Although there are other duties that have to be performed by the recruits, the hardships which the recruits encountered were not aware of it they were being closely observed by the medical and dental officers. The weather and the lack of complaints and general attitude of the soldiers boys to accept whatever came their way were the cause of much rejoicing, demonstrating the real caliber of the men in the United States called to the colors.

Most of the boys have now been outfitted and they are beginning to feel more like regular soldiers. It was a little depressing to go through the medical and dental examinations, and it is difficult for the good people of Ayer to believe that when they arrived, to believe that they are the same men. There is a good-natured rivalry among the various units at the opening of camp life and the attendant military training at Camp Devens.

The first 2,000 men who arrived at the camp are working especially hard to acquire military knowledge to get promoted to non-commissioned officers. It has not come hard for the men who have had previous military training, even the rookies are making surprising progress.

The men are given an opportunity to take turns in acting as non-commissioned officers and they have deemed it a privilege to have the opportunity to do so. A vaudeville theatre has been established on the campgrounds this week. It means that excellent entertainment for the camp inmates on training camp activities is planned to censor all public entertainments in places around the camp to insure that the soldier boy will have for amusement only that which is well when considered in the near future. An effort will be made to have managers of all every precaution possible but not allow his mind to dwell on them for it will only decrease his efficiency and be of no benefit to the country.

In the parade, during the celebration Tuesday evening Mr. Copp acted as captain of the soldiers-to-be of the National Army.

For the last month he has been drilling with the other men at the army of Co. K Home Guard.

Mr. Copp will leave Thursday for Ayer with the appointment of 45 men.
