The New Shoreham took the place of the old Danielson.

NEW HAVEN ROAD SITUATION AT PRESENT.

The Wall Street Journal Comments on Railroad's Finances.

On the New Haven road situation the Wall Street Journal prints the following: The New York, New Haven and Hartford has gained in public esteem through the ability of President Elliott to quiet antagonisms. This is a real gain, though one not immediately reflected in market prices. New England transportation is suffering from higher expense and car shortage. The road should be able to meet the situation. The price of steel, copper and coal will come down. At present there is little hope in the New Haven road, though the earnings this winter should be a million dollars ahead of last winter.
