick up apples from the ground. ANNE HOFFMAN, Age 7. Norwich. The Games She Likes to Play. Uncle Jed: I will tell you and the Wide-Awakes some of the games I like to play. I go out to play Hide and Seek, House, and Guessing games. This is the way to play Guessing game: All the players sit in a ring. One of them thinks of something and tells the letter of it. And the rest of the players guess it. MARY GORMAN, Age 7. Versailles. His Bantam Hens. Dear Uncle Jed: I have a bantam hen. I have had her four years. When she wants something to eat she will jump up into the dish and eat out of it. HORACE SMITH, Age 8. South Windham. Heat Your House With Gas By Using a Gasteam Radiator. Each radiator is a steam heater in itself. It has a gas burner and a fan. There is no coal to carry in and no ashes to carry out, and it does away with an endless amount of dust and dirt. It maintains an even temperature and the gas flow is shut off automatically when the desired steam pressure is reached, thereby preventing waste of gas. came to us two years ago. We named him Jumbo. He is the color of a tiger. STANLEY SMITH, Age 9. South Windham. Methen Leve. Dear Uncle Jed: One fine summer day in the country, as I passed a thick bush, I heard the twitter of birds. Looking over the bush I saw a pretty girl with a bun, waiting for me. There were four young birds and the mother bird. The young ones were hopping about, their wings moving. I went to the playground and play with my friends and have hammocks and swings and seesaws and lots of other amusements. We enjoy ourselves very much. I pick up apples from the ground. ANNE HOFFMAN, Age 7. Norwich. She Has a Good Time. Dear Uncle Jed: My garden is beautiful. I go out to the playground and play with my friends and have hammocks and swings and seesaws and lots of other amusements. We enjoy ourselves very much. I pick up apples from the ground. ANNE HOFFMAN, Age 7. Norwich. The Games She Likes to Play. Uncle Jed: I will tell you and the Wide-Awakes some of the games I like to play. I go out to play Hide and Seek, House, and Guessing games. This is the way to play Guessing game: All the players sit in a ring. One of them thinks of something and tells the letter of it. And the rest of the players guess it. MARY GORMAN, Age 7. Versailles. His Bantam Hens. Dear Uncle Jed: I have a bantam hen. I have had her four years. When she wants something to eat she will jump up into the dish and eat out of it. HORACE SMITH, Age 8. South Windham. Heat Your House With Gas By Using a Gasteam Radiator. Each radiator is a steam heater in itself. It has a gas burner and a fan. There is no coal to carry in and no ashes to carry out, and it does away with an endless amount of dust and dirt. It maintains an even temperature and the gas flow is shut off automatically when the desired steam pressure is reached, thereby preventing waste of gas.
