GOVERNOR'S DAY AT CAMP AT FORT WRIGHT

Connecticut's Commander-in-Chief to Spend Thursday There.

His Excellency, Governor Marcus H. Holcomb, will visit the state Coast Artillery encampment at Fort H. G. Wright, Fishers Island, Thursday of next week. The date has been set apart as Governor's day and there will be special ceremonies incidental to the visit of the chief executive of the state.

Governor Holcomb will be accompanied by Brig. Gen. George M. Cole, adjutant general of the Connecticut National Guard, and members of the governor's staff. The party will arrive at New London Wednesday night and will go to the island on the first boat Thursday morning. An officer of Col. Henry S. Dorr's staff will be detailed as escort for the governor.

On arrival at Fort Wright, Governor Holcomb and party will be entertained at breakfast by Col. John D. Barrette, commanding the coast defenses of Long Island sound, of which Fort H. G. Wright is headquarters. After breakfast the governor will review the Coast Artillery corps of 1,000 men. Thursday the guardsmen will have their first full service firing with the big guns. The six, ten and twelve inch guns will be fired. Governor Holcomb will have the opportunity of seeing the big guns, which are the bulwark of the nation's coast defense, fired by the citizen soldiers of his own state. Governor Holcomb will return from camp in the late afternoon. During his stay at the camp, regular army officers of Fort Wright will assist in making his excellency's visit pleasant. Friday was a quiet day at the camp. There was company inspection of the big guns and beyond this practically everything was routine. Friday evening the entire regiment paraded and the regimental band gave a concert.

Monday and Tuesday there will be sub-camp firing. This is preliminary to the working of the big guns which is the most important work of the entire encampment and an event to which the guardsmen look forward eagerly.

The health of all the men in camp is excellent and there have been no accidents, barring the light injury to Private Frank Gray of the First company, to mar the pleasure of the camp. The weather is ideal and the guardsmen are in fine spirits at the prospect of one of the best encampments in the history of the corps.

The biggest company, numerically, at camp is the Sixth of Norwich, which brought 79 men. Captain Mosman is in command. Lieut. Hugh M. Bell of New London is assigned to this company for the camp. The first com-
