William Man Acted Strangely in Local Store—Pinochle Club Holds Annual Social.

Clifford St. George, who says he comes from Willimantic, was the instigator of a very exciting minutes in a local store Thursday.

St. George came into the store, hung up his hat and coat, and proceeded to pay for a pair of shoes. He was comfortable for himself, taking handfuls of pennies, popcorn and also supping on a slice of pie. The proprietor, after paying, the proprietor asked him a few questions, to explain such actions, where he lived, etc., and received a grin for an answer.

He called Officer Reeves to question the stranger and the officer could get no satisfaction out of him save that of a deft. Constable Gus Lambert of Occum was summoned, who questioned the stranger and asked to remove himself and showed fight for a minute, but Constable Lambert took him and with the help of Officer Reeves and the proprietor they lodged him in Lambert's machine. He was taken to the city courthouse.

George was held in city court Friday morning and was fined for resisting the officers.

Pinochle Club Gave Dance.
The Tatville Pinochle club gave their annual social in the form of an old-fashioned dance at the Potomac hall Friday evening. Uncle Sam's emblem was conspicuously displayed in all corners of the hall, and on the west side of the hall was stationed the throne of Professor Tinkham, who was prompter and master of ceremonies.

All of the well-known dances were enjoyed, with the Scottish Road Symphony orchestra furnishing music under the direction of Eader, Greenman.

During intermission, light refreshments were served. The committee in charge were William Chamberlain, chairman, Allen Board, Dennis Connelly, John Sharples, William Kendall, Henry Fountain and John Seddon.

History of Company.
The United States Finishing company was the result of the efforts of Peter Reid and Henry A. Barry, both now deceased, who came to this city in 1867 from Boston, where they had been employed in a bleaching, the former as a manager and the latter as a bookkeeper.

Both were comparatively young men but their experience in business was advanced and they were keen and far-sighted. They leased a piece of land from the Dundee Water Power and Land company and erected a small frame building on the site. There they began to dye and bleach cotton goods. The business grew and developed rapidly. The partners leased more land and finally erected substantial brick buildings.

As the years passed the business reached such a size that it was necessary to have storage room for goods. They purchased property on the northwest corner of Passaic street and erected a three-story brick storage house.

During the period from 1867 until 1882 the business was carried on under the partnership name of Reid & Barry, but in 1882 it was decided to organize a company, and the result was the partnership became the Dundee Dye Works.

For 13 years the concern was known under this title, but in 1895 the United States Finishing company was organized, and it was decided to change the name to the Dundee Dye Works. From that time until about four years ago, when the New England Finishing company was organized, the Dundee Dye Works was known as the Dundee Dye Works.

During its long existence the concern has always been familiarly known as the Dundee Dye Works. It has scores of men who worked for
