Home Guards Respond.
Major Charles P. Williams' battalion of the Third regiment, Connecticut Home Guard, will probably be in active service for an indefinite period. Company B, of Stonington and A. of Mystic, were mobilized Monday afternoon, making quick response to the call made by the fire alarm toots. It was expected that the company would be assigned to guard duty at the shipyard in Noank, and G company assigned to the Stonington shipyard. Or, the command may be ordered to railroad guard duty. The other company of the battalion, C, of Pawcatuck, had been called out for a chimney fire in the tenement of William Higgins, in the house owned by the estate of Oliver H. Grant. It was a stubborn blaze but the firemen conquered it with the aid of chemicals.

WESTERLY STABBED OUT UNDER BONDS

Nutzriata Gancerella, Who Hid in Norwich While on His Way to Worcester, Arrested in Latter City—Strict Obedience to Administrator Garfield's Order—Joseph Bradford Writes From France—Mrs. Dahood's Motion for New Trial of Guardian Case Denied.

In observance of the request of the local administration the stores of Westerly were closed for business Monday. The exceptions were the food stores, and they closed at noon. In the afternoon the only stores open were the drug stores, excepted under the law, and the news office, which were open a part of the time. The restaurants were of necessity open all day. Unless there is change in the rules, this condition will prevail for the next nine days. The saloons were also closed, as were also the licensed liquor clubs, and there was harmony in all that pertained to the patriotic spirit of the times. Westerly not only adhered strictly to the orders of the fuel administration board but went farther and observed the accompanying regulations, then some through pure patriotism. In consequence the town bore a Sunday-like appearance, except the religious or church observance. What was true of Westerly was also true in the twin village of Pawcatuck, just across the bridge, in Connecticut.

There was a report in Westerly Monday morning that the fellow who set fire to the grain plant of C. W. Campbell, under arrest, but not in Westerly or Stonington. In connection with this report was the statement that this same individual was responsible for the fire that destroyed the Tucker grain plant at Narragansett Pier, and further that the same chap was formerly employed at Aiton. A member of the Campbell firm did not deny that there was substantial basis for the report, but the time was not quite ripe for giving out the details.

While there may be no direct connection between Hans Seel and these fires, so far as known, he is the only Alton man under arrest to whom there would be a natural line of suspicion, with the facts withheld. Seel was taken into custody by a representative of the department of justice as a dangerous alien enemy. Before his arrest he had been under surveillance for some time. It was stated that he had made visits to the vicinity of the submarine base and his suspicious actions led to his arrest. Since then nothing has been heard of him in the print and it was supposed, here and hereabouts that he had been interned. A brother of Seel was arrested some time ago in the south for some disloyal action to the federal government and papers were found that he had some method of communication with Germany.

Hans Seel was employed as draftsman at the Aiton lace mill and was a regular visitor to the gymnasium in the Memorial and Library building, and always carried a suit case which he closely guarded. This intimation that Seel may probably be the person responsible for the Campbell and Tucker fires is purely of a problematical nature and may be without substantial foundation.

The Campbell fire occurred on the night of March 31st and the grain warehouse and elevator, with its contents, were destroyed.

"It's only a case of deferred sentence, a fox afoot," is the way Police Chief Thomas E. Brown put it when Nutzriata Gancerella made his escape after knifing Frederick Gabrielle in a Canal street saloon on Thanksgiving evening. To his word, the chief of police. He was traced from Westerly to Norwich, then to Portchester, to New York and finally to Worcester. Chief Brown finally located Gancerella, employed under a fictitious name, in a Worcester tannery. He was taken into custody by the Worcester police and Chief Brown took that city and Gancerella back to the police station.

Gancerella was arraigned before Clerk Clarence E. Roche in the Third district court Monday morning and pleaded guilty to the assault with a dangerous weapon. He was held for trial and bond was fixed at $2,000. Four of his co-defendants were surety on the bond for the appearance of Gancerella in the district court next Friday morning.

The Campbell fire occurred on the night of March 31st and the grain warehouse and elevator, with its contents, were destroyed.

Dear Tom: No doubt, Tom, you are having things pretty easy now, on account of a good many of the rude fellows that you dropped the plan of laws here, old boy. We have a chance to drive as fast as we please. You know me; I never did care about being laid away; ask any of the boys.

With the French army in the Voges mountains, sounds like big league stuff, doesn't it? A little snow fell a couple of nights ago, and the boys and "Old George" here today to go rabbit hunting with me. It would be a little dangerous though, at that, for a rabbit track leads right into Germany. I was headed that way the other day in one of the cars. We got on the wrong road and, in a little while, it was not being stopped, we would have been mixing up with a bunch of saunas.

Oh, I still do a few foolish stunts. Just as fat as ever. We are living great, getting plenty of plank steaks; yes, about the size of a cracker. Wine and champagne are very cheap. We can buy pretty good champagne for $20 a bottle. Tell that to Chace, and he will start right away, won't he? Wishing you, your family, and all the boys a Merry Christmas, I am,

Respectfully yours,
JOE BROADFOOT.

Letter From Norman Phillips—Company of Which He is a Member Billed in French Village, Where Soap and Lights Are Scarce.

Mrs. J. P. Brown attended the state grange sessions in Hartford. Mrs. Wilfred D. Hamilton of East Milton, Wis., is visiting her parents, Mrs. Mrs. Mason Hatch for several weeks.

WRITES FROM FRANCE.

Norman Phillips and Company Billed in French Village.

The following letter, received by F. A. Lavery from Norman Phillips, who is with the Expeditionary Force in France, will be of interest to many. It was written November 28th.

Dear Tom: I am a long way from dear old Stafford, but I am trying to keep happy under the way the things are here. We are camping in a town that is nothing but a French military camp and the rest American soldiers. We are sleeping in the houses and barns of the town. I happened to get a bad cold, it is a real warm. It is impossible to buy anything in this town because there is no store, but there are a few wine shops and a few shops that sell tobacco and cigarettes that will put you to sleep for an hour after you get through smoking them. You couldn't buy any more of my kind, if you were here. We are all going to chip in and buy a lantern but when we found out it was 20 cents per gallon we dropped the plan. There are no candles at all here. We have been going to bed at 6 and 7 o'clock.

There are fifteen others besides myself sleeping in the barn and we get plenty of sleep over here, but we are all happy just the same.

I have not seen a newspaper since I came to France. When we went through England we got a few there, but there was no news in them. I would give anything to get hold of a daily paper.

We had a good trip across and the last three days the old ship did everything but go over. I was not weak at all, but for traveling around in foreign countries for the sport of it, no more for me! Traveling in the good old U. S. is good enough for me after I get back.

Well, Frank, remember me to all my old friends in Stafford, and if you have any old chocolates or cigarettes that you can't sell, send them to me and I will see that you get your pay for them because money is no good over here. I am going to get paid some time next week. I will get two months' pay when I do. We have been traveling here in our camp; we will get it there.

I suppose you will get this letter about Thanksgiving time. Well, remember me to all the boys and I will be glad when I get back to the good U. S., never to go out of it again. Be sure and tell your folks to get me as you can for a letter from the home town comes in handy here. I have received one letter and one postcard from you and I was followed by we don't hear anything that is going on in the world.

Your friend,
NORMAN PHILLIPS.

BALTIMORE

K. of C. Campaign.

Monday, the final day in the big drive for the K. of C. war fund campaign was a hustling day for the collectors. Different sections of the town which had not been thoroughly canvassed were completed on time.

The captains and the members of the Baltic and Hanover teams deserve much credit for their faithful and energetic manner in which they conducted this campaign.

Confident of making a good showing in Sprague they took up their duties and worked with unceasing effort. Meetings with generous response they continued until the final hour.

Heats Day.
Monday, the first in the series of heats days was unusually quiet in Baltic, dry goods stores, saloons and other business that had finally decided to open, kept closed all day. Drug stores and food stores and news rooms did business throughout the day. The seven o'clock passenger trolley out of Baltic Monday morning was omitted. Other cars arrived and departed on schedule.

No Changes in Trains.
No change was made in the trains on the New Haven road as all trains reached here on week-day schedule. The retail liquor dealers are to close the places today (Tuesday) to do their part in the conserving of fuel.
