STATE GRANGE OPENS CONVENTION
Six Hundred Delegates Register From All Sections of Connecticut—Annual Address of State Master Charles T. Davis Delivered at Afternoon Session—Exemplification of Fourth Degree at Evening Session—Many More Delegates Expected Today.

For the first time in the history of the Norwich Connecticut State Grange is holding its annual convention here. The opening session took place in the Mews Cells at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning and the sessions will continue today and Thursday, closing Thursday afternoon. Some six hundred Patrons of Husbandry registered Tuesday as delegates from granges located in all sections of the state and many more are expected today (Wednesday). About half of these six hundred delegates are stopping at the local hotels or with friends and the other three hundred are staying at the homes of private families. The assignment of the latter rooms was made at the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Norwich, Conn. Inc., in the Chamber of Commerce building on Main street. Master Charles T. Davis of Middletown presided at the opening session which was called to order at 11 o'clock in the Town Hall. The session opened in the fifth degree. The roll call of the officers and granges there were only a few absentees. The officers present were: Master Charles T. Davis, president; Allen B. Cook, Middlebury; steward, F. M. Plandee, Naugatuck; treasurer, F. M. Plandee, Naugatuck; secretary, H. E. Loomis, Glastonbury; gate keeper, M. F. Clark, Lyme; Flora, Mrs. Martha M. Plandee, Naugatuck; Mrs. Cora Hine, Orange. The absentees were: Assistant steward, Minor Ives, Meriden, and chaplain, Rev. Howard Hoyt, D. D., of Hartford.

Master Davis appointed the following as a credential committee: N. S. Platt, state treasurer, Clarence Shap-wood, assistant secretary, George H. Carrier, No. 26; David W. Pitcher, No. 21; Charles A. Harbers, No. 172; J. W. Burke, No. 11; Mrs. Addie G. Hyde, No. 43.
Owing to illness Rev. J. Howard Hoyt, D. D., chaplain, is unable to attend. His place was taken by a resolution of sympathy was adopted.
Just before the morning session concluded the various deputies made reports of the work accomplished.
STATE MASTER DAVIS DELIVERS ANNUAL ADDRESS
Grange Measuring Up to Responsibilities and Entering Broader Fields.
The afternoon session opened shortly after 2 o'clock when the remainder of reports from the deputies were heard.
In his annual address State Master Charles T. Davis stated that it is gratifying to be able to state that the rural school has not only been maintained, but that it has advanced responsibility, and that more and better work is being done and the health of all other nations shall be used to cause said dissenting nation to comply with the order of the court.
The tendency goes by, the tendency grows to make the rural school nearer to what it should be, and the trend is more to the country than during the past years. Education is not all found within the covers of books, nor within the walls of a school house. A higher and better education is being given, and doing real work, useful and practical work, work that instructs and fits us for the duties of citizenship, and makes of us better factors of society. The grange may, and should thus encourage the sort of education that develops a better man and a better citizen throughout our land, and in our order.
Again we are called to mourn the death of our order and most honorable workers, Brother C. E. Staples, of Colchester, for many years an efficient deputy, and, at the time of his death, a member of the executive committee of the state grange. Unselfish, untiring, always ready and willing to serve the order in any capacity, he was called, and his words inadequate to express his true loyalty to the grange.

Loyal to American Traditions.
Rural America has been, is, and will continue to be loyal to the best American traditions.
Rural America believes that the honor and dignity of the nation should be maintained at home and abroad, and that the American flag, as it floats around the world, in times of peace or war, shall speak in terms of courage, national pride and international justice and equity.
Therefore, I would recommend that such resolutions be passed at this session, setting forth the position of our order toward organizing a world's congress, which has for its object the establishment of a court made up of able statesmen, who will represent every nation, and to whom all international controversy or dispute shall be referred, and if any nation shall fail or refuse to abide by any finding of said court, then the combined effort and strength of all other nations shall be used to cause said dissenting nation to comply with the order of the court.

Lecturer Cook Speaks.
Lecturer Allen B. Cook in part said: With the dawnings of the new year every patriot in this great world is thinking of peace. Not all are thinking of it with the same degree of interest, nor with the same earnestness. Some are wondering when it will come and how long it will last. We here in Connecticut do not realize, we can never realize, what the past two and a half years means to the countries across the sea, nor what it will mean to them in the time to come. We are beginning to realize, or at least we are beginning to, that it has placed upon the farmers of America a demand to feed and clothe our own people but to a great extent to feed and clothe the world. The members of our great country and that means right here in Connecticut, farmers must extend every effort to produce every pound of foodstuff possible to meet these unnatural and uncalled for conditions.
The agricultural colleges, through their various branches, the experiment stations and the granges must all do their part to help the farmer meet these unusual demands. It is not necessary for the grange to adopt any new principle in order to do its part, for in no way can it be of greater assistance than by adhering to its fundamental principle to elevate and educate the American farmer and his family. I am afraid, however, that in some cases the grange is already drifting away from this principle and instead of trying to elevate and educate the farmer is simply trying to amuse, do not think the lecturers are entirely to blame for these conditions.
Competitive Score Card Basis.
Several of the state granges have placed the work of the lecturers upon a competitive score card basis and they report that it gives very satisfactory results.
After carefully considering what has been done and is being done in other states it has been decided to try an experiment this year in our own order. We are not offering any prizes but it is the aim of your lecturer to keep a score of each grange in the state, based upon a definite scale of points and the reports sent by the various Pomona and subordinate lecturers. In the scale of points which has been adopted for this experiment we give extra values to original or educational work, hoping thereby to encourage more of this kind of material on the programme.
In concluding Lecturer Cook said if

Great Need for Grange.
If the grange was needed fifty years ago, when the larger majority of the people was to be found in the country, and when the industries and occupations were few, the need for the grange is doubly great at the present time, when about 75 per cent of the population of our state live in the cities.
This state is largely covered by subordinate granges, so that the opportunity to improve the granges that we have and to materially enlarge their membership and attendance, it seems much better to improve a weak order than to organize after it has become dormant.
As there was no session of the legislature last year, the work of your legislative and executive committees was directed largely to the efforts of the milk producers to get milk shipped into Boston by what is known as the "open car system," instead of the Grange Is to Give the Help that It should to bridge over the unhard conditions we are facing, we must all put our shoulders to the wheel and make rather than climb on our ride. We must also work with other organizations striving for the same end, but do not let them take the place of the grange. Let them continue to occupy the place which it does and deserves in the first rank among the organizations of the land.

The Treasurer's Report.
The next report was the report of the treasurer, N. S. Platt. The state association has received during the year of 1916, $12,213.46. The expenditures were $11,322.04, leaving a balance of $891.42 to start 1917.
The grange has deposited in nine savings banks in the state a sum amounting to $12,486.
Secretary H. E. Loomis tendered his yearly report and the reports of the finance committee were heard and approved.
H. C. Dunham of the finance of the executive committee will report on Wednesday.
John E. Gifford gave a brief but earnest address relative to the enactment of a more strenuous law for the protection of sheep against dog bite. Only one student of the state is taking advantage of the aid which will be loaned to students desiring help in obtaining their education. The grange will loan sums of money to students at an exceedingly low rate of interest. The educational committee appointed at the last session of the National Grange, a recommendation from the assembly of the Priests of Demeter was concurred in granting the right to each subordinate master or deputy receiving a copy through the proper channels, to be allowed to keep the same after the expiration of his term of office. Therefore, by this action, state masters are no longer held to their duty to provide each new subordinate and pomona master with a copy.
This action was taken solely to help to make the work more uniform, and to enable masters to give the instruction which is absolutely necessary. Rural America has always responded to the call of patriotic duty whether in time of peace or war. From the time the "embattled farmer stood and fired the shot heard around the world," to the last call for duty on our southern border, the loyalty and devotion of the farm people of the country to its highest ideals has been unquestioned and its response to the call for duty in the face of stern responsibilities has been instant and cheerful.

He called attention to the fact that Norwich is the trolley center of eastern Connecticut. All trolleys lead to Norwich and Norwich is the shopping center of the eastern part of the state. All the stores are well equipped and carry nothing but the best lines.
President James expressed the point that the chamber of commerce wants the delegates to go back to their homes with a desire to return to Norwich, to help in the reconstruction of the city, and that with the hospitality which the people of Norwich are showing, they will come again for another state convention.
Fourth Degree Exemplified.
The fourth degree was exemplified by a team from the Burritt Grange, No. 25, under the leadership of Master Robert W. W. by G. M. Gardner. The team were very attractive in their white robes and the work done was considered by the Patrons of Husbandry to be the best ever done at a convention.
High Priest of Demeter Charles M. Gardner of Springfield, Mass., read the Unwritten Work of the Order for comparison and he was assisted by State Lecturer A. E. Cooke of Middletown and Mrs. Edith Mitchell, worthy master of the Newton, Conn., grange. Gertrude McIntyre, elocutionist, entertained with a beautiful play, "Nellie Howie" of this city presided at the banquet. The first day of the convention closed in regular form shortly before 11 o'clock.
There are many women in attendance at the convention who hold the office of master and among the noted lecturers are Leonard H. Howie of Woodstock, secretary of the state board of agriculture.
