HAS NO POWER TO INSPECT NATIVE CATTLE

So Commissioner Whittlesey is Unable to Comply With City's Request.

Cattle Commissioner J. M. Whittlesey issued an order this week removing quarantine from the farm of W. G. Atkins of Bristol, where there was a serious outbreak of anthrax, resulting in the loss of seven pure bred Jersey cows.

The city of Norwich would like the cattle commissioner to send it a veterinarian who would inspect the meat offered for sale in the markets of the city, but the commissioner has no power to comply with the request. The law gives him no control over native cattle and his inspectors confine their inspections to imported animals. He would, however, co-operate with the authorities of Norwich, he says, to the extent of appointing the inspector chosen by the municipal authorities as the inspector of his department.

POLICE REPORT FOR AUGUST

Total of 129 Arrests Were Made During the Past Month—Sixty Men Were Charged With Intoxication and Thirty-Six With Breach of the Peace—Forty-Eight Homeless Were Found Open.

During the month of August ending at midnight Friday the local police made a total of 129 arrests. This was a comparatively light month for the department. Sixty-one of the men arrested were charged with intoxication and 31 have breach of the peace charges against their names. Nine men were taken in on theft charges and violation of the liquor law led one man before the city court. Inducing gambling, was responsible for the arrest of one man and one man was brought on the charge of insanity. For injury to private property one man was haled before court and one man faced the judge on the charge of allowing a minor to loiter in his pool room. One man was charged with keeping a gambling house and five for frequenting. These charges were the result of a raid made on a Chinese laundry on Broadway two weeks ago.

The remaining charges were distributed as follows: Refusing to obey an officer, two; resisting an officer, one; violating the automobile law, two; disobeying an officer, one; vagrancy, one; trespass, six; horse stealing, one; reckless driving of an automobile, two, and embezzlement, one.

During the month 48 homeless were given lodgings and 23 doors were found open and made secure.

WERE GIVEN CHANCE TO PROVE CLAIMS.

Men, Women and Children Crowded Exemption Board Rooms in Thayer Building Friday.

Those of the men accepted for the draft from 7 a. m. to 12 m. The morning second call sent out by the local exemption board, and who filed claims for exemption, were given a chance on Friday to have their claims on the board in person. Some 50 or 60 men had been notified that they might appear to prove their claims and for a Friday the exemption board rooms in the Thayer building were crowded with men, women and children, including a number of infants.

The men were taken in on their claims to state their claims and offer proof and were informed by the board that their cases would be taken up in the future and that they will be notified of the decisions rendered.

The three members of the board, Judge John M. Thayer, chairman, Dr. Leone F. LaPierre and W. Tyler O'Leary, were present throughout the hearings.

Bozrah Man Charged With Assault and Battery and Reckless Driving.

Arrested by State Policeman William E. Jackson and charged with assault and battery and reckless driving and avoiding identity following a collision, Earl Avery of Bozrah was arraigned at Groton on Thursday before Justice Henry M. Pettit. A charge was granted and the case went over until Sept. 6. A bond of $1,000 was furnished.

On the morning of Aug. 25th it is claimed that Avery was driving through Salem about 1 o'clock and collided with a team driven by Franklin J. M. Pettit, who was accompanied by Miss Ethel Champlin of Salem. The occupants were thrown out of the team and Miner sustained concussion of the brain.
