DEATH OF WILLIAM CARUTHERS

Former Postmaster Succumbed to Attack of Heart Disease Early Friday Evening—Had Been Connected With Norwich Postoffice Almost Continuously Since 1870—Served With Honor in the Eighteenth Connecticut Volunteers and Was Prominent Member of Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R.

Colonel Ely acting second lieutenant of Company H, and was recommended by him to Governor Buckingham for promotion. The letter written by Colonel Ely was captured with other mail near Berryville, Va. Lieutenant Caruthers assumed the rank of second lieutenant in the battle of Winchester, which commenced June 13th and ended June 15th. In that engagement, which charging the enemy, he was seriously wounded, the bullet passing through his body. He was taken to the rear and with many of the regiment, including the colonel, was taken prisoner. Mr. Caruthers escaped three months later by recapture. He was twice wounded at the chest. Dr. Walker was summoned and very shortly after his arrival Mr. Caruthers passed away. Death was due to an attack of angina pectoris.

William Caruthers was born at Cockermouth, England, on March 16, 1845, the son of John Caruthers and Mary Livingstone Caruthers, and when a boy of about seven years of age he came to this country with his father. His father died soon after coming to this country and he lived with James Vickridge, who conducted a dry-goods store, in which Mr. Caruthers began a business career as clerk. When the Civil War broke out he was but 17 years of age, but he buckled on the armor. He enlisted in April, 1861, in Company A, First Connecticut, and served through the three months' campaign, the initiatory period of that great conflict. It was his privilege to take part in the first battle of Bull Run, in July, 1861. This regiment was mustered into the service of the United States on August 12, 1861. On July 14, 1862, Mr. Caruthers again entered the service, this time as quartermaster sergeant of the 18th Connecticut, and was promoted to that time on bore a conspicuous part in the war, taking part in many of the battles of the war.

Mr. Caruthers was appointed quartermaster sergeant of the 18th on his second enlistment, later becoming first sergeant of the company. On June 12, 1862, he was appointed by Governor Buckingham to the position of postmaster of the Norwich postoffice, No. 1, G. A. R. He was in the office of the secretary of state, Col. William Mowry, and Charles Phelps, at Hartford. On the latter date he was reappointed postmaster by President McKim, and was postmaster until the democratic administration appointed John P. Murphy.

Mr. Caruthers has taken an active and influential part in politics, being a staunch republican, and only recently was elected to the Norwich city council. He was also a member of the Chamber of Commerce, the Army and Navy club, and at one time belonged to the Arancum club, of which he was president. He was also a member of the Sedgwick post, No. 1, G. A. R. and was a charter member. He was in the office of the secretary of state, Col. William Mowry, and Charles Phelps, at Hartford. On the latter date he was reappointed postmaster by President McKim, and was postmaster until the democratic administration appointed John P. Murphy.

WILLIAM CARUTHERS

William Caruthers, one of the best and most favored known men of this city, died suddenly at his home on McKinley avenue Friday night at 8.16 o'clock. Mr. Caruthers was in his usual good health Friday evening and very shortly after his arrival Mr. Caruthers passed away. Death was due to an attack of angina pectoris.

Mr. Caruthers was born at Cockermouth, England, on March 16, 1845, the son of John Caruthers and Mary Livingstone Caruthers, and when a boy of about seven years of age he came to this country with his father. His father died soon after coming to this country and he lived with James Vickridge, who conducted a dry-goods store, in which Mr. Caruthers began a business career as clerk. INCREASED STRENGTH OF FACTIONS IN MEXICO

Offsets Determination of Commission to Effect an Adjustment.

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 10.—Confirmation of reports of the increased strength of various reactionary movements in Mexico served to offset today the apparent determination of the representatives on the Mexican-American joint commission to effect an early adjustment of the problem of the two governments are facing. Until official reports revealed the truth of stories of Villa's successes in the north and the progress made by other reactionaries in the south, there appeared a probability that an agreement would be entered into, perhaps next week. That appeared less likely today and the chance that a formal adjournment without agreement would be the most general character seemed more probable.

Reports received by the Americans from official sources and others received by the Mexicans from their government, dealing with the activities of Villa were not very encouraging. The commissioners at their one long session today. The net result of the comparison of the reports was to disclose that General Carranza was conducting a defensive campaign against Villa with a battle at Escalon in progress, and that he was prosecuting a campaign against him.
