

Snow-white, sweet and pure—these Adams Chiclets; candy and chewing gum that make your mouth water. Melt them on your tongue. Taste the delicious candy. When that's gone chew the gum. When children like them it's a pretty good sign. A box in the house on a rainy day helps.

FROM GRATEFUL ARMENIANS

A Tribute to Secretary Barton and the American Board.

The officers of the Armenian National Defense Union of Boston recently gave a dinner to Secretary James L. Barton, of the American Board at which not only Dr. Barton's personal efforts in behalf of the Armenian people but also the services of the American Board were gratefully recognized.

others. An unusual and remarkably interesting gift to Dr. Barton was a fine reproduction in needlework of the Gilbert Stuart portrait of Washington, the work of one of the ladies connected with the entertaining society. As showing the spirit of the meeting both toward Dr. Barton, who himself lived for seven years in Turkey for the defence of the inalienable rights of our persecuted race; as one who "understands our history, our national heroism in keeping up our Christian faith, our virtues and our difficulties and tendencies;" and then Dr. Jellalian continued: "What I have so far indicated is a tribute to Dr. Barton as an individual. But he is today the senior executive officer of the great Congregational Missionary Society, the American Board, the missionaries of which have been laboring among us for a century. What a brilliant galaxy of scholars, statesmen, philanthropists and devout Christian workers those pioneer missionaries were! The greatest missionary that the American Board sent to Turkey was Cyrus Hamlin. He was an empire builder. When we were hungry, he gave us bread, when we were sick, he gave us medicine. When we were thirsty for knowledge and education, he gave us a magnificent institution of learning on the Bosphorus, which will ever shine as a beacon light of the glorious Anglo-Saxon civilization to the teeming millions of the Orient. His name is engraved upon the tablets of our grateful hearts. It is possible not to mention the name of his successor and famous son-in-law, George Washburn, who for fifty years had a great benevolent influence upon the public life of Turkey as a statesman and educator? "Ellas Riggs, one of the profoundest Biblical scholars of the 19th century became our benefactor by his translation of the Holy Scriptures into our national vernacular. To be sure, he did not give us a new Gospel, but he gave us an open Gospel. "Furthermore, the American Board, through its missionaries, gave us educational and charitable institutions, which have bestowed untold blessings upon our people and country. "The American missionaries, by introducing into our national life the English language and literature, put us in contact with the great Anglo-Saxon world. They taught us the sanctity of the Sabbath. "Dr. Barton would have been an unknown quantity to us but for the fact that he was sent to us by the American Board to give us the same personal services to our race, we must not forget to mention here the present organization which for a hundred years has been the sustaining power in the process of the regeneration of our national life."

Most of the power boats about the village have been made ready for the summer season and several have already been leased to summer people. Most of those formerly in the lobster business will enter it again this year, despite reports to the contrary, and most of the gear is being completed. The Mermala, a pleasure boat owned by Contractor E. E. Scowling, is being made ready for launching, having been painted. The Lottie, Captain Rathbun, is hauled out at the Stewart yard for overhauling.

WESTERL HAS VARIETY OF STRIKES

Everybody Doing It—Trolley Tie-up, Quarrymen Out, Painters' Union Quits—Road Laborers Threaten to—Meantime Band Opens Park Concert Season.

The trolley tie-up surely has its effect in this section, and there is an absence of that clipped appearance that clings with it the impression to strangers that the village of Westerly has a real busy city. It is, in fact, as goes the trolley traffic, for here is the terminal for all cars to and from Norwich, New London, Watch Hill, Westkapag, and elsewhere on the Westerly trolley lines. The absence of trolley cars gave the village a changed appearance and was the cause of very much inconvenience. The public taxicabs were kept busy, and big auto-trucks were pressed into service to convey workmen to and from Watch Hill, Pleasant View and other distant places.

The trolley company, in order to meet its contract for the conveyance of United States mail, has arranged bills for the service from Westerly to Watch Hill, Westkapag, North Stonington, Ashaway and Potter Hill, and from Westkapag to Old Mystic, and these mails were delivered on schedule time.

Many residents of Westerly depend upon the trolley lines for merchandise and other necessities, and the inconvenience of their inconvenience and detriment to their business, but they do not hold the trolley company wholly responsible for the tie-up.

The Norwich and Westerly Traction company supplies considerable power to the Westerly Light and Power company, and nearly all that is utilized for power purposes in Westerly. In consequence the local consumers could not operate their business, among them being the granite quarry, and the George C. Moore company. As soon as possible the Westerly Light and Power company started in to furnish the required electric power and had been in operation but a short time when there was a break in the machinery. In the meantime the Norwich and Westerly Traction company had been in operation at White Rock in operation, and by 9 o'clock there was uninterrupted service in motive power.

Several of the strikers were about the streets during the day, but declined to talk of the strike situation.

There is labor trouble at the Kimball granite quarry in Westerly, and the granite workers quit their jobs, they declare, not to return until there is an adjustment of the grievance. The workers have an agreement as to wages, working hours, etc., but the walkout is due to another cause. The foreman of the plant is objectionable to the workers and it is claimed that recently he had a quarrel with them. There was a special meeting of the union and it was voted that no union work be done until the quarrel was settled. The foreman was in charge. This action was reported to the owning firm. The workers were retained and the workmen left the work.

At a meeting of the Granite Manufacturers' association the matter was discussed and it was decided to advise that the granite workers violate the agreement, as it is clearly specified therein that all disputes, misunderstandings or grievances shall be referred to a joint grievance committee before any positive action is taken.

The members of the Westerly Painters' union are also numbered among the voluntarily unemployed, having declined to resume work Thursday morning unless there was compliance with their demands. Due notice was given the employers and the painters are now out on strike. The painters demand an eight hour day at a minimum wage of $3.25 a day, with a Saturday half holiday. They also demand that there shall be bid contracts for each five journeymen. It is not clearly stated what constitutes a full-lined journeyman and the dividing line between journeymen and apprentices is not clearly defined. The painters, who are also paper hangers, demand a wage of 45 cents an hour, or a minimum wage of $3.50 a day, and half day Saturday.

The laborers in the employ of the A. V. Construction company, at work at Watch Hill on the contract for the reconstruction and rebuilding of the highway between Westerly and Watch Hill, made a demand Thursday morning for an eight hour work day instead of nine hours, as at present. The men agreed to continue work pending a possible agreement, but insist that their demand must be complied with by next Monday or a strike will be declared. When the demand was first made the laborers dropped their shovels and their hoes, but were prevailed upon to resume work pending settlement.

These real estate transfers have been recorded by Town Clerk Everett E. Whipple since transfers were last reported in The Bulletin: George Cappuccino to Luigi Lunzi at ux, house and lot north side Westerly and Bradford highway; Franklin D. Lawson to H. Bracken Dye, two lots at Muskecoly; Antonio Ferraro to Angelo Gradone at ux, house and lot Tower and John streets; Esther Evans to Horace E. Burdick, lot in East avenue; Horace E. Burdick to Esther Evans, lot in East avenue; Washington Trust company to Franklin D. Lawson, two lots at Muskecoly; Edna M. Vincent to Alvira C. Sisson, undivided half interest in house and lot west side of River Bend cemetery; Hannah A. Kenyon to Alvira C. Kenyon at ux, house and lot west side Watch Hill road; Washington Trust company to Andrew W. Fisher, the Wells block north side of Broad street; Leonardo Cappizzano at ux to Orion L. Underwood, house and lot in Tower street.

Gavitt; excerpts from The Blue Paradise; Eysler; waltz, Sunset in Eden Hall; popular air, Loading Up; Mandy Lee, Marshall; grand selection from Carmen, Beyer; popular air, In the Glory of the Moonlight; Wench, mch. Local Laconics.

The postoffice at Westkapag was opened Thursday for the summer season.

Martin H. Spellman has purchased from Charles P. Ecclestone two building lots on the north side of Narragansett avenue extension.

Maurice W. Flynn, superintendent of vehicles issued by the city, has licenses Thursday by reason of the trolley road strike.

The coast guard crews at the life saving stations along the coast quit the service Thursday for summer vacation at midnight of Wednesday. They will report for duty Aug. 1.

Governor Beekman's request that flags be displayed throughout the state for three days previous to the independence parade in Providence next Saturday received but little recognition in Westerly.

A representative of the Seagraves company was in Westerly Thursday in consultation with the committee selected to purchase a hook and ladder motor-driven truck for the Westerly fire department.

Rev. William F. Williams officiated at the funeral of Mrs. Alexander Lowry, and there were many friends and relatives in the services, which were held at her home. Burial was at Rive Bend and the bearers were James Maxwell, Robert Duff, F. M. Brown and John Dods.

Jitters Help in Strike Situation. Mystic was quiet Thursday when the trolley cars did not pass in the main street on account of the strike which had affected the whole of the line on the side of New Haven. The people who were depending on the trolley to take them to work were somewhat delayed, but several jitters were very quiet around the powerhouse.
