Announcement was made yesterday by the Connecticut committee of food conservation that the plan for the mobilization of schoolboys for farm service, under which the boys of Connecticut over 14 years of age may aid their nation in its war program, is active here in the great task of feeding America; its army and navy and its allies.

The boys of this state who enter this service will become members of the Connecticut Junior Agricultural Volunteer war emergency organization which is a part of the United States Boys' Working reserve, and will be entitled to wear an official button from the national government, which when they have complied with the conditions of their enrollment by working the equivalent of 30 full days, or more will receive an appropriate certificate signed by Governor Marcus H. Holcomb.

The plan for the employment of schoolboys on the farms this summer has been developed by the food supply committee in conference with and with the approval of the principal, high and private schools in Connecticut, and the secretary of the state board of education, the school supervising agents, the Connecticut Agricultural College extension service and the several farm bureaus. The plan has the cordial endorsement of the state gardeners' association and the state board of agriculture.

Arthur Howe of Windsor, who was captain of the Yale football team in 1914, has been named as the representative from the committee on food supply to act as enrollment officer for the boys' work, and will assist in putting the plan into operation. In this work the food supply committee will cooperate with Hon. William E. Hall, assistant secretary of the national food supply committee, and the state board of agriculture.

Boys who volunteer for this branch of work will be allowed to retain their standing in school under an act passed by the legislature and approved by Governor Holcomb of May 7. The act follows: "Section 1. Any high school pupil over 14 years of age who shall volunteer and be accepted for agricultural work, or who shall be permitted to re-enter school without loss of standing by reason of absence, provided that he shall receive the standard prescribed by the committee on food supply and receives a certificate signed by the governor.

"Section 2. This act shall take effect from its passage and shall not be operative after the rising of the general assembly at its January session, 1917.
