GERMANS ARE NOW AT THE GATES OF RIGA
where the Germans were last reported standing, about twelve miles west of Riga. Preparations evidently were made last week in raids by airplanes on warships and military works in the Gulf of Riga and by the manoeuvres of German torpedo boats and submarines in adjacent waters, for the new offensive against Riga, but whether the attack is being made by sea or chronously by sea has not become apparent.

While the capture of Riga would be a great strategic value to the Germans in controlling the entrance to the Gulf of Finland, at the head of which lies the Baltic, it would not necessarily place the capital in jeopardy, for it lies overland three hundred miles as the crow flies from Riga and three hundred and sixty miles by rail.

In southern Moldavia, Rumanians, fighting near Fokshani in conjunction with the Rumanians, evidently have ceased their desertions and again are facing the enemy. Here, according to Berlin, they have delivered heavy counter-attacks against Field Marshal von Mackensen's forces. Near Buzak, the Germans were repelled in an attack on the Brestovitz plateau on the slopes of Monte San Gabriele and east of Gorizia, and here the Rumanians and war stores from the Austrians. Five Italian airplanes have flown from the Italian front over Verdun and dropped pamphlets and leaflets to the people of the victory of the Italians from Tolmein to the sea.

In Belgium the British big guns are continuing to bombard the German positions, evidently preparing the way for another smash at Crown Prince Rupprecht's front. The infantry activity here and at other points in France is mainly in the nature of raiding operations. Near Havrincourt the Germans in a sharp attack pushed back the British but later lost the ground in a counter-attack.

Heavy artillery duels also are in progress along the Aisne, in Champagne and in the Verdun sector, but the infantry has remained virtually inactive.

UNDER CANVAS.
