OLD-TIME REMEDY MAKES PURE BLOOD Hood's Caraparilla has been and still is the people's medicine because of its reliable character and its wonderful success in purifying, enriching and revitalizing the blood and relieving the common diseases and ailments: scrofula, catarrh, rheumatism, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, that tired feeling, general debility. Hood's Caraparilla purifies and enriches the blood, and in so doing renders the human system the greatest service possible. This medicine has been tested for years. It is perfectly pure, clean and absolutely safe, as well as of peculiar and unequalled medicinal value. Get Hood's, and get it now from any drug store.

ADMITTED TO STATE CHAMBER Local Chamber of Commerce Now Affiliated With State Body Norwich Delegates Attended Annual Meeting in Middletown—State Finances Looked Upon as Important Matter—Joseph T. Cruttenden Elected Vice President. The Chamber of Commerce of Norwich, Connecticut, was on Thursday admitted to the Connecticut State Chamber of Commerce and from now on the newly organized chamber will be affiliated with the state association. The admittance was made at the annual convention of the state body in Middletown, Joseph T. Cruttenden of this city was elected vice president of the state chamber. Last year Mr. Cruttenden was second vice president. Among the speakers were W. H. Childs of New York, Edward Elliott, president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, and Hon. Mr. Cheney of South Manchester. William A. Somers a state director, attended a meeting of the state directors in Middletown Wednesday evening and returned here for the annual meeting on Thursday. The election of officers resulted as follows: Edward P. Jones of Westport, president; Joseph T. Cruttenden of Norwich, vice president; R. La Mott Russell of South Manchester treasurer; F. E. Valentine of Derby, secretary and re-election as secretary and the officers were empowered to select his successor at the next convention will be held in Hartford. The need of co-operation between the state body and local chambers of commerce was emphasized by Charles A. Pease, of Hartford, president of chamber, in his annual report. He pointed out that while the individual chambers could accomplish much for the benefit of their communities, the co-operation of these separate units, through such an organization as this, accomplishes in many directions that which could not be done by individual action. Referring to legislation, he said that perhaps the most important matter that has to be taken up in the legislature of 1917 was the question of state finances. He continued:

"For the providing of revenue sufficient to meet its expenses, new taxes would have to be levied. It is a matter that has been undertaken by any other commonwealth. It was especially provided that some of these should be tried on for two years and the matter brought up again in the session of 1917. To study the working of these laws in the interim is manifestly both desirable and necessary. A committee of able men, appointed for the purpose, has called into conference with it representatives of all the interests subject to state taxation. These interests enthusiastically fall in with the proposed action, both in the direction of advice and consultation, and in the sharing of the expense and for some months experts have been working on the question. If the outcome of this shall be that a scheme can be brought forth, which has the reasonable assurance of interests involved and presented to the next general assembly as a plan likely to raise the revenue necessary for the expenses of the state what an improvement it will be to having the subject debated with bitterness, perhaps, in committee and here for the year. The speaker said that such an object could well command the interest of every chamber of commerce and added that he really hoped that some might be taken up the same way including that of pollution of streams. Taking up the freight situation, Mr. Pease said that cooperation between carriers and shippers would be much to lessen the difficulties. He reviewed briefly the various conditions of freight, the steps taken to relieve the situation. R. LaMotte Russell, of South Manchester, reported on the committee organized by the chamber to assist in improving the taxation laws and the administration of the same in the state. The Connecticut chamber of commerce as such, was incorporated in 1914, but it was really organized in January, 1899, under the name of the Connecticut Business Men's association. The Connecticut chamber is a member of the United States chamber of commerce.

WILSON ENTHUSIASTIC BACKED DOWN ON $75 EVEN MONEY. So much has appeared in print about the betting in New York city and none about the betting on Norwich. It will interest those who are following the wagers on the political situation to know that a regular visitor to this city listened to considerable strong talk in one of the barber shops. It was $75 even that Wilson would win the election. The visitor was shy of the necessary amount and made no reply. After getting shaved he left the shop only to return with a cool hundred in his pocket. The talk was still strong. He offered to take the bet and more, but the $75 was not produced.

CAPTAIN HINSCHE DECLARES BRITISH YARN RIDICULOUS Says Story Was Started By Sailor Discharged From Willahad. "Ridiculous," declared Capt. Frederick Hinsche in emphatic tones on Thursday morning when questioned in reference to the rumor that the North German Lloyd liner Willahad, now lying at the state steamship terminal in East New London, will act within the American three-mile limit as a telegraph station for German submarines. Captain Hinsche is in charge of the affairs of the German steamship Co. in New London, and is a resident of Baltimore harbor. "The vessel of Quincy, Mass., which is supposed to have written a letter intercepted by the British," continued Captain Hinsche, "was discharged from the crew of the Willahad, on Sept. 11, 1914, and has no more knowledge of conditions on board of the liner than I do of a stranger. I do not believe any intelligent American citizen will give credence to a rumor which is so utterly false and absurd." Captain Hinsche naturally objected to British interference with mails but he added that he really desired to make any researches they desired if they hoped to discover any violation of the laws of neutrality. The mission of the Willahad to act as a "mother ship" to the Bremen or some other German submarine merchantman, which is now in New London familiar with the situation, tributes any ulterior motive to her presence. Her wireless equipment was destroyed in the attack on the ship and she has since remained in that condition. The only foundation for the report which gained wide circulation generally, and which is being in the over-enthusiastic imagination of a discharged sailor. The mission of the Willahad to act as a telegraph station for German submarines, she has four months provisions on board."

Surprise Birthday Party. A surprise party was given at the home of Charles A. Perkins on Wednesday evening in honor of his birthday. Whist was played and prizes were awarded as follows: First, Mrs. Rockwood and Otto Pultz; consolation, Mrs. W. H. Perkins and Fred Race. Refreshments were served and the guests returned home at a late hour wishing their host many happy returns of the day. N. F. A. Notes. The senior class has decided to hold the annual frolic dance. The following members of the class have been elected to compose a committee: "Charmaine" Rogers, Alfred Heneault, Leonard Purvis, Georgette Comeau, Dorothy White and the Nelsons. Friday will be the annual Nutting Day and a holiday convention will be held in the city.

Washington authorities place no credence in any sinister motive on the part of the Willahad. They point out that any attempt to act as a telegraph station within the three-mile limit would lead to prompt action on the part of the United States, while operations outside American territorial waters would draw quick attention from allied cruisers.

Refering to the renomination of Connecticut's republican congressmen, E. J. Hill, J. P. Glynn, R. P. Freeman, R. D. Canby and George Wilson, the Waterbury Republican says: "Few states in the union had as good a record of congressmen in the Sixty-fourth congress as Connecticut. Each of the five representatives from this state distinguished himself in more than one important way. Each of them put Connecticut in the map." Legislators, who controlled the session, were loath to recognize the fact that there were any republican congressmen of the country to be congratulated for the passage of imperative legislation, such as the army and navy bills. Congressman Richard P. Freeman of New London, the representative of the Second Congressional district, was unusually active on the committee on public lands and was so busy with MACHINISTS HELD FIRST OF MONTHLY SOCIALS Heard Address by International Organizer Olin of Providence. Following the regular business meeting of the Machinists' union held in Eagles' hall, Thursday night, the first matters pertaining to that committee that he found no time to return to his home for Christmas. His success in getting back the $1,000 appropriation for the dredging of New London harbor so as to make a thirty-three-foot channel met with general approval in his district and has achievement alone would insure his re-election.
