That music study with private teachers should be given credit in the public schools was the argument advanced by W. J. Baltzell, editor of "The Musician" in a talk before the member of the Music Teachers' Association of Connecticut at Hartford.

The association passed a resolution in favor of the adoption of some such arrangement in this state. Mr. Baltzell told the teachers that they should try to get away from the old idea of looking only for their own interest and get the broader view that they are an important part of the community.

The association voted to send a delegate to the annual convention of the National Music Teachers' Association in New Orleans in December and the president, Mrs. M. A. Gentry of Rockville was elected. This is the first time that the organization has been directly represented in the national association and is sending a delegate at the request of the larger association.
