High Fee No Bar.

It was stated here Tuesday that the number of applications for licenses, notwithstanding the cost of a license—$750 this year—will not diminish in Killingly from the number filed in other years. Killingly had ten licensed places in 1914, the last year of license, this being three less than might have been granted, but sufficient for all purposes.

Through the breaks of fortune Killingly this year, with a board of selectmen reduced to three members, has representatives upon it of the progressive, republican and democratic parties. The board will have in Mr. Sayles the only representative resident outside of the borough.

Voted 14-Mill Tax.

Killingly voted a 14-mill tax at the annual town meeting Monday, but there was talk of dissatisfaction with this action about town Tuesday and the possibility of a special town meeting being called to see if the vote will be rescinded and the tax rate made 12 mills, as last year.

Ditatory Julia Should Be Sent Home.

Do you know Julia? Never heard of her, perhaps. Well, Julia is a sweet little girl, not much over five, with dark curly hair, a winsome face and sparkling eyes. Julia comes to public attention this morning that her mother may be relieved of worry about her when she does not come home as early as she should afterwards. Julia, reflecting much of the beauty that is common to the little belles of Sunny Italy, has developed the peculiar trait of forgetting to go home, forgetting being used in the mesmeric sense to Julia's father, an Italian laborer who met death in a tragic manner in this city a few years ago, left his wife and little children in difficult circumstances and the mother has bravely endeavored to help the little flock to improved maturity.

In all seriousness the request is made through The Bulletin, morning that all persons seeing the little girl in the stores or on the streets after 4 p. m. Tuesday, should notify the police and that she be sent to her home, thereby greatly assisting her mother. Julia will be perfectly willing to tell anyone where she lives.

Hodgdon, Maine.—"I had salt rheum in the worst form for over two years. It caused my hands and arms to swell and feel numb. They were all covered with watery blisters and would burn, itch and smart so I could not do housework. My hands and arms looked as if they were poisoned. Oh! How they burned and itched. I also had a rash on my face and could not sleep at night. "Then I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I washed my hands with the soap, dried them and then applied the Ointment. The first time I put it on it was so soothing to my burning hands, and healed the watery blisters. After using Cuticura Soap and Ointment a few weeks, I could see a great difference and now, today, my hands are soft and smooth, and the itching is all gone. They are completely healed." hereabouts in what the will contains has remained very much of a mystery. The world said: A conference has been arranged for tomorrow between counsel for the estate of Norman B. Ream, whose fortune has been estimated at $40,000,000 to $100,000,000, and representatives of the comptroller of the state of New York. This conference is the culminating effort on the part of the state to obtain schedules of the late multi-millionaire's property within New York.

The state has so far received neither such schedules nor any copy of the Ream will. It desires definite information concerning all Mr. Ream's property within its jurisdiction to enable it to impose the proper inheritance tax. The state's investigators have brought to light nothing upon which such a tax may be levied, with the exception of a few hundred dollars worth of well-worn furniture in the late financier's former offices at No. 24 Broad street. The document was filed and admitted to probate shortly after Mr. Ream's death Feb. 9 last.

The document for the first time reveals the true history of the shattered romance of the youngest son of the family, Louis Marshall Ream, and his girl bride, who was Miss Eleanor Pendleton, at the time of the marriage repeatedly one of Broadway's great beauties.

Large Sum Settled on Bride. The will so carefully guarded, furnishes evidence that young Ream and Miss Pendleton are no longer man and wife, the latter inheriting a princely one from all reports—and she a settlement which her sister informed a World reporter she had independent of the stage for life.

The conference tomorrow, if the hopes of the comptroller's office be realized, will bring out the Ream will, which will show the value of Mr. Ream's properties, may even result in the production of a copy of his will. The World is unable to give the assessed valuation of the estate in full; but the salient features of the will are:

1. One-third of the estate is left to Mrs. Caroline Putnam Ream, the widow.

2. The remaining two-thirds are to be divided into six equal parts and constituted into six trusts. Each child of the other officers Ream, wife, Vice-shall Ream) inherits one of these trusts.

3. The country estate of Mr. Ream in Thompson, Conn., is left to his widow. This estate, Carolyn Lodge, has been valued at from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000.

4. The greater part of the estate consists of stocks and bonds. It is believed to be due to this fact that the six trusts were created for the throwing of vast quantities of stocks and bonds into the market would be likely to depreciate greatly the value of the inheritances.

5. The will provides for no large bequests to charities or other public enterprises.

JAPANESE GOLD COIN SHIPPED TO UNITED STATES $17,365,000 to Pay for the Cotton Bought Here This Year.

Tokio, Sept. 18 (Correspondence of The Associated Press).—Japanese gold in the form of coins is being shipped to the United States in considerable quantities to pay for the cotton bought in that country. The export of gold from Japan in August was $4,780,000 yen (about $1,365,000), while in the corresponding period of last year it was $3,545,000 yen. The balance in favor of export so far this year was $9,817,000 yen.

The cause of the drainings of gold in the face of heavy increases of exports is attributed generally to the demoralization of the exchange rate between England and America.

Monday, Tuesday evening the Modern Woodmen of America celebrated their thirteenth anniversary at Odd Fellows' hall, Essex.
