No More Back-Breaking Scuttles To Be Carried Up Those Cellar Stairs

If you buy coal in large quantities you must have room to store it; if in small quantities, it is expensive. When you want to use it you must carry it from its storage place to your range, and of all tasks that is one of the most weary.

When you burn wood or coal you have the heat, dirt, and the trouble of attending to the fire. If you use gas you require no room for storage; no back-breaking scuttles to be carried from the cellar to the kitchen. The fire in the gas range burns steadily and without attention; it is always ready, without dirt or trouble, in large or small quantities.

New Asphalt Mixture Will Take Longer to Dry, But Will Give Even, Durable Surface—Lawsuit Speedily Follows Auto Crash—Over $300 for Visiting Nurse Association

According to orders just issued by the adjutant general, the drill season of the Rhode Island National Guard will begin on Monday, Sept. 4, which is a full month earlier than usual, and is in compliance with the regulations of the war department. It is required that each organization drill at least forty-five times a year and because of this the early resumption of drills is made.

Although the cavalry squadron and Battery A are on the border duty for an indefinite period, they have provided for their drills, as well as for the coast artillery companies in the state. All commands of the state guard will follow the weekly assignment of drill nights, as was done last year, until further orders.

The same general orders announce that the basic course and other examinations will take place Nov. 13, and examinations for the eligible list for officers will take place early in January.

Frank Bartlett McSoley, former chief scout of the Rhode Island Boy Scouts, and known to many in Westerly, died Tuesday at his home in Providence, in his thirty-first year. Following an attack of typhoid fever, he had been in poor health for nearly a year. At the time of his death he was assistant engineer of the Narragansett Electric Light and Power company, owners of the Westerly Light and Power company. He is survived by his parents, Bartholomew McSoley, and Mrs. Carrie A. McSoley. The funeral will be held at the Church of the Assumption, Providence, at 9 o'clock Friday morning.

The highway committee will soon commence the improvement of the impaired section of Broad street, and Elm and Granite streets, in the village of Westerly and the Main street in the village of Bradford. Each of these streets will receive a substantial top dressing of trap rock, gravel and sixty per cent. asphalt, so mixed and rolled that substantial, durable and even-surfaced highways will result. The topping of asphalt being much thicker, than the thickest coating of oil ever used on the highways of Westerly, and the consequent longer time required for drying, will undoubtedly provoke much adverse criticism, as is usually the case when this heavy dressing is first introduced in city, town or village.

As there can be no public improvement without some public inconvenience, this criticism will have no effect upon the commissioners, as they are self-satisfied that when the improvement is completed, and conditions become normal, the commendation substituted for condemnation.
