Judge E. M. Burke Appoints Job Thorpe in Charge of Miss Mary Dahood, Formerly at Rock Nook Home, Norwich Superior Court Session—Indictment Returned Against Miss Alice Sargent for Auto Fatality—Five Divorces Granted—Rodolfo Yanello, Captured, Proves He is Out on Bond.

Judge Edward M. Burke held regular session of the Westery probate court, Tuesday afternoon. Job Thorpe was appointed guardian of the person and estate of Mary Dahood, a minor over the age of 14, born in Syria, September 14, 1899. The appointment was made upon request of Miss Dahood who has been living with the Thorpe family seven years, and received her from the Rock Nook Home for Children at Norwich, where she was left five years previous and practically abandoned by her mother. When the mother appeared and made demand for the girl petition was made for the appointment of a guardian. After hearing the testimony of Mrs. John C. Averill, representing the Norwich home Judge Burke appointed Mr. Thorpe as temporary guardian, as a habeas corpus proceeding was pending in the superior court. In the superior court the effort of Mrs. Dahood to get possession of the child was denied. It was then open for the probate court to appoint the guardian, and this was done Tuesday. Judge Herbert W. Rathbun, counsel for Miss Dahood, read a letter in court from Mrs. Dahood to the girl disowning her, and also to Mrs. Thorpe stating that she no longer claimed the girl and that she was no longer her daughter. Another letter was read from Michael, brother of Mary, who was also at the Rock Nook Home with his sister, addressed to Mrs. Thorpe, which testified that she would spend all her money and give her life if necessary, to get possession of the girl. At the conclusion of the letters, Judge Burke remarked: "Simply the last rumbling of the thunder." Bond was fixed at $1,500 furnished by his attorney with a "Providence woman as surety." At the police station Yanello persisted that he was out of prison on the bond and upon inquiry of the officials, the chief was satisfied that Yanello told the truth and he was released. At the time of Yanello's arrest, as well as soon thereafter, Chief Brown was in the possession of evidence implicating Yanello in breaking and entering a dwelling house in the daytime and covering the tracks of the robbery of the district court, did not press these charges, but was content in arraigning Yanello on three counts for larceny. Soon after Yanello was incarcerated in state prison filed notice of appeal from the judgment of the third district court, and under this appeal he furnished a bond. In consequence other charges of larceny were lodged by the grand jury at the present session of the superior court for Washington county.

There will be a big parade demonstration in Providence today in honor of Rhode Island's drafted men, who will march in that city on Saturday at 12:45 for Ayer, Mass. There will be 854 national army men in the parade, in whose honor it is given, and refreshments will be served in the state armory. The contingent from Westery will leave here on the 7:02 a. m. train and participate in the state's farewell to the future soldier boys. The local fire department motor truck Cyclone will convey the members of that company from the fire house to the railway station, and they will be accompanied by Chief Engineer Samuel G. Cottrell and other members of the department. The members of the Cyclone company will wear parade uniform will act as escort to their comrades who are to join the national army. Those who are in the service of those who are to join the army, Chief Cottrell will sound twenty blasts of the fire alarm.

The Rhode Island committee of the American Library association, of which Librarian George E. Bradley, of Westery, is a member, has completed plans for the Library War Service Week which is to raise $30,000, during the week beginning September 24, as its share of the national fund to establish and maintain the school of the army cantonments. The Knights of Columbus and Y. M. C. A. on account of their special work in behalf of the soldiers, could not attend to the library feature, and the American Library association has assumed the work, with the approval of the war department, and is not duplicating on the field of any other organization official or non-official. Branch stations are to be located in Knights of Columbus buildings and Y. M. C. A. halls. The service will be eventually extended to wounded soldiers and convalescents, interned groups, and sailors on ships and naval stations.

The Rhode Island Onas furnish all members who are in the service with a supply of tobacco and postage stamps. At the request of the Westery town council the unused iron poles in Broad street are being removed by the Shore Line Electric Railway company. The members of the Cyclone fire company, who are in the service, were given a roast beef supper at the fire house, Monday night. The Stonington firemen will unite with the home guard, the Tierney cadets, Portuguese Rifles, Boy Scouts and borough officials, in giving the drafted boys a send-off early Thursday morning. The automobile found in Cross street and taken over by the police, under the supposition that it had been stolen and then abandoned, is owned by Frank C. Foots, of Malden, Mass. He notified Chief Brown that he would come for the automobile at his earliest convenience.
