Wife Husband's Champion Against Constable.

A dispute over a bill for $6.94 and costs caused somewhat of a mixup Thursday afternoon down in the third ward. Constable Chauncey MacFarlane went down with a writ of attachment to close up the place or get the bill paid. Mrs. Gittin objected to the constable's attempt to seize possession of her husband's property, and according to the officer attempted to hit him with a piece of a wagon wheel rim, and he pushed her away. The Gittins claim the officer struck the woman. The matter was settled Friday by the payment of the bill and costs, but the Gittins say it will not stop there.
